Silent; Well-Wisher Toward Hoover.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Northampton, Mass., Jan. 3.—[Special.]—Every morning a former White House limousine draws up before a brick building in the business center of this college town and the man who refused another four years as the most powerful ruler on earth alights and ascends to a second floor room, the peeling gilt window lettering of which proclaims it the office of Coolidge & Hemenway, attorneys at law.

Calvin Coolidge (for none other is our hero, as the story books would say) hangs his overcoat and hat on a peg and, sitting down at a $15 oak desk, attacks the mountain of his daily mail. He sits not in his old executive office mahogany chair which he was too parsimonious or too unsentimental to buy, as is the retiring presidential custom—and which those millionaires, Hoover, Mellon, and Secretary of Labor Davis recently chipped in and bought for him—not in this chair, but in a high backed, somewhat wobbly swivel chair of oak beneath a framed facsimile of the Declaration of Independence.

He Rises to Greet Each Caller.

A little farther along the wall hangs a facsimile of Shakespeare's will. Against the opposite wall is a row of sectional oak bookcases containing law books. On a pedestal near the desk is a luxuriant potted fern, Mrs. Coolidge's contribution to the furnishings. It is a tiny office with two chairs for visitors.

When you are shown in, Mr. Coolidge rises and cordially greets his visitor. That was one of the many things that distinguished Mr. Coolidge as President. There was no caller too humble for him to rise from his chair to greet. But if you address him now as Mr. President in the American fashion of addressing the ex-official by the title of the highest office he has held, he will remark dryly but significantly:

Everybody about the office and about the town calls him merely Mr. Coolidge and that is the way he would have it.

His Mail Grows Heavier.

Though it is the law office of Coolidge & Hemenway, Mr. Coolidge is not of the firm. The firm is Mr. Ralph Hemenway and has been since Mr. Coolidge became lieutenant governor of Massachusetts and retired from practice nearly fifteen years ago. Mr. Coolidge takes no law retainers now. He merely rents a room of his former partner in which to attend to his private business and to receive callers.

His private business at present consists of disposing of a daily increasing correspondence. There has been a good deal of speculation on the reasons for the sudden jump in the Coolidge mail which began to be noted at the Northampton postoffice about a month ago. Some have hazarded the guess that the phenomenon was not unrelated to other phenomena connected with the collapse of the stock market such as the cry of "get Coolidge back" that was raised by the losers who blamed the Hoover administration for failure to check the speculative orgy.

Aims to Help Hoover.

Hence the surmise that the jump in the Coolidge mail is due to the impulse of tens of thousands of his fellow citizens caught in the stock market crash or suffering from the attendant business depression to take pen in hand and pour out their souls to the man who held the ship of state on an even keel for more than six years. Perhaps some of these correspondents have gone so far as to implore him to choose to run for his old job again at the first opportunity. If so it is safe to say that Mr. Coolidge either has ignored such letters or replied with a gentle rebuke, for it is known that he feels Mr. Hoover is acquitting himself splendidly in the emergency and that he desires to do all in his power to aid his successor.

It is no secret among his friends that one of the reasons Mr. Coolidge consistently has refused to write on current events for newspapers and magazines, to give interviews, or to speak on public affairs is his desire to be helpful to Mr. Hoover. In declining offers and invitations of such import he has stated that he prefers not to discuss matters on which he must profess to be so well informed as the men in office in Washington. No one importunate editor he ejacu-

Ship on Rocks; Cargo Spoils; Crew Strikes

Tampa, Fla., Jan. 3.—(AP)—The jinx of the sea that has followed the wooden steamship Santa Ana for more than a month of her voyage from Seattle to Tampa added more bad luck today with the seizure of 2,000 cases of salmon from the ship's cargo and the broadcasting of an appeal for food for her crew, who are stranded in port here.

The ship, about to sink at its dock here, was ordered moved by federal authorities nearer a dry dock, where she could be kept afloat with pumps from shore. The Santa Ana's engineers quit yesterday, and as they walked off the tubes in her boilers blew out.

Crew Given Clothing.

The crew of 26, four of them with their wives, are objects of charity and were given clothing today through an appeal sent out by a newspaper.

The Santa Ana's voyage was a disastrous one. Out of Seattle, her fresh water line leaked and she was forced to shore. She was disabled three times at sea with engine trouble and finally sent out an SOS in the Caribbean sea and was towed to Grand Cayman. She was libeled in port here for $32,200 towing charges, and then the crew, which had not received a penny for their voyage, added $6,000 libel for back wages.

Reindeer Meat Spoiled.

The Santa Ana's cargo of apples, most of which have rotted, will be sold at auction tomorrow under court orders.

The salmon was seized today by health authorities. The ship also carried a part cargo of reindeer meat, but it was said this, too, was spoiled and thrown overboard.

The Santa Ana is owned by the Orange Belt Steamship company.

Reports Robbery as Three Fired Cops Hand in Stars

The city council's failure to appropriate sufficient funds to maintain the police department at its present strength came home with force to Russell M. Kemp, 28 years old, 1547 East 65th street, early this morning. As Kemp, a clerk in the McGill & Martin drug store at 10701 Hale avenue, rushed into the Morgan Park police station to report that the store had been robbed of $180 by two gunmen, three patrolmen of the 473 dismissed by Commissioner Russell's order were turning in their stars.

ONE PERISHES IN FLAMES; FAMILY OF FOUR RESCUED

One man was killed and a family of five persons was rescued in fires that attacked two homes last night and early this morning. Both fires were believed to have been caused by overheated furnaces.

Anthony Kellan, 45 years old, 5370 South Maplewood avenue, was suffocated by smoke from a blaze which started after midnight in the basement of his cottage, where he lived alone. Firemen found his body in bed after they had subdued the flames. The damage was estimated at $1,000.

John B. Schuttler, 45 years old, 3653 North Crawford avenue, overcome by smoke while attempting to fight a fire in the basement of his home, was carried to safety by Fireman Stanley Wolanski of engine company 69 after other firemen had led his wife and two children, Helen, 17 years old, and Donald, 12, from the blazing building. Mrs. Schuttler carried out a third child, Mary Rita, 5 years old, before the firemen arrived. The damage to the Schuttler home was estimated at $5,000.

Train Crushes School Bus; 7 Dead, 8 Hurt

Wooster, O., Jan. 3.—(AP)—Seven persons were killed and eight injured tonight at Shreve, near here, when a Pennsylvania limited train roaring through a sleet storm struck a bus bearing 20 high school boys and girls of Burbank on their way home from a basketball game at Big Prairie. The bus was hurled 100 feet along the right of way.

The driver, Joseph Baker, 50, in whose care the youths had been intrusted, is alive, but the shock of the tragedy temporarily bereft him of the power of coherent speech. He could only mumble unintelligibly and groan in answer to the questions of how the accident occurred.

List of Dead and Injured.

The dead are:
WILLARD BAKER.
WAYNE LEHMAN.
EUGENE TALLEY.
WILBUR GRUBB.
All were between 14 and 18 years old.

The injured are:
WAYNE LEHMAN.
CHARLES PACKARD.
LOLLA TALLEY.
GRACE FLORY.
MAURICE LENZ.
ELLEN COWHICK.
JOSEPH BAKER, driver of the bus.

Driver Unable to Stop.

The Burbank High school cage squad had played a game at Big Prairie, O., southwest of here, and were returning to their homes at Burbank when the accident occurred.

Details of the accident were vague, but officials of the Pennsylvania at Shreve said the driver of the bus apparently was unable to stop his machine when he saw the flyer approaching.

Miss Sadye Holland was brought before the state medical committee yesterday and in a dramatic setting she told from her invalid's chair the story of her treatment by Dr. Henry J. Schireson, beauty surgeon.

The physician is on trial for revocation of his medical license, charges having been made by First Assistant Attorney General Harry A. Ash that Schireson was guilty of fraud and of gross malpractice in the case of Miss Holland. The young woman lost both her legs after an operation for bow legs.

Miss Holland said Dr. Schireson boasted that he had been summoned to treat Queen Marie of Roumania, that he had performed 52 other bowleg operations, and that he was the world's greatest plastic surgeon.

As to the claim of Dr. Schireson that he had turned over Miss Holland's case to Dr. S. D. Zaph, and had nothing more to do with it, Miss Holland testified she had not heard of Dr. Zaph until after the operation.

Enters as Doctor Testifies.

Her entry upon the scene of the hearing was a surprise to the defense and the spectators, and occurred while Dr. Schireson himself was on the witness stand. The accused physician had just begun his defense, and was telling of his birthplace, his early life as a newsboy, and his struggles for education.

Suddenly Attorney Ash arose, said, "Just a moment, please, Miss Holland is here." The room became tensely quiet, a side door from the outside corridor was opened, and attendants wheeled in Miss Holland. It was necessary for Dr. Schireson to rise to permit the wheel chair to pass by.

Miss Holland was smiling, and nodded to Mr. Ash and others whom she knew. She did not glance at her former physician. She appeared anything but the piteous spectacle that some had expected. Artificial limbs rested on the step of the chair, and Miss Holland appeared normal.

Girl Faces Schireson.

She wore a brown hat, a fur trimmed coat and a brown dress. At the direction of Attorney Ash, she was placed in a position facing Dr. Schireson.

For a moment or two the physician and his attorney, Burrill J. Cramer, tried to go ahead, but finally Mr. Cramer arose and asked Dr. M. L. Harris, chairman of the committee, to exclude Miss Holland under the same ruling by which other witnesses were removed.

"This is a cheap ballyhoo, a publicity stunt," the lawyer exclaimed. "I don't know why Mr. Ash has arranged this theatrical entrance of Miss Holland."

"There could be only one reason to object to Miss Holland's remaining here," Mr. Ash replied. "If Schireson tells the truth, he has nothing to fear. If he lies, Miss Holland is entitled to be here to hear him."

Doctor Leaves Stand.

After further heated argument, Dr. Harris ruled Miss Holland must leave. Attorney Cramer then offered to withdraw Dr. Schireson from the stand so that Miss Holland might give her testimony at once, and his suggestion was accepted by Mr. Ash.

Miss Holland was pushed toward the table at which the committee members sat, and Dr. Harris directed that she be sworn.

"I can't stand up," Miss Holland said. So, sitting in her chair, Miss Holland held up her right hand and swore to tell the truth.

Mr. Ash began questioning her. Miss Holland made responses in a clear, firm voice. She appeared deeply interested in the proceedings, and made efforts to "please everybody," as she put it. She wanted to refer to notes in her hand, but Mr. Cramer objected to this.

Questioned by Attorney.

"Well, I have a pretty good memory," she said, and the questioning by Mr. Ash went on, in part as follows:

Q.—State what conversation you had with Dr. Schireson on your first visit to him. A.—I told the doctor I had a scar on my arm, caused by a kettle of boiling water falling on me, and asked him if he could remove it, and make the arm look as my other did. He said he could. I told him my legs didn't appear straight, and I

Washington, D. C., Jan. 3.—[Special.]—America's first building, the national capitol, was temporarily endangered tonight by a fire which burned for a half hour in the south wing document store room before it was extinguished. The damage was placed at around $25,000.

The fire, the first in the capitol for many years, created unusual excitement because it occurred so soon after one destroying the exterior of the White House executive offices Christmas eve. Many jumped at the conclusion that both were of incendiary origin. Both the capitol and White House were burned by British troops during the war of 1812.

For the most part, the blaze was confined to the storage room and an improvised artist's studio connected with it. The two rooms are on the attic floor adjacent to the center rotunda on the house of representatives side of the building.

Water Damage Heavy.

Although the inside of the upper rooms were wrecked, the damage was caused largely by thousands of gallons of water poured through the roof by firemen. Walls and floors in the offices and library rooms below were soaked, and it was feared that paintings in the rotunda may be damaged. The entire building was filled with acrid smoke.

How the fire originated remained a mystery, but Gus Cook, assistant capital architect, after an inspection, expressed the opinion that it started from a lighted cigaret or cigar thrown in a waste basket.

Between 10,000 and 15,000 Washington residents, attracted by the exciting word that the capitol was aflame, watched the spectacle, and from their viewpoint it was a thrilling sight. Columns of smoke, penetrated by an occasional burst of flame, erupted from the roof and for miles along the avenues centering at the capitol, it appeared that the dome was burning.

Scene Spectacular One.

Firemen's floodlights, throwing the entire front of the building into bold relief, together with flarelights on the roof and photographers' flashlights, transformed the grounds into something resembling a Hollywood movie lot at night.

John Hineberger and John L. Bass, capitol police guards, discovered the fire about 7:15 p. m. and turned in the alarm. They said it appeared to have been burning for some time.

Charles E. Mobely, an artist working late in the studio touching up state department portraits, was the only casualty. W. E. Hatcher, a clerk in the office of Representative John Garner [Dem., Tex.], was found by firemen in the studio overcome by the smoke. He was not seriously hurt.

Play Hose from Above.

Unable to reach hydrants connected with the building's water tank, firemen stretched hose lines from the street through the dome rotunda. Other lines were carried up the front of the building on extension ladders. Smashing through the skylights, the firemen played the water directly into the burning rooms.

The papers consisted largely of house and senate documents of early congress and none was especially valuable. A few years ago the document room had been cleaned up and several historic papers, including the original Monroe Doctrine, removed.

Assistant Architect Cook stated that repair work will begin tomorrow. He said he believed the building will be completely repaired before Monday, when congress reconvened.

RUSSELL TAKES QUICK ACTION ON COUNCIL'S CUTS

1,100 Other City Employes Out.

JOBLESS!

At Illinois and Clark streets they saw two gunmen in flight after robbing Nelson's restaurant, 446 North Clark street. Kolgraff pursued and captured Beaufort Powell, 19 years old, 809 South State street, while the other robber escaped when the policemen stumbled on the icy street. Through Powell's confession, the fugitive was subsequently arrested by Lamb. He is James Clark, 28 years old, 515 North Clark street.

Policemen Lamb and Kolgraff turned their prisoners over to the detective bureau. Then they gave up their stars, pistols and clubs to their commanding officer. They were among the 473 policemen dismissed by reason of the city council's failure to appropriate sufficient money to maintain the Chicago police department. Lamb is the sole support of his mother, Mrs. Mary Lamb, whose sight was destroyed a year ago when a bomb was exploded in the neighboring home of Dr. William H. Reid.

Police Commissioner Russell discharged 473 policemen last night in compliance with the 1930 appropriation passed early yesterday morning by the city council.

Besides the police, about 1,100 employes were discharged from other city departments, and it is estimated that at least 1,100 more must go before the pay rolls fit the budget.

Fire Commissioner Goodrich for a time planned the discharge of 235 firemen, but decided later there was too much responsibility attached to take such action on a few hours' notice. He will decide today whether to take the chance of running his department at its present capacity as long as possible.

The policemen who became civilians out of a job this morning were those added to the force on July 1. They had just completed their probationary service of six months. Russell said he would ask the Association of Commerce to arrange an employment bureau to find jobs for these men until the time comes when they can be reinstated.

Calls Discharge "Unnecessary."

Russell's discharge order was termed "unnecessary" by Ald. John S. Clark [30th], chairman of the council finance committee. Clark said the council did not dictate such action. The budget allows for the same number of policemen as Chicago had last year, but does not provide sufficient funds to pay all for a full year.

Commissioner Russell said he dared not comply with the mandate of the council that he charge $1 an hour for special details of police for such purposes as guarding pay rolls. He is in the position of an army commander in time of war, he said, who would deploy his own men in any number needed at a point of threatened attack, and pay rolls are always a threatened point of attack.

Plans to Save 245 Men.

Instead of eliminating 718 policemen to keep his pay roll strictly within the terms of the budget, Commissioner Russell said he was going as far as he dared in curtailing the force by 473 men. He hoped to make up the difference by other measures, he said.

The average loss of men to the department each year, due to deaths, resignations and discharges, is 200, Russell explained, but as some of the men lost work a part of the year, the annual salvage is equivalent to the wages of 100 policemen for a year. That number added to the 473 would still cause the commissioner's pay roll to be in excess of the budget, so his other money saving orders were these:

Six deputy commissioners are reduced in rank but left in temporary command of their present assignments. Two temporary captains were reduced to lieutenants but left at their present commands as acting captains at lieutenant's pay.

All Furloughs Canceled.

All furloughs are canceled for 1930. Those wishing to take the usual 15 day vacation may do so but without pay.

No pay will be granted for absence, except under the following circumstances: Injury on duty, death in the immediate family of the policeman, or quarantine. The previous custom has been to allow for 15 days sick leave to all members of the department.

An effort will be made to rid the department of some or all of the members over 62 years of age.

Some police stations are to be closed, thereby adding the number of policemen required to man a station, such as desk sergeant, lockup keeper, and operator, to those available for street duty.

Plan to Cut Detective Squads.

An arrangement that may be made, but has not yet been ordered, is the reduction of the number of men in a detective bureau squad from five to four.

Nine station engineers were ordered discharged and eleven janitors were also made jobless by Russell's order. Some scrubwomen were to be added to the dismissal list.

The commissioner issued his orders after a long conference with Corporation Counsel Ettelson, and later with Ettelson's brother, Leonard Ettelson; the three civil service commissioners; and John Richert, chief of the council finance committee staff. Inasmuch as the older policemen could not be retired without civil service hearings, it was decided that the only men subject to immediate removal without a trial were those most recently added to the force.

Commissioner Russell did not consult Mayor Thompson about his decision. Neither did Commissioner Goodrich, although they took opposite courses of action. Both, however, received advice from the city controller's office, and Commissioner Goodrich had the benefit of the opinion of Ald. Clark.

The Aldermanic Viewpoint.

The aldermanic view was that the mandate directing department heads to reduce their staffs to comply with the terms of the budget, did not apply to the police and fire departments. The aldermen argued that the police and fire commissioners were left in the position of going ahead with a full force, at least until July 1, when, if money could be found, a supplemental appropriation might be made.

Commissioner Goodrich called into conference his deputy, Edward A. Maloney; Fire Marshal Michael J. Corrigan; Fire Marshal Daniel J. Carmody, Chief Clerk George F. Curry and Curry's assistant, James Sullivan.

They estimated that the fire department appropriation made it necessary to drop about 235 men—the last appointed to be discharged in accordance with the dates of their appointments. This, the conferees decided, would necessitate the closing of about 20, or perhaps 23, fire stations, operating some fire apparatus with companies of eight to ten men, or, under the platoon system, four or five on duty each day at a station.

See Boost in Risk Rates.

The belief at the conference was that rates of fire insurance would immediately be raised so high that Chicago would have to pay additional premiums of perhaps $1,000,000 a year, or more than the cost of the 235 firemen. The national board of fire underwriters had already held that the present Chicago fire department is not up to standard, Goodrich and his assistants declared.

Ernest Palmer, manager of the Chicago branch of that association, served notice last night that if the reduction is made he will at once ask that a new survey be made.

Deputy Commissioner Maloney called Deputy Controller Victor S. Petterson and asked whether the fire department pay roll for January would be honored if it is sent to the controller without reductions. Petterson said the men would be paid.

1,100 OTHERS OUT

Dismissal slips were handed out to nearly 1,100 city employés yesterday in departments other than the police and fire departments. Another group of 1,100 employés are awaiting the ax, its fall being delayed until department heads can determine definitely what forces they can retain under this year's appropriations of $55,264,140, adopted by the council yesterday morning after an all night session.

Department heads approached their task of slashing the pay rolls with trepidation. It was no easy task, they said, to oust the old timers in city service who thought they were guaranteed a lifetime job under the civil service laws, or to thrust out political appointees whose aid is needed at election time.

Obey Council Orders.

None, however, disobeyed the council order to put the budget reductions into effect immediately. They could have disregarded the order until Jan. 8, the next council meeting, to see if the mayor vetoes the budget. However, if there were no veto, the department heads would have spent more of their appropriation to Jan. 15 than was authorized and would be held responsible.

In the departments where only a few of the workers were discarded the lists of those to be discharged were made rapidly. In other departments, where there are many temporary employés and in which a large number of workers are used for only part of a year, the full effect of the new budget could not be determined easily. This muddle was apparent in the bureau of streets and the absence of Commissioner of Public Works Wolfe on a vacation in the south and of Deputy Commissioner Moore, ill at home, delayed a decision.

Where the Ax Falls.

Some of the departments and the number of employés they lost are as follows:

| Department— | No. of employes. |
| Local improvements | 100 |
| Controller | 35 |
| Bureau of streets [approximate] | 500 |
| Law department | 25 |
| Health | 179 |
| Building | 11 |
| Smoke | 11 |
| Boiler inspection | 11 |
| Public service | 19 |
| License | 37 |
| City clerk [extra help] | 9 |
| City collector [extra help] | 16 |
| City sealer | 13 |

Where lump sum appropriations have been made to departments for a particular group of workers or to a council committee for employment of special counsel at per diem rates of pay, the number of employés actually eliminated cannot be determined, the budget experts said. Some of the high priced experts now on the pay rolls may be eliminated and those that might have been given work if the appropriations were larger will not get city retainers.

The positions of six ward superintendents were the most important abolished in the bureau of streets. Seventy-three section foremen, who work in the wards, also are among those on the dismissal list. These with a number of inspectors and laborers make the total of 500 eliminated.

Health Commissioner Kegel lost two deputy commissionerships and the two physicians, Dr. Issac Rawlings and Dr. John M. Murphy, who have been receiving the pay, are demoted to bureau chiefs. A director of health education, 49 physicians, 43 nurses, 20 health inspectors, 15 dairy inspectors, 17 food inspectors and a miscellany of clerks and stenographers are also on the dismissal slate.

In the three city law departments, five lawyers, 18 investigators, one stenographer and one law clerk were eliminated. City Controler Schmidt let out 19 civil service and 16 temporary employés, while the board of local improvements gave the pink slips to 55 inspectors and 45 clerks.

Others who were told not to return this morning included 11 building inspectors, six smoke observers, five junior mechanical engineers in the smoke department, eight boiler and two cooling inspectors and one clerk in the boiler inspection department, and 37 license investigators and supervisors. In the department of weights and measures seven overloading inspectors and 11 deputy inspectors were ousted.

Prosecutor Indignant at Reward for Gems' Return

New York, Jan. 3.—[Special.]—Assistant District Attorney Harold W. Hastings became indignant today when informed that the Federal Insurance company, in a letter to Commissioner Grover Whalen, inclosing a $5,000 reward for the recovery of the $30,000 pearl necklace lost by Mrs. Mary H. Gilmore, Nov. 22, had suggested that $1,000 be given the prosecutor.

"I never heard of this suggestion before," declared Mr. Hastings. "I will not take a penny. All I did was to fulfill my duties. I am not a gratuity seeker."

The chief object of the museum, the announcement said, would not be to serve as "a repository of what American artists have done in the past," but to carry on "a vigorous campaign of acquisition in the effort to discover from talents and to stimulate the creative spirit of the artist before it has been deadened by old age."

Police started a search for Charles Francis Lindsay, the woman's husband, believing him to be the bandit.

JARECKI AGAINST SEPARATE VOTE ON PROPOSITIONS

The state law requires that city bond propositions be printed on the same ballot with county propositions and in view of the present financial condition of both Chicago and Cook county any move to separate them would be inadvisable even if legal. This is the view of County Judge Jarecki in an opinion written for Michael J. Faherty, president of the board of local improvements.

Judge Jarecki cited a Supreme court ruling which held that "all propositions should be printed upon a ballot separate from the ballot upon which the candidates' names were printed, but all propositions upon the same ballot." He pointed out the danger of ballots being overlooked where a great number were issued and continued:

"The cost of printing and posting separate ballots for county and city propositions would be much greater than when both are printed upon the same ballot, in view of which I would not be justified in asking the board of election commissioners, especially under the present financial stringency of the city and county, to print separate ballots."

Auto Driver Is Arrested for Bombing Street Car

New Orleans, La., Jan. 3.—(AP)—Police late tonight arrested Vincent Vineza, 23, jitney driver, after two persons said they saw him bomb a street car. Vineza was arrested after two persons told police they saw him place a package on the car tracks at Magazine and Thalia streets a few moments before a street car was blown up there two months ago.

GIVE UP $50,000 SCHOOL AUTOS, IS PLEA TO BOARD

Trustees Make $83,635 Budget Reductions.

The finance committee of the school board was asked yesterday to make a saving of $50,000 in the 1930 budget by eliminating the automobiles for trustees and department heads which are maintained by school funds. The economy measure was not adopted.

The recommendation was made by President H. Wallace Caldwell when the committee of six Thompson appointees met in an effort to reduce the tentative school budget which now totals more than $87,000,000. The trustees on Thursday cut $5,000 from the appropriations, but offset this with the addition of a single item of $700,000.

Reductions of $7,000,000 must be made in the budget's educational fund if the schools are to remain open after Nov. 1, the board has been informed. At yesterday's session the trustees made a net reduction of $83,635.

$24,000 Paid to Chauffeurs.

President Caldwell's proposal to abolish the official cars was brought forth when the committee came across an item of $24,000 in chauffeurs' salaries. He declared every item must be eliminated that does not benefit the school children.

He was seconded by three other committee members and at least two department heads. However, upon the suggestion of James A. Hemingway, chairman of the committee, the matter was deferred until the other four trustees, who are not members of the committee, can be consulted.

Approximately $63,000 of yesterday's budget trims were in the educational fund which finished last year with a deficit of $8,000,000. The remainder was cut from the building fund.

The legal department appropriation was cut from $147,148 to $116,108, a saving of $31,040 on the proposed budget, but only $9,099 less than the appropriation for last year. Five assistant attorneys and three other employés were dropped. This leaves Attorney James Todd and his two special assistants with only one assistant attorney.

Trim Engineering Costs.

Twelve employés were dropped from the bureau of operative engineering at a saving of $34,900, but the reduction still leaves this appropriation $77,725 more than last year. Other cuts included: Printing plant, $6,035; bureau of finance, $965; bureau of real estate, $250, and maintenance of educational administration building, $8,545.

Consideration of the department of architecture and bureau of repairs was deferred until a report is submited by a special committee of architects and engineers. Trustee Lewis E. Myers said the report will practically eliminate the entire appropriation of $876,405 for the architectural department.

The trustees failed to consider an appropriation of $7,400 for paneling in the office of President Caldwell. Mrs. W. S. Hefferan, a school trustee, but not a member of the committee, who protested against this expenditure Thursday, was absent.

Dry Agent Hurt in Blast While Dismantling House

Freeport, Ill., Jan. 3.—(AP)—A gas explosion in a house which he and four other Chicago prohibition agents were dismantling late today caused Einar Anderson, 36, to be severely cut and burned about the face and hands. The men were tearing down an electrical plant when the blast occurred, resulting in a fire that destroyed the house.

It was the second raid that the agents had made at Freeport today. In the first one they seized distilling equipment which they valued at $20,000. The owners are thought to have escaped through a tunnel leading from the basement still to a garage.

PARTS OF AIRPLANES IN WHICH TEN DIED BROUGHT TO SURFACE

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 3.—[Special.]—Two United States navy mine sweepers, the Brant and Tern, late today brought up portions of the wreckage of the two movie monoplanes that crashed in the air over the ocean near Redondo yesterday and hurled ten persons to death.

When the navy craft, which were operating in contact with three coast guard cutters, speed boats, and twenty-three airplanes, brought the wreckage part way from the ocean floor to the surface the crafts' steel cable lost its grip and the plane debris settled back to the 350 foot deep sea floor. One airplane landing wheel, with tire fully inflated, and a strut from a landing gear came to the surface with the cable.

There were no indications of fire on other portions of debris that came up.

Until the bodies of Kenneth Hawks, movie director, who headed the ill fated air camera fleet, and his companions are recovered inquest and funeral arrangements will wait.

TWO DIE IN FIRE IN FASHIONABLE NEW YORK HOTEL

New York, Jan. 3.—[Special.]—A man and a woman lost their lives tonight in a fire accompanied by an explosion, in the huge and luxurious Hotel Marguery, one of the most exclusive in the city.

The flames themselves were confined to the basement and sub-basement of the hotel, which occupied the whole block bounded by Park and Madison avenues and 47th and 48th streets.

Fumes and smoke, however, poured up through the hotel's eleven stories and routed its hundreds of residents, including some of the wealthiest men and women of the city.

The dead were:

William Cass, 50, elevator operator.

Neither of these was a victim of the flames themselves, which never got above the basement. Their deaths were attributed to the fact that the electric current was cut off, throwing the whole west half of the building into darkness and stopping the elevators.

Mrs. Lichtenstein was ill in bed in her apartment on the eleventh floor. Her husband was with her in the apartment when the alarm was sounded. Mr. Lichtenstein helped his wife to the elevator, but it went down only one floor when the power stopped. The ill and elderly woman then walked down the long flights and collapsed when she reached Madison avenue. An ambulance surgeon found that she had died of an overtaxed heart.

Cass, the elevator operator, was in his car when the current was shut off and was imprisoned in the shaft between the third and fourth floors. He died of suffocation in the smoke that poured up from the basements.

A fire captain and eight of his men were overcome after an hour's struggle in the fume filled basement and treated at an emergency hospital set up in the street.

Not Only Steal $50,000 in Gems, but Lock Family Out

New York, Jan. 3.—[Special.]—Burglars who broke into the eighth floor apartment of Jules Muller today not only stole jewelry valued at more than $50,000, but locked the occupants out by fastening the chain lock of the door. Mrs. Muller who had gone motoring at about 2:30 p. m., with a friend, taking her daughter, Diana Ruth, 6 months old, with her, returned at 4:30 o'clock. She was unable to get into her apartment. She called the superintendent and had to wait until he had sawed the chain before she could enter.

FAIL TO INDICT NEW QUIZ ASKED IN JOB INQUIRY;

Grand Jurors Recommend Further Probing.

The investigation into alleged irregularities by the old civil service commission, which was conducted by the office of State's Attorney John A. Swanson, resulted only in a letter from the grand jury yesterday recommending that the inquiry be pursued further. The grand jury had heard many witnesses—policemen, politicians and public officials, during the month, but apparently decided that enough evidence did not exist at this time for indictments.

The procedure was the same as that followed several months ago in the so-called coal investigation. At that time the jury spent much time listening to independent coal dealers tell of alleged collusion between the Chicago Coal Merchants' association and George Barker, ex-convict and racketeer, who is a business agent for the coal teamsters' union.

Coal Inquiry Dropped.

State's Attorney Swanson was sent a letter by that jury recommending that the inquiry be continued before succeeding grand juries and if necessary the matter be referred to federal authorities. As far as has been made public at least, nothing has been done since.

Assistant State's Attorney George Lavin, who has conducted the civil service inquiry, however, said he is going to stick to the investigation and hopes for results in the future. The letter of the grand jurors over the signature of Homer Bangs, vice president of the Illinois Bell Telephone company, is as follows:

"After listening to the evidence submitted to the December, 1929, grand jury by Assistant State's Attorney Lavin we are convinced that certain irregularities have been committed in the office of the civil service commission prior to the incumbency of Maj. Ames and we therefore conclude that the success of the civil service investigation is of such importance to the citizenry of this community that it prompts us to act with caution and prudence.

Want Thorough Inquiry.

"We are of the opinion that unless an emergency exists, such as the statute of limitations, that every phase of the civil service should be sifted thoroughly and all ramifications and irregularities brought to the surface before indictments are voted upon.

"We are morally certain that if this investigation continues in the same energetic and able manner that has been demonstrated to us that it cannot help but result in permanent benefit to the city of Chicago.

Ask Continued Activity.

"We recommend that the state's attorney's office continue its investigation with the object in view to unearth what further irregularities have taken place so that the evidence so far submitted, as well as any other matters unearthed may be properly passed upon at some future date."

Thomas J. Houston, former president of the board, and Edward J. Denemark, former and present commissioner, were before the grand jury under immunity waiver along with other witnesses. Bishop Archibald Carey, colored member of the board, is the only one who has been indicted.

ALL SENATE FACTIONS WILL SPEED TARIFF BILL ON TO PASSAGE

Washington, D. C., Jan. 3.—(AP)—United support by senate Republicans of the pledge to give the long pending tariff bill undisputed right of way henceforth will be asked at a party conference on Monday which was called today by Senator Watson of Indiana, the Republican leader.

Already senate leaders of all factions have given their pledge that the tariff would be kept constantly before the senate until disposed of. It appeared certain that a final drive will be opened on Monday for completion of this legislation.

Despite the wide disparity between the bill being prepared by the senate coalition for agriculture and the measure of the Republican house giving general increases in tariff rates, apparently the administration is going to seek a solution and the enactment of a bill.

NEGRO CONFESSES ATTACKING GIRL AT I. C. STATION

Alex Ganes, 27 year old Negro, confessed last night that he attacked Miss Charlotte Van Der Hack, 17 year old student, 5458 Hyde Park boulevard, at the 87th street station of the Illinois Central railroad on Thursday night. Ganes' confession was made after Miss Van Der Hack had identified him as her assailant and two men had identified him as a Negro whom they had seen loitering about the station on Thursday evening.

Ganes was also being questioned about the murder of Miss Laura Buchholz, who was beaten to death in Blue Island on the night of Jan. 23, 1929. He said he had been in Blue Island three or four times, but could not recall the dates of his visits, and denied that he was connected in any way with the Buchholz murder. The Chicago police asked the Blue Island police to send witnesses to the detective bureau in an effort to identify him with the case.

The Negro is a powerful man, 6 feet 2 inches tall and weighing 218 pounds, and it was Miss Van Der Hack's description of her assailant as a huge man that led to his arrest in the Illinois Central shanty at 90th street and Drexel avenue, where he lives. He is employed by the railroad as a motor car driver.

NEW YEAR'S EVE RAID MAY CLOSE SOUTH BEND CAFE

Howard Long, deputy prohibition administrator at South Bend, said that a warrant had been issued for the arrest of Wun Wai Lee, owner of the café, and that he would ask United States Attorney Oliver M. Loomis to close the place. Long said his agents had seized a basketful of liquor bottles Tuesday night after the management had been warned twice.

WIFE WHO SLEW HUSBAND LOCKED IN COUNTY JAIL

State Makes No Move for Insanity Test.

Mrs. Florence Leeney, Chicago's most recent husband killer, was locked in the county jail last night and [illegible] was in a position to refuse an audience with any alienists that the state's attorney's office might send to examine her. The customery defense of insanity was indicated during an inquest on Thursday which resulted in the woman being held for the murder of her husband, Maurice, after an all night quarrel in their home at 5336 Drexel avenue. Their quarrel was said to have been caused by his intimacies with another woman.

Leeney, a trucking contractor, will be buried in Evergreen Park cemetery this morning after requiem high mass at 9:30 o'clock at St. Killian's church at Aberdeen and 87th street. He was 39 years old.

Examined by Alienists.

The widow's family had her examined by an alienist only three hours after the shooting early Thursday, but the state's attorney's office, even yesterday, showed no immediate signs of following the same procedure. Asked if a psychiatrist would be sent to examine her before she entered jail First Assistant State's Atorney John E. Northup said:

"O, I suppose the man assigned to those things will take care of it when he gets around to it."

Being in a jail cell, Mrs. Leeney now has the right to see only whom she choses and may refuse to talk to state's alienists if she wishes.

Meanwhile Lieut. Charles Grattan of the Hyde Park police was continuing his investigations into the manner by which Leeney was slain. It was contended by both Mrs. Leeney and her daughter, Florence, that the contractor had been chasing his wife about the apartment most of the night with a pistol in his hand. The wife said she shot him in fear of her life, but could not remember if he was rushing toward her when she fired.

Theory on Shooting.

Lieut. Grattan testified at the inquest that he believed Leeney was shot while stretched on a davenport. It was pointed out that the three wounds found in Leeney's head were so close together as to make it difficult for them to have been inflicted while he was standing. If it should be proved that he was shot while asleep or in a drunken stupor, the plea of self-defense would be obviated.

O'BRIEN'S FATHER AND DORR'S WIFE CLASH AT TRIAL

Slaying Victim's Kin Bar Pictures of Defendant.

CRIMINAL COURT.

Milton Rayfield and Raymond Baker, robbery, sentenced to 1 to 20 years each in Pontiac reformatory by Judge John P. McGoorty.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

Bitterness and resentment which they had suppressed ever since the slaying of their son, William J. O'Brien, on Nov. 20, flared up yesterday in a dramatic clash between Mr. and Mrs. Don O'Brien and Samuel Howard Dorr, the confessed killer, and his wife, Mrs. Rose Dorr. Mrs. Dorr is standing by her husband. A jury is being chosen for his murder trial.

Court adjourned early yesterday afternoon, and only a few spectators remained in the courtroom of Judge Harry B. Miller when suddenly the shrill voice of Mrs. Dorr and the booming tones of O'Brien were raised. The crowd just outside the doors surged back in an effort to enter the room again. Deputy sheriffs rushed to keep the spectators back.

Storm Breaks Over Pictures.

The storm broke when newspaper photographers were lined up with flashguns ready and Mrs. Dorr was posing by the side of her husband for whom the state is seeking the death penalty. Her cheek was against his and her devotion to the confessed slayer was apparent in her eyes, which she could not turn from his face.

When the selection of a jury began on Thursday, Mrs. Dorr had refused to pose for pictures because she wanted to "dress up a little." Yesterday it was apparent she had made a pathetic effort to soften the lines of her face, now set in tragedy by the murder which disclosed her husband's relations with Genevieve O'Brien, widow of the slain man. Mrs. Dorr's best dress, a modest dark blue crêpe de chine trimmed with flowered material, was in evidence. Her brown felt hat she held in her lap so her hair would show. She was ready for the cameras.

The O'Briens Interrupt.

Suddenly the figures of O'Brien, his black garbed wife and their 17 year old son, Don Jr., stood between the Dorrs and the cameras.

"There won't be any pictures of that man and his wife," O'Brien cried, "not until the jury's picked. The judge has said there won't be, and there won't be while I can keep you from it!"

"Well, you're not!" O'Brien retorted.

Meanwhile deputy sheriffs ran in search of Judge Miller, and others held the doors, while Assistant State's Attorney Walker Butler went to call Assistant State's Attorney Harry Ditchburne, who, with Mr. Butler, is conducting the prosecution.

A photographer, not knowing O'Brien, asked who he was.

"He's the father of William O'Brien and he's double-crossing me!" Mrs. Dorr said, and wildly clung to Door and kissed him as Prosecutors Ditchburne and Butler ran in and called to deputies to take Dorr away. They announced there would be no pictures of the defendant with his wife until the jury was chosen.

Dorr, the only calm man in the room, walked away. Always spruce, he looked a trifle more so with his green shirt, his new haircut and his restrained but tasteful tie. He did not wilt before the stern eye of O'Brien, when the latter stood firmly between the Dorrs and the cameramen. Mrs. O'Brien stood beside her husband but said little. She let him and Dorr's wife settle matters.

Father and Wife Clash.

"You can't take my husband from me and my babies, you can't do it!" screamed Mrs. Dorr, her eyes streaming, while deputy sheriffs endeavored in vain to calm her.

"You needn't talk to me, you bunch of hypocrites!" O'Brien retorted bitterly. His son tried to quiet him and deputies warned him that he could not remain in the courtroom and make such a disturbance.

"You and your political pull kept me from testifying for him!" Mrs. Dorr cried at O'Brien in a last effort and then she sank down on a bench.

O'Brien is superintendent of warehouses for the election commission and his slain son was a clerk in the county recorder's office.

"No Pictures," Judge's Order.

As the clamor was dying down Judge Miller, in his shirtsleeves, appeared in the doorway leading from his chambers and ordered, "Take Dorr out! Oh, he's gone, has he? Well, no pictures of the defendant and his wife until I say so."

At the adjournment of court no more jurors had been chosen. Only four, chosen Thursday, have been accepted and sworn in. The eight remaining veniremen who were not questioned yesterday were locked up with the four jurors until court convenes at 10 o'clock this morning. Fifty veniremen have been questioned and excused.

Hides Money

In her seventeen years of married life she received only one dress from her husband, Mrs. Mable Tagley McClatchie, 901 Sheridan road, declared yesterday in a plea for temporary alimony before Superior Judge Williams. She charged that her husband, Gilva Rae McClatchie, an office manager, was more miserly than a Scotch joke.

"He gave me from 75 cents to a dollar to buy food for the home each day," she said. "He used to hide the money in odd places of the house so that when I didn't find it we would go hungry and he would pocket the money. Once he opened a charge account at a loop store for me and when I bought a 79 cent kettle he closed the account because I was too extravagant."

Mrs. McClatchie was supported by her daughters, Virginia, 17 years old, and Mary, 13. She was married in 1910 and separated from her husband in May, 1927. Judge Williams continued the case one week. She is represented by Attorney John Johnstry.

Mother Who Killed Her Baby Is Held Insane

Recommendation was made yesterday by a coroner's jury in Waukegan that Mrs. Irene Nelson, 35 years old, 640 Skokie avenue, Highland Park, who drowned her two months old baby and tried to kill her 12 year old daughter, be committed to an institution for mental treatment. Her husband, Franklin V. Nelson, manager of the Northmoor club of Ravinia, and Dr. Daniel Rogers of Highland Park testified she had been suffering from mental ailments for several months.

BRIGGS, FAMOUS CARTOONIST OF YOU AND ME, DIES

Homely Funmaker Victim of Pneumonia at 54.

New York, Jan. 3.—[Special.]—Clare Briggs, cartoonist and creator of a score of characters who have become household words throughout the United States, died late this afternoon at the Neurological institute. He was 54 years old.

In September Mr. Briggs was admitted to Johns Hopkins hospital in Baltimore for observation and treatment of his eyes, which had been troubling him. He suffered from neuritis of the optic nerve. Later he sought relief at the Neurological institute.

It was while a patient there that he contracted pneumonia and was gravely ill three weeks ago. He rallied from his first crisis, however, and was thought to be on the road to recovery when he took a sudden turn for the worse today. Death followed in a few hours.

Chose Homely Titles.

Mr. Briggs attained a unique popularity through the accurate illustration of the homely foibles of the ordinary individual.

The series of titles which he used for his cartoons were many of them adopted as expressions in general usage. "When a Feller Needs a Friend," "Ain't It a Grand and Glorious Feeling?" and "Mr. and Mrs." are samples. The last named and his "Skinnay" were perhaps among the most popular of the stream of drawings which he turned out.

Other creations were "The Days of Real Sport," "Somebody Is Always Taking the Joy Out of Life," "How to Start the Day Wrong," "There's at Least One in Every Office," "A Handy Man Around the House," "That Guiltiest Feeling," and "Wonder What —— Is Thinking About."

Wife and Three Children Survive.

Mr. Briggs and his wife, Mrs. Marie C. Briggs, had lived apart for two years. She obtained an interlocutory decree of divorce last February. There are three children: Mrs. Reuben A. Lewis Jr., John Owen Briggs, and Ruth Clare Briggs; and three brothers, Harry, Glen, and Nathan.

Mr. Briggs was born in Reedsburg, Wis., Aug. 5, 1875, the family moving to Dixon, Ill., when he was nine year olds. At that age he had already shown a liking for drawing, and a year fater he made his first entrance into newspaper work, delivering the weekly paper at a salary of 40 cents per week.

Briggs started his career as a cartoonist on the New York Journal. Later he was sent to the Chicago American and Examiner.

Mr. Briggs remained with the Examiner until 1907. He then went to THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, where he remained until 1914, when he came back to New York again, this time under contract with the New York Tribune. He remained there, under the consolidation of the New York Herald-Tribune, up to the time of his fatal illness.

CAPTURE NEGRO RAPIST, SLAYER IN GUN BATTLE

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 3.—(AP)—Alonzo Price, 35 year old Negro, tonight confessed the slaying of Reubel Heyman and the rape of Mrs. Dorothy Burgess, Heyman's companion, after he had been captured by a policeman during a running gun fight at a railroad station at Lutherville, during which he was probably fatally wounded. The policeman, Talbot Kelly, was slightly wounded.

Price's confession corroborated the story told by Mrs. Burgess. She said she and Heyman had been sitting in their parked machine when Price, with a pistol in his hand, got in and directed Heyman to a lonely spot.

On their arrival there Price ordered Heyman from the machine and as he turned after getting out shot him twice. He then attacked Mrs. Burgess. Afterwards he sat down in the car with her, drew a bottle with a poison label on it from his pocket, swallowed a tablet, and sat talking, telling her his name, address, and of his services in the world war.

An hour later the headlights of an approaching automobile frightened him and he fled.

EDITH MASON'S HUSBAND DENIES REPORT OF RIFT

Dr. Bernstein Explains Separate Residences.

Miss Edith Mason, soprano of the Chicago Civic Opera company, and her husband, Dr. Maurice A. Bernstein, well known Chicago surgeon, are living apart at present, but rumors that they have "separated" are unfounded, Dr. Bernstein said yesterday. He is residing at his home in Highland Park.

Miss Mason could not be reached for a statement. A woman who answered the telephone in the singer's apartment in the Belden-Stratford hotel, 2300 Lincoln Park West, said that Miss Mason had told her "to tell all reporters who called that the whole thing is too ridiculous to discuss."

"I think it would be a good idea to publish something to clear up this matter, as the rumor that we are estranged is becoming so general," Dr. Bernstein said. "It should be stopped. So far as I know there is absolutely nothing to it."

Seeks Quiet, Bernstein Says.

He explained that he had taken up his former residence at 1850 Kincaid avenue, Highland Park, because he was writing and preparing lectures and needed the quiet that could not be found in a city apartment where musicians were practicing most of the time.

"There is nothing unusual in my spending the greater part of my time in Highland Park to avoid the confusion and noise of the city apartment where people are coming and going." Dr. Berntsein said. "It is simply that I cannot work in such confusion. I visit my wife and see her often. I am very much in love with her, and I think she still is in love with me."

More than a week ago, in his office at 104 South Michigan avenue, Dr. Bernstein said that he was separated from Miss Mason only during the holidays, while he was entertaining Orson Wells, whom he described as the son of a Chicago man, a close friend, while the boy was home from school for the holidays. Young Wells had contracted a cold, which upset Miss Mason, who recently had recovered from a cold, Dr. Bernstein explained.

Goes to Highland Park.

"Opera singers must be extremely careful with their throats," he said at that time. "Naturally, I didn't want to impose myself on her under the circumstances. So I took the boy and went to my home in Highland Park, where I shall stay until he recovers. He is not in bed, but he still has a little infection."

Later Dr. Bernstein said that the boy, after visting his father, had returned to school. He said that the visit had caused absolutely no strain between him and Miss Mason and that any supposition that it had was "foolish."

The woman who answered the telephone in Miss Mason's apartment said she was the opera singer's secretary, but declined to give her name. When asked last night if Dr. Bernstein was living in Highland Park, she replied: "Yes, and you know why, don't you? His adopted son, who is visiting him over the holidays, contracted a terrible cold, a perfectly awful one, and Miss Mason has a little girl, and she was afraid both for the little girl and herself."

Dr. Bernstein said Orson Wells is not his adopted son, but a boy in whom he is interested. Miss Mason's daughter, Graziella, is 4 years old.

Miss Mason and Dr. Bernstein were married secretly last Oct. 6 at Antioch. The marriage was not revealed until Oct. 22. On July 20 Miss Mason was granted a divorce from Giorgio Polacco, conductor of the Chicago Civic Opera company, and was awarded the custody of Graziella.

Miss Mason had been married twice before her marriage to Polacco on June 29, 1919. She was married in St. Louis as a girl and some time after divorcing her first husband became the wife of Norman Mason, Chicago artist. Mr. Mason obtained a divorce in Boston.

HUSBAND'S IDLENESS PARTS PAIR AFTER 49 YEARS OF WEDDED LIFE

For 13 years Cuona Caporale, 70 years old, worked in the stock yards, carefully saving for a rainy day. When he was laid off three years ago because of a weak heart he had $1,000 saved. That would be enough, he thought, to bury himself and his wife, Teresa, 64 years old, to whom he had been married 49 years, and there would be interest money to pay for their small needs.

So the Caporales joined the household of their daughter, Mrs. Joe Panico, 632 South Miller street, where the family already numbered six. Things began to go wrong. It was easier to quarrel when the two were together all day long. Teresa was troubled because Cuona earned no additional income. Last May she moved to the home of another daughter and filed suit for separate maintenance. On Thursday Judge Sabath reminded the two that they had spent nearly 50 years together, and told them to try to make up within two weeks.

"All she wants is money," Cuona said over and over yesterday, shaking his head sadly. "I gave my wife $40 of the interest, keeping only $20 for my tobacco and clothes. And now she wants half the money I saved to bury us. If she'd come back to me—but I'm an old man and can't find a job."

Philanthropy News Will Be Released Monday.

New York, Jan. 3.—[Special.]—Calvin Coolidge, Julius Rosenwald and Alfred E. Smith, who have met every fortnight or so for the last six months to discuss how to dispose of the $8,000,000 estate which Conrad Hubert bequeathed to philanthropy, reached a decision today at a final meeting in the Bankers' Trust company.

After lunching, the trio gave an audience to the press and announced that their decision would be available for publication Monday morning.

Reporter Provokes Debate.

This audience resolved itself into an exposition of the Smith and Coolidge view on publicity. Mr. Smith carried the day.

"You say we can't use any of this till Monday, governor?" asked a reporter who wanted an immediate story. "Can't we print what is said here today?"

"I don't think that would hurt the story," put in Mr. Coolidge. "I think it would do it good."

Rosenwald Joins in Laughter.

"But it wouldn't be as much of a story as the fellows want," insisted the governor. "If they print all this tomorrow there won't be any life left in the story for Monday, nothing but a dry statement of benefactions. We want a splurge on the front page, but that way it'll be stuck back next to O'Sullivan's rubber heels."

GEN. FOREMAN TO TOUR ORIENT; LEAVES TONIGHT

Maj. Gen. Milton J. Foreman will depart tonight for New York, whence he will sail on Monday with two companions for four months in India, Africa, Siam and the orient. He will be accompanied by Dr. Robert B. Preble and Dr. George Paull Marquis.

The party intends penetrating into the interiors of Africa and India purely on an exploration trip and not with any designs on big game, Gen. Foreman said last night.

"We'll do a lot of shooting—not with guns, but with cameras," he said. "I'm going to do considerable amateur picture taking and I don't know just when I'll get back. I'll say three or four months and I'd make it longer only I'm afraid of what the people around the office might say if I admitted it."

Gen. Foreman and his party will leave on the Gotham special of the Pennsylvania railroad at 9 o'clock tonight.

Mitchell to Start Drive in Washington.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 3.—[Special.]—Two Hoover cabinet members, Attorney General William D. Mitchell and Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon, leaped into the prohibition melee today with action designed to help the President's law enforcement program.

In line with Mr. Hoover's twice repeated pronouncement that the nation's capital should be a "model" city, the attorney general recommended drastic changes to tighten up Washington's prohibition enforcement. He asked for two new district judges, a larger police court, stricter penalties for several types of dry law violations, and for revision of the local dry act to make every policeman a prohibition agent.

Oiling Enforcement Machinery.

At the same time, Secretary Mellon came out definitely for the first time in favor of the transfer of the entire prohibition unit from the treasury department to the department of justice. This is one of the recommendations expected from the President's law enforcement commission.

The moves of both of the cabinet officers were looked upon as evidence that the departmental machinery already is being oiled and keyed up for the administration's nationwide effort to make the prohibition laws really prohibit. Legislation to this end is expected to be a storm center of controversy when congress reconvenes after the holidays, as indicated by the sharp preliminary skirmishing during the last two weeks.

Other Developments of Day.

Further developments in the situation today were:

Secretary Mellon issued an additional statement justifying the Black Duck killings by coast guardsmen off Newport on the ground that "you cannot break up liquor smuggling without the use of force."

Representative John C. Schafer [Rep., Wis.] announced that he will introduce in the house next week a bill to make federal dry agents who violate the search and seizure provisions of the prohibition law guilty of a felony.

Representative Schafer, one of the outstanding wet leaders of the house, indicated by his announcement today that he does not intend to leave all of the aggression in congress on the dry side. His bill, to make prohibition agents who enter private homes without a warrant guilty of a felony he believes would amount only to fair play.

"If the man who violates the Volstead law in selling a drink of liquor is a felon," he argued, "surely, the agent who violates an even more fundamental law, the search and seizure act, should suffer an equal penalty."

Borah Denies Mabel Helped.

Senator William E. Borah [Rep., Idaho], who recently charged "open saloons" are running under the noses of district attorneys, denied reports that his ammunition came from Mrs. Mabel Wildebrandt, former assistant attorney general.

In answer to Borah's assertion that the industrial alcohol situation is "a scandal," it was stated at prohibition headquarters that there will be a 15 per cent decrease in the production of alcohol for 1930.

Locally, the Mitchell recommendations for drying up the District of Columbia focused the most attention due to the succession of crime and liquor scandals here during the last few months, the trail, several times, leading to the doors of the capitol.

In his message to congress, President Hoover singled out the district as an object of special atention for the law enforcers and Mr. Mitchell's recommendations today were seen as directly in line with the President's wishes.

Based on Howell Bill.

The recommendations were in the form of a report from the attorney general to Senator Arthur Capper [Rep., Kas.], chairman of the senate district committee which handles local legislation. They included a draft of a new prohibition act based on a bill submitted by Senator Robert B. Howell [Neb.].

"We used Senator Howell's bill as a basis in order that those interested in this matter might work along the same lines and avoid confusion," Mr. Mitchell explained. "Many things in this bill are more in the nature of clarification of existing law than new legislation. It enlarges and more sharply defines the duties and power of the district commissioners and the police of the district in matters of prohibition, and in that respect it responds to the suggestion of the President in his recent message to congress."

Officers' Jobs in Balance.

The proposed new law sets a fine of $100 to $500 and makes forfeitable the office of any policeman or other district official who shall fail to investigate and report prohibition violations to the district attorney. Only a few specially delegated police now have the power to make arrests under the Volstead act.

Explaining his recommendation for two additional judges of the District Supreme court, Mr. Mitchell said he could not "lay too much emphasis on the effect of congestion in the courts on the enforcement of the criminal laws, including prohibition." He admitted that there is a "very serious congestion" of prohibition cases in the courts, adding that "the District of Columbia is not the only place where such conditions exist."

The proposed bill would provide especially severe penalties for the sale of liquor to minors, setting a minimum penalty of $500 fine or three months in jail for the first offense. It also provides stiffer penalties for appearing in public or driving a motor vehicle in an intoxicated condition.

Give Bill Right of Way.

The Mitchell recommendations are expected to be speeded through the district committee with little delay. Chairman Capper, a bone dry, is known to be sympathetic with the President's wishes and probably will give the new dry bill the right of way.

Secretary Mellon's statement expressing his willingness to foreift control of the prohibition unit was forthcoming shortly after his arrival from a sea trip in the Bahaman waters. Although he was not known to have had a conference with the President, it was believed that his announcement was prompted by disclosures that concentration of prohibition authority in the department of justice is what the law enforcement commission will recommend.

Mr. Mellon pointed out that the department of justice prosecutes the cases that are developed by the prohibition bureau, and expressed the belief that better coöperation could be obtained if both divisions were under the same department.

The statement of Mr. Mellon justifying the use of a machine gun by the Newport (R. I.) coast guardsmen, resulting in the death of three rum smugglers, was in line with those previously made by Rear Admiral Frederick Billard, coast guard commandant, and Assistant Secretary Seymour Lowman.

Justifies Three Killings.

"The coast guard," Mr. Mellon said, "is authorized under the law to use force to stop boats. If they could not shoot they could not carry out their instructions. They give warnings and pursue, and if a boat does not stop it is necessary to use force. In these cases the men were violators of the law. They were smuggling liquor and it was the coast guard's duty to capture them."

Asserting that all reports of the coast guard indicated that "everything was regular and that they were justified in what they were doing," Mr. Mellon added: "Our men only use force where it is absolutely necessary. The coast guard gave this boat warning and it was endeavoring to escape, and the coast guard could do no less than they did."

REFUSED FREEDOM

George D. Shaw, world war veteran, who in 1925 killed his father, Bruce Shaw, wealthy Oak Park merchant, made his third unsuccessful effort yesterday for freedom from the Chester asylum for the criminal insane. Judge John J. Sullivan of the Criminal court refused to grant a writ of habeas corpus. Shaw has made two other efforts to gain his liberty since he was imprisoned in 1926.

Dr. Alexander Herschfield, former state alienist, testified in behalf of Shaw yesterday. He said the defendant is now sane. Dr. Francis Gerty, superintendent of the psychopathic hospital, and Dr. Paul Schroeder, state alienist, disagreed with Dr. Herschfield, however. They testified that Shaw is a psycopathic personality. Dr. Gerty said that he did not believe any amount of time would overcome Shaw's mental ailments.

"The opinions of the alienists must control in a situation like this," said Judge Sullivan. "I have confidence in the judgment of Dr. Gerty and also Dr. Schroeder."

TRIAL DEMANDED BY CONNORS IN SANITARY CASE

The Sanitary district cases, which have been slumbering in the files of the Criminal court since April of last year, were brought to life temporarily at least yesterday when William J. Connors, former chief investigator of the law department of the district, filed a formal demand for trial. Conors is a political power in the Democratic party in the Forty-second ward.

The trial demand, filed by Attorney John Cashen, means that Connors must be tried before the senatorial primary in April or be allowed to follow the path of Thomas D. Garry, another defendant in the case whose charges were dismissed for failure of the state to prosecute within the required four terms of court.

The state's attorney's office during the last summer has had short spells of activity in the sanitary indictments, but of recent months no aggressive move has been made by either the defense or prosecution. The state's attorney's office has let it be known that time is being marked in the hope that the government income tax investigations might bring forth material for new indictments.

Broker Wins Jury Trial in Fight Against Divorce

Curt von Puttkamer, insurance broker, yesterday won his plea for a jury trial when he appeared before Superior Judge Sabath to ask that the divorce decree granted his former wife, Mrs. Florence Hill Cuneo von Puttkamer, last May 21 be set aside. In a petition filed last week Puttkamer declared that charges of drunkenness made against him were false and that he had not been served in the suit. At the same time he alleged that his wife drank heavily. Puttkamer was represented by Attorney Benjamin Ehrlich.

HALT RECRUITING AT COAST GUARD BOSTON STANDS

Signs Replaced and Then Are Removed.

Boston, Mass., Jan. 3.—[Special.]—Coast guard recruiting on Boston common and at the south station, the only two points in Boston where recruiting stands are maintained was abruptly halted today when, acting on orders from Washington, recruiting signs were withdrawn and those on duty were recalled to coast guard headquarters at the customs house.

The recruiting signs taken down today had been put up only a few hours before, replacing those which were torn and mutilated yesterday in a demonstration of protest against the killing of three rum runners by coast guard machine gun fire off Newport a week ago. It is understood that the order from Washington for their removal commended the action of Pay Clerk C. A. Picken in having the abused posters replaced, but indicated that there was little if anything to be gained by keeping them on display, as it might precipitate further demonstrations.

New Sign Ordered Up.

The sign at the South station was similar to the one torn down yesterday afternoon on the common by a group returning from a protest meeting in Faneuil hall at which several speakers denounced the action of the coast guard. Early this morning, Chief Watertender Patrick Coyne and Chief Boatswain's Mate Joseph B. Lawrie, of the recruiting service, were assigned to replace the demolished sign on Boston common with a new one and were given orders by Pay Clerk Picken, officer in charge, to "see that it stays there."

At the same time Mr. Picken assigned Chief Watertender George Briggs, who was on duty on Boston common yesterday, to go to the South station. Shortly afterwards Briggs reported that the sign had been destroyed and returned to the recruiting office in the custom house bearing the battered poster.

Kicked from Its Frame.

The sign is a double poster affixed to a metal standard, one side bearing a picture of a cutter and the other a spread eagle with a shield bearing the coast guard motto, "Semper paratus" (Always prepared(. It had been kicked from its iron frame, battered and left lying on the sidewalk.

Coast guard officials have termed the incident "an insult to the American flag and one of the best services in the United States." Mr. Picken said this morning that he would make an official report to headquarters in Washington, D. C., but added that the police would not be asked to interfere.

"We can handle the situation ourselves," he said. He is of the opinion that the destruction has been the work of young boys rather than an angry mob of grown men.

Grand Jury to be Called.

Providence, R. I., Jan. 3.—[Special.]—Announcement was made by the state tonight that a grand jury will be called Jan. 13 to investigate the killing of three men by coast guardsmen in Narragansett bay Sunday morning.

Assistant Attorney General Benjamin M. McLyman said that considerable evidence that the shootings amounted to manslaughter would be presented by the state to either a Newport or a Providence county grand jury.

Late today Mr. McLyman asked United States Attorney Henry M. Boss Jr., to have the coast guardsmen of the CG-290 produced without resort to summons for the grand jury. Mr. Boss took this request under advisement.

Black Duck Inspected.

When the Black Duck was towed to the state pier here today officials began an immediate inspection of the craft. The inspection disclosed holes in the Black Duck's tender, which lay on the after deck filled with liquor at the time of the shooting. There were other holes in the top of the after hatch and in the rear door and walls of the pilothouse.

The fact that the shots all came from aft the rum runner apparently belied the statements of Charles F. Travers, the only survivor of the Black Duck's crew of four men. Travers declared that most of the shots were fired when the boats were headon. The location of the bullet holes also tended to substantiate the claims of the coast guardsmen that the liquor craft was trying to escape when the shots were fired.

U. S. ASKS HIGH COURT TO RULE LIQUOR BUYER GUILTY OF CONSPIRACY

Washington, D. C., Jan. 3.—(AP)—The department of justice today asked the Supreme court to hold that a purchaser is guilty of conspiracy when he orders liquor from a bootlegger knowing that its delivery will involve illegal transportation.

The case was that of Alfred E. Norris of New York, who won in the Circuit Court of Appeals, which held that the transportation of liquor to Norris was merely an incident in the consummation of a sale and was not a separate offense.

The government asked the highest court to review the whole controversy, emphasizing its importance not only in the enforcement of prohibition, but in the enforcement of other laws. In making its appeal the government dropped entirely its original contention that the purchaser of illicit liquor is guilty of violating the prohibition law.

HUSBAND BEAT HER FOR WASHING DISHES, SHE SAYS

Husbands have filed suits for divorce against wives who have neglected housework, but Mrs. Myrtle J. Edmonds, 1630 North Avers avenue, set a precedent in the Circuit court yesterday when she asked a divorce from Frederick A. Edmonds because he refused to let her wash the dishes after a party at their home. She charges that he beat her when she washed a cup after he had insisted she let the dishes go until the next morning.

Mrs. Georgette Little yesterday filed a suit for divorce in the Superior court against her husband, Joseph Little, 5924 West Division street, head of the Metropolitan School of Music. The bill, drawn by Attorney Harry X. Cole, charges that their married life became unbearable when her husband listened to the advice of a friend, George Ball, 3336 West Division street, who insisted that Little assert himself as the boss of his home. The Littles were married on Aug. 12, 1903, and separated on Oct. 15. They have five children.

HIGH SEAS HALT HUNT FOR LAKE VICTIM'S BODY

Because of a heavy sea coast guardsmen last night postponed until today any further efforts to recover the body of Henry Prusa, 33 years old, 2712 South Ridgeway avenue, who fell through a large crevice in the ice on the lake near Division street yesterday. With a friend, Frank Jansa, 1337 South 55th avenue, Cicero, Prusa had been strolling along the beach, and the two were posing to be photographed by Heinz Timm, 24 years old, 1355 North Dearborn street, when Prusa fell through the ice. Before Jansa could seize him he had been carried beneath the floe. Jansa and Timm called coast guardsmen.

MIRIAM WRIGHT, FORMER WIFE OF ARCHITECT, DIES

Passes Away at 61 After Milwaukee Operation.

Death in a hospital at Milwaukee yesterday closed the stormy career of Mrs. Miriam Noel Wright, divorced second wife of Frank Lloyd Wright, the architect. The end came following a relapse at the Shorewood hospital, where Mrs. Wright was convalescent from an abdominal operation performed at the Columbian hospital six weeks ago. She was 61 years old.

Fifteen years ago, when she first figured on the front pages of American newspapers, Miriam Noel was a striking beauty with russet hair and hazel eyes—a talented sculptress cherishing honors won in the art circles of Paris. The war sent her back to this country, where almost immediately she met Wright, then in the limelight as a result of the tragedy at his famous bungalow, Taliesin, at Spring Green, Wis.

Taliesin Tragedy Recalled.

Mamah Borthwick Cheney, who had deserted her husband and fled to Taliesin with her two children, had been murdered by a crazed Negro butler, who had set fire to the home. Both the Cheney children were among his seven victims. The plight of the architect, whose legal wife, mother of his six children, had refused him a divorce even after Mrs. Cheney took up her residence at Taliesin, aroused the sympathy of Mrs. Noel—and pity quickly ripened into love.

She snapped her fingers at convention and traveled with Wright to California, where they spent a year. Then he departed for the orient, where his masterpiece, the Imperial hotel at Tokio, was erected during a stay of several years. Miriam Noel spent them there with him. It was after their return to Wisconsin that his first wife obtained a divorce and Wright and Mrs. Noel were married at midnight one night standing on a bridge over a stream on his estate.

Battle Over Dancer Begins.

Six months later she went to California for a long stay. Immediately on her return she created a furor by accusing her husband of the paternity of a child born to Olga Milanoff, a dancer in whom he had become interested. He admitted the fact, precipitating a series of bitter legal battles in his attempt to rid himself of Mrs. Wright and to marry the mother of the child.

Both principals were arrested at the instance of the other during the suits, and on one occasion Mrs. Wright stormed the gates of Taliesin and was repulsed by guards placed there.

In August of 1927 she accepted the divorce she had contested, and a financial settlement. While Wright returned to Taliesin with Mme. Milanoff, whom he had married, Mrs. Miriam Noel Wright started for Paris to resume the career as a sculptress she had abandoned since her meeting with the architect.

Stricken Ill in Milwaukee.

But in Milwaukee, where she went on leaving Chicago, she was stricken with illness. The operation six weeks ago was the result.

In her will, made shortly before her death, Mrs. Wright indicated the complete breach with her first husband and her children by leaving the latter $1 each. Her assets, consisting of a $7,000 judgment for alimony against Wright and some personal effects, are bequeathed to Mrs. George Raab, wife of the artist and a close friend of recent years.

The Chicago Art institute is bequeathed whatever the curator chooses to select from her clothes and jewelry, and is directed to have each article properly labeled and kept in a special room.

PINNEY EARLE'S SON SAYS MISS SALAZAR DESERTED DAD IN PARIS

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 3.—[Special.]—The deposition of Eyvind Earle, 13 year old son of Ferdinand Pinney Earle, was filed with the county clerk today as one of the documents in Miss Dolores Salazar's $150,000 suit against the lad's father.

According to Eyvind's deposition, he was with his father when Earle, four times a husband and at other times a soul mate, went with Miss Salazar through Mexico, Cuba, and Europe.

"Dolores was the person my father wanted to marry," the lad told attorneys, who took his deposition in Paris, where Earle now is married to Denise Loncin, a young French woman. Eyvind said that his father lived with Miss Salazar in various hotels, but that the girl deserted his father in Paris.

WALES SAILS FOR AFRICA; SAYS HE WANTS "NO FUSS"

SOUTHAMPTON, England, Jan. 3.—(AP)—The prince of Wales sailed today aboard the liner Kenilworth Castle for Cape Town, South Africa, to resume the hunting trip that was abruptly broke off when King George became seriously ill more than a year ago.

The prince is traveling without formalities as one of several hundred first class passengers. He will mingle freely with them and dine at a table near the orchestra in the gilt dome dining saloon. His table was decorated for dinner tonight with pink and mauve carnations and yellow chrysanthemums, and a supply of fresh flowers is being kept on board to keep his table decorated during the 17 day voyage.

The prince himself asked that no elaborate arrangment be made for his trip. He wanted no "fuss." Two cabins have been converted into one for him on the promenade deck, and he will use them as a private sitting room. His cabin is located on the upper deck, with a bathroom adjoining.

KILLED IN HIS BATH BY GAS.

Maximilian H. Schachner, 47 years old, an interior decorator, was found asphyxiated by gas last night in the bath tub at his home at 4464 Berkeley avenue. The gas was escaping from a small heater in the room.

SHANAHAN TURNS DOWN G.O.P. CALL FOR COUNTY HELP

Budget Cuts Put Leaders in Predicament.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Following a New Year's day spent at the executive mansion at Springfield, Speaker David E. Shanahan said yesterday that he cannot see his way clear to accepting the chairmanship of a citizens' slate making committee proposed by Chairman B. W. Snow of the Republican county committee.

This was a chilly response to the advance of the men seeking to put the old organization on a new footing in the public esteem, but it wasn't the only evidence that the new year had ushered in a cold winter for political organizations. Inquiry disclosed they really were shivering about the county and municipal budget cuts.

Both Parties Hard Hit.

The county's financial troubles hit Republican and Democratic officials alike. Hundreds of employés were disgruntled by being put on a ten months' pay basis, but the slash in city jobs put hundreds of imminently jobless right on the doorsteps of their leaders.

Democrats were hit to some extent in the city budget cuts, for it has been an admitted fact that one phase of the Thompson system is to establish control of the city council by lining up Democrats through patronage and other favors.

But the great part of the burden of taking care of several hundred noncivil service employés who obtained their positions through political preferment and are now slated to go out in the cold, is believed to have fallen on the Republican chiefs backing the reorganization plan. Certainly none of it falls on the Deneen group or on the Lundin and Crowe units, the latter two having troubles of their own.

But, in spite of the inclement political weather, Chairman Snow smiled cheerfully over the Shanahan decision.

"We all have our troubles," he said, "and we weren't looking for the easiest road when we picked this one. We'll go right ahead with our determination to present to the voters the best ticket in the April primary. We had hoped to have Speaker Shanahan's assistance, but he tells me that his regular business associations, including some new ones he has formed, will not let him give the time he thinks would be necessary for what we wanted him to do."

"Hands Off" by Governor.

As far as could be learned, Gov. Emmerson played no part in Shanahan's decision. It was said that he expressed neither an opinion nor a wish concerning Shanahan's entering into or remaining out of the effort of the Republican leaders to convince Cook county voters that the old control of the regular organization is a thing of the past and their statement that the best available elements are to guide its plans in the approaching campaign.

It had been thought and said that if Speaker Shanahan were to join with Chairman Snow, Charles V. Barrett, Edward J. Brundage and their associates his appearance would be construed as an indorsement of the realignment by the governor. But, with the public knowledge, that Emmerson heretofore has declined pleas to take a hand in trying to straighten out Republican affairs in Cook county, the opinion was expressed widely yesterday that he told Mr. Shanahan to consult his own wishes and opinions.

"After going over the whole matter carefully," said the speaker himself, "I concluded I could not give to the citizens' committee the time that it should have. Some of my business associates were reluctant to have me do so. I also felt that such a committee might better be headed by some one who does not hold public office of any sort."

Gov. Emmerson has completed his arrangements to confer on Monday in Chicago with his new appointees on the boards of the Lincoln park and West park systems. He is to meet with Warren Wright, his choice for the north side presidency, and his associates during the morning, and will confer with W. R. James and the other west side commissioners during the afternoon.

N. Y. May Build $7,000,000 Underground Parking Field

New York, Jan. 3.—[Special.]—Construction of an underground parking field in Bryant park on 42d street just off 6th avenue is under consideration by city government heads, it became known today. A private corporation has offered to undertake the project at an estimated cost of $7,000,000 for the fees privilege, but Mayor Walker is said to favor construction and operation by the city if the plan is found feasible.

Dynamite Shatters Door of City Official's Home

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 3.—(AP) — A stick of dynamite shattered the door of the home of Robert Farley, clerk in the register of wills office, today. No one was injured.

The explosive had evidently been tied to the doorknob and equipped with a fuse. It blew a hole through the outer door and tore the vestibule door from its hinges. No motive was advanced by Farley, who has held his office for 20 years.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 3.—(AP)—Douglas Fairbanks and his wife, Mary Pickford, arrived here today, completing a four months' tour of the world. ### Truck Driver Killed; Auto Toll Raised to 8

Robert Runkel, 52 years old, 2137 Alice place, a truck driver, was killed yesterday when he stepped from behind his truck into the path of another truck, driven by Russell Frehse, 5137 Dickinson avenue, at Fullerton and Marmora avenues. Frehse was held. Runkel's death raised the 1930 Cook county motor toll to eight.

DUPE

JUSTINE GOULD.

Lambert Gubbins, a state auto license inspector, who formerly lived at 2049 North Lavergne avenue, is under arrest in Los Angeles, facing federal prosecution under the Mann act. On Nov. 24 he obtained from the Lake county clerk at Waukegan a license to marry 18 year old Justin Gould of Libertyville, although he already had a wife. He and the girl were married the next day at Wheeling in Cook county, but the ceremony was null on account of the Illinois law which requires that the ceremony be performed in the county where the license was issued. Hence, Gubbins will be prosecuted under the federal act in California, instead of standing trial for bigamy in Illinois. Miss Gould and Mrs. Gubbins have announced their intentions of aiding the prosecution.

MANCHURIA SENDS TROOPS TO STOP MONGOL INVASION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HARBIN, Manchuria, Jan. 3.—Chang Hseuh-liang, governor of Manchuria, today dispatched a brigade consisting of 7,000 troops to the western branch of the Chinese Eastern railway for the purpose of testing the strength of the Mongol forces who, despite the resistance of Chinese troops, are proceeding to Manchouli. A relief train was also sent, carrying food and a large force of Chinese Eastern railway employés of the western line, for the purpose of restoring traffic.

The Chinese authorities at Harbin have released all the soviet prisoners, with the exception of 12 alleged criminals. Among those released is the former chief of the telegraph department of the Chinese Eastern railway, Zateplinsky, who has been restored to his old position.

Business circles in Harbin expect an early trade revival, due to the resumption of traffic to Europe as well as the hope that, in accordance with the treaty with Russia, the Chinese Eastern railway will shortly pay the back salaries of all soviet employés who were discharged last summer.

FLAMES DAMAGE ST. ELIZABETH'S; PRIESTS HEROES

$100,000 Loss in Historic South Side Church.

Historic St. Elizabeth's Catholic church at 4049 South Wabash avenue, once the house of worship for a fashionable congregation and in recent years the center for a large Negro congregation, was in danger of destruction by fire for two hours yesterday.

While thirty truck and engine companies fought the flames, 200 of the congregation knelt in the tangle of hose lines in the street, offering prayers for the safety of the edifice and the venerated objects within it.

Priest Is Overcome.

The Rev. William J. Gorman, chaplain of the fire department, carried out the sacrament after two of the parish priests had been driven back, one collapsing in the street. Jewel studded gold vessels and satin vestments were consumed by flames and the interior of the church was damaged beyond repair by fire, water, and smoke. The loss was estimated at $100,000.

A city nurse, who stopped in at noon to pray, saw smoke curling up from behind the main altar of marble. She ran to the parish house around the corner and told the pastor, the Rev. Joseph Eckert.

Father Eckert, an elderly man of frail constitution, hastened to the sacristy with his two young assistants, the Rev. Ladislaus Pawloski and the Rev. Paul Thunick. They found the sanctuary—the forward part of the church around the altars—a mass of smoke.

Father Eckert was about to plunge into the smoke to get the sacred host from the main altar when Father Pawlowski restrained him. The younger priest started in, but, blinded by smoke, he staggered out five minutes later with empty hands. He fell unconscious in the snow outside.

Chaplain Re-enters Smoke.

By this time a 4-11 alarm had been turned in, bringing Fire Marshal Corrigan and Chaplain Gorman. The flames had spread throughout the church and were breaking through the roof, stopping the salvage work of Negroes who had been carrying statues and vestments outside.

While the parishioners knelt in prayers that were led by their pastor, Father Gorman donned a fire helmet and slicker and, with Pipeman Andrew Barclay at his side started into the sanctuary from the sacristy. A powerful search light illuminated his way to the altar.

The devout Negroes broke into a hymn as the priest reappeared, opened his slicker and displayed the sacrament, which he had carried under the garment.

Church Is 49 Years Old.

St. Elizabeth of Hungary parish was organized in 1881 with Msgr. D. J. Riordan as pastor. The first church was a small frame building, which was replaced in 1892 by the present three story stone structure, built in Romanesque style.

In the last decade of the past century and the first of the present century, the parish prospered. A grammar school, high school and clubhouse were built and the Paulist fathers conducted missions for nonCatholics. Sunday crowds were attracted to the services by the frequent appearance in the choir of the noted singer, Mme. Schumann-Heink.

Until the Fathers of the Divine Word took over the parish a few years ago the parish was near extinction. The religious order, whose work is chiefly among colored people, revivified the parish. A class of 500 was recently confirmed and the total congregation numbers between 1,800 and 2,000.

HOOVER IS OPPOSED TO ERECTING OF NEW EXECUTIVE BUILDING

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 3.—[Special.]—Opposition to the immediate erection of a larger and more dignified executive office building outside the White House grounds was expressed by President Hover today. The President desires completion of the present building program for housing the various government departments prior to the adoption of a project for a separate executive office building.

Indications today were that President Hoover will submit a budget recommendation to congress early next week requesting additional funds for repairing the present executive offices. The work of clearing away the débris left after the Christmas eve fire is already under way and the contractors believe the completed offices can be turned over to the President some time in March.

The new executive offices are to be made as nearly fireproof as possible. In addition they are to be equipped with an up-to-date ventilating system which will help to make the President's working quarters livable during the summer months.

2 RIOT LEADERS AND BANK ROBBER GO TO GALLOWS

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 3—Three men died on the gallows in California today—Anthony Brown and Roy E. Stokes being executed at Folsom prison for participation in the fatal riot there on Thanksgiving day, 1927, while Louis Lazarus, convicted Oakland bank robber, went to his doom at San Quentin penitentiary.

Brown and Stokes, two of six convicts sentenced to death as ringleaders of the Folsom outbreak which cost eleven lives, exhibited an air of braggadocio up to the last and died unflinchingly. They refused the ministrations of the prison chaplain.

Lazarus walked up the scaffold with a sickly smile and appeared resigned to his fate.

Brown entered the death chamber smoking a cigaret. He eyed the crowd of witnesses with a half smile of disdain. His last words to the warden were "make it snappy."

Ten minutes later Stokes was brought from the death row. As he neared the chamber he smiled and, turning to Warden Court Smith, said in a loud voice: "You have a hell of a bunch up here today."

FALL FROM STREET CAR FATAL.

James McCarthy, 63 years old, 5460 Harper avenue, a grocer, died yesterday in the Auburn Park hospital of injuries received on Nov. 3 when he fell from the step of a street car near his home.

HUSBAND 5 MIN. BEHIND WIFE IN RUSH TO COURT

Former N. U. Co-ed Sues Broker for Separation.

Within five minutes after his wife, Mrs. Bernadine Guttman Yakich, filed a bill for separate maintenance in the Superior court yesterday, Nicholas M. Yakich, a real state broker, filed a $25,000 suit for the alienation of her affections against her parents and two brothers. The defendants are Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Guttman, 3935 Roosevelt road, and Drs. M. Reese and Joseph A. Guttman.

Mrs. Yakich, who is 20 years old, is a former Northwestern university co-ed. In July of 1928, while she was touring Europe with her mother, she was reported to be contemplating a nonstop trans-Atlantic honeymoon flight from Lisbon, Portugal, to Philadelphia with Murray Kangun of New York, former United States navy and air mail pilot. She was said to have met Kangun aboard the Leviathan becoming engaged after a brief courtship.

Eloped from Chicago.

The flight did not take place, nor did her engagement end in a marriage. She returned to Chicago and met Yakich. According to her bill he made violent and incessant love to her and forced her by the intensity of his expressions of love to elope with him. They were married last Sept. 24.

The bill states that Yakich married her under the belief that her parents were wealthy. Immediately after their marriage, Mrs. Yakich avers, he demanded to see her bank book. When he learned that her account was only $194.27 his dreams of wealth faded and he began a course of cruel treatment she declares.

Other Women in Case.

The bill also charges that Yakich has been carrying on clandestine love affairs with several women. He is said to have visited other cities in the company of several women. The Yakiches separated Dec. 15, less than three months after their marriage.

In his bill Yakich charges that his wife's parents and brothers induced her to leave him. He avers that the parents were against the marriage from the elopement and even voiced opinions against him during his courtship. After the marriage they succeeded in effecting a breach by playing on religious differences, he alleges. Yakich is a Roman Catholic while his wife is a Hebrew.

Lake County School Chief Will Be Candidate Again

T. Arthur Simpson of Waukegan, superintendent of schools in Lake county for the last 24 years, yesterday announced he would again be a candidate for this office in the primary election of April 8. He is to have opposition this year. W. C. Petty, supervising principal of the Antioch grade schools, having made an announcement of his candidacy.

HYLAN IS APPOINTED CHILDREN'S COURT JUSTICE BY WALKER

New York, Jan. 3.—[Special.]—Mayor James J. Walker this afternoon appointed former Mayor John F. Hylan a justice of the Children's court in Queens, a job that is good for ten years and pays $17,500.

In the fall of 1925 Mr. Walker was calling Mr. Hylan seventeen kinds of a nimcompoop. They both wanted to be mayor, and Mr. Walker won out.

In the spring and summer of 1929 Mr. Hylan was calling Mr. Walker simply dreadful things, for again he was smitten with ambition. But he saw the light in time, retired from the mayoralty race, and said pleasant and complimentary words about Mr. Walker and John F. Curry, leader of Tammany Hall.

BUILDERS PLAN CREDIT BUREAU FOR INDUSTRY

Representatives of the Chicago construction industry and its allied branches met yesterday afternoon in the Builders' building and tentatively agreed to adopt a unified credit system to aid in the stabilizing of the building industry in the Chicago metropolitan area.

The Biddle credit plan was explained by E. M. Craig, the general manager of the Building Construction Employers' association, who presided. Mr. Craig said the establishment of a coördinated credit system would safeguard all classes connected with the industry through the exchange of credit information. He said individual credit bureaus could be maintained by trade associations and that when each group had perfected a credit system it could function through a central clearing organization.

Oscar W. Rosenthal, head of the Builders' Association of Chicago, urged the adoption of a credit plan which would eliminate irresponsible building contractors.

Alicia Patterson Simpson Has Airplane Mishap

Miami, Fla., Jan. 3.—(AP)—Alicia Patterson, daughter of J. M. Patterson, Chicago and New York publisher, landed her plane on top of a mowing machine at the municipal airport here today. Two city employés were injured, not seriously.

Harry Sawyer, operator of the mowing machine, received several fractured ribs and W. E. Futch, assisting Sawyer, was slightly bruised.

Miss Patterson and her father arrived here yesterday, and expected to leave tomorrow on an air tour of Cuba. She indicated tonight, however, that the flight would be postponed. In private life Miss Patterson is Mrs. James Simpson Jr.

RUBIO IS GIVEN WARM WELCOME; EXTENDS VISIT

President Elect to Make Address Tomorrow.

Following a day during which he rambled about Chicago, often on foot, alone and incognito, Pasqual Ortiz Rubio, president elect of Mexico, last night had changed his mind about leaving late today and announced his determination to remain in the city at least until tomorrow night.

Unofficially it was stated that Rubio was pleased with the warmth of his reception here and that he had found the city altogether charming. Officially it was given out that he was remaining in order to make an address to the local Mexican colony at a meeting in the Ashland Boulevard auditorium at 4:30 p. m tomorrow. The Association of Commerce will entertain Rubio today at a luncheon in the Union League club.

Likes to Wander Alone.

It was learned of Rubio during the day that he observes people as old Aristotle taught—that most likely he will become the peripatetic president of the republic south of the Rio Grande. In every city Rubio has visited in this good will tour to the United States he has preferred part of the time to walk with the throngs in the crowded ways, sauntering along, observing the actions of the people and watching their faces as they pass by.

It is said of him that it is in this way he has come to understand the great, pulsing heart of the big country to the north and to realize that splendid amity may be maintained between its people and his own.

President Elect Rubio is a man both grave and amiable. He has a ready smile, but his face in repose is almost austere. He was interviewed during the day on almost every imaginable subject and there was no question that he waved off, but answered them all.

Good Will Toward U. S.

Concerning the relations between his country and the United States, he said there is a universal good will towards the United States.

"I would urge the people of the United States to come to Mexico as they now go to Florida for their winter vacation," he said. "We could assure them of a welcome everywhere in our land. It is one of our principal aims to develop the tourist trade between the two countries. Already we have through sleeping cars from St. Louis to Mexico City.

"The developments of airways and aviation in Mexico will help a great deal and within the next six months the international highway, a splendid road, from Mexico City to Laredo, Tex., will be completed. This road is to be known as the Meridian highway and is to be linked up and completed through from Oxaca in the far southern part of Mexico to Winnipeg, Canada."

Mentions Detroit Demonstrations.

Speaking of the hostile demonstration of communists on his arrival in Detroit, he said it had no significance. The United States and its people could not be blamed for anything like that, he said; it might occur anywhere, against any man in public life.

He was asked whether he had observed the workings of prohibition in this country. He did not answer that with exact directness; perhaps, he didn't want to criticize. But he made it plain that he is for temperance rather than for prohibition—temperance through education against alcohol rather than through restrictive legislation.

The 53 year old veteran of Mexican diplomacy and politics was accompanied by Señora Rubio and their three young children and a party of others, including Dr. José Manuel Puig y Cassaurranc, governor of Mexico City, and by a secretary and military attachés. With him also was A. B. Lane, an attaché of the state department at Washington. He has been in the United States since early in December and expects to go to Kansas City and the west coast before he returns to take the oath of office.

ANGLO-U. S. AMITY AUSPICIOUS, SAYS SMUTS IN CANADA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 3.—Gen. Jan Christian Smuts, one time Boer rebel against British authority in South Africa, came to Toronto today on the first leg of his American tour, advocating world peace, British empire unity, and world adherence to league of nations covenants.

Three thousand Torontoians stormed the Royal York hotel to hear the old Boer general discuss empire relations and empire affairs. They appreciated his laudations of Canada, but applauded most his humorous reference to the presence of several thousand Canadian troops among the British forces which conquered the Boers in South Africa 26 years ago.

Gen. Smuts placed existing British-American amity and good relations second in a list of three institutions and conditions which he maintained augured well for the peace and progress of the world. First on the list he placed the British empire itself as an organization bent on peace maintenance; and third he listed the league of nations.

Rongetti Case Nurse Gets Death Threats; Guarded

Mrs. Hazel Reid, the nurse who witnessed the fatal illegal operation for which Dr. Amante Rongetti was convicted of murder, appealed to the police for protection yesterday. Since the Supreme court granted Rongetti a new trial recently the nurse, who was the principal witness against him, has received daily threats that she would be kidnaped or killed by a bomb unless she left the city. Assistant State's Attorney Harry Ditchburne, who prosecuted Rongetti, assigned Sergt. Robert Calkins as Mrs. Reid's bodyguard. She and her husband, Earl, moved to a secret address last night from 4311 Winthrop avenue.

EXONERATED

MRS. MILDRED BUDZ.

A verdict of accidental death was returned yesterday by a coroner's jury investigating the fatal shooting of Michael Budz, 21 years old, by his sister-in-law, Mrs. Mildred Budz, 21 years old, on Thursday night at his home at 2025 James street. Mrs. Budz discharged the gun accidentally, believing that it was unloaded, Budz having told her that he fired all of the cartridges in his New Year's eve celebration.

REGIONAL GROUP DRAFTS $7,500,000 PAVING PROJECT

A plan was drafted yesterday by a subcommittee of the joint committee of the Chicago Regional Planning association and the Chicago Association of Commerce for the expenditure of $7,500,000 out of Chicago's anticipated highway funds on 117 miles of paving. If the committee as a whole approves the recommendation the plan must be adopted by the county commissioners and the state before it becomes effective.

Because of past criticism of its secret hearings, yesterday's session was open, but the committee asked that names of the streets which would be benefited by the proposed new paving be withheld. It was announced, however, that forty-three trunk lines will be improved and paved if the recommendation is accepted.

The subcommittee wishes to study the proposals further before submitting them finally to the committee as a whole, on the theory that the state of Illinois may balk at approving the expenditure of gas tax money on a street not available for an extension to state roads.

ROUMANIA BANS PAPER DEMANDING CAROL'S RETURN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUCHAREST, Roumania, Jan. 3.—An elaborate number of Cuvantul, a Roumanian Peasant party newspaper, issued on the fourth anniversary of Prince Carol's renunciation of his rights to the crown, was suppressed by the government today. In defense of its action the government declared that while the country is permitted freedom of the press, the newspapers would not be allowed to reopen agitation over "things which are dead and buried."

Among the articles contained in the suppressed issue of the newspaper was one by M. Duca, former foreign minister, demanding that Premier Vadja, minister of the interior, is at present in Paris for the purpose of discussing the situation with Prince Carol.

lated that he would not think of making Mr. Hoover the victim of such uninformed comment as he suffered from during his six years in the presidency.

Takes Suggestions Philosophically.

From remarks that he has dropped to his intimate friends it also appears that Mr. Coolidge takes a philosophical view of the suggestions cropping out from time to time that he should be urged to stand again for the presidency in 1932 or 1936. He has observed that this is one of the phenomena attendant upon the ex-presidency unless the retired executive be in ill health, like Mr. Wilson, or in other public office, like Chief Justice Taft. He is prepared to be the subject of such suggestions so long as he retains his health and vigor, which will be a long time to come, if one may judge by his appearance at the age of 57. He looks fitter, if anything, than he did when he came to Washington as Vice President nearly nine years ago.

It thus falls out that in poker parlance the Republican party has in Mr. Coolidge "an ace in the hole." If a period of hard times or some other circumstance should cast a cloud of unpopularity upon the Hoover administration and endanger its retention of power the G. O. P. could fall back on Mr. Coolidge as a life saver, in which capacity he demonstrated his ability in 1924 when by all the rules of the game the scandals of the Harding administration should have returned the Democrats to the White House.

Senate Seat Not Alluring.

Just now the politicians are wondering whether Mr. Coolidge will consent to be a candidate for the senate this year to succeed Mr. Gillett, who is retiring. He is being urged by numerous Republican leaders in Massachusetts to make the race, their fervency of appeal being inspired, 'tis said, by their fears that none but Mr. Coolidge would be able to defeat the wet candidate whom the Democrats will name to carry the banner in this state that went hell-bent for Gov. Smith. So far Mr. Coolidge has discouraged the suggestion.

Mr. Coolidge feels, it is understood, that if there is any place in which the position of an ex-President in the scheme of things could be more difficult than in private life it would be in congress. Life, particularly public life, is not the simple thing it was in the days of John Quincy Adams, who, after serving as President, was a member of the house till he dropped dead on its floor. For one thing, there would be the question of precedence. What would be the rank of an ex-President—above or below Mrs. Gann?

Keeps Desk Spick and Span.

Mr. Coolidge spends the forenoon opening his mail and dictating replies to letters. Ordinarily he has his desk cleared by noon. And he loves to clear and tidy that $15 oak desk as much as the big mahogany desk in Washington. He is the same old neat, spick and span Coolidge in a dark blue double breasted suit from which he carefully flicks a stray ash falling from one of those huge cigars he inhales through one of those horn and paper holders which enables him to get five cents' worth of a five cent smoke.

He tidies up his desk and then goes home for lunch, home to the same half a double frame house which he rented for $27.50 a month when he went to Washington but for which he pays $42.50 rent today. Sometimes he walks, but generally he rides in the old White House car driven by a chauffeur whose only livery is a chauffeur's cap.

Mr. Coolidge, whose sense of humor is keener than ever, has been wont to remark since returning to Northampton that he finds no difference in his life except that he has a car and that people invite him to nice places to fish.

Car Represents a Bargain.

The car represents a stroke of Coolidge business. It was the car he had as President. Like the other White House cars, it was supplied by the manufacturer for a rental of $300 a year, paid by the government. For the tremendous advertising that it means the manufacturer would gladly furnish the car free of charge, but the government insists on paying a nominal rental. Mr. Coolidge used his car so little that it was practically new when he left the White House. As is the custom, he was given the privilege of purchasing the car, which cost $8,000 new. The manufacturer's agent appraised it at $4,200, but Mr. Coolidge did some dickering and got it for less—a good deal less, 'tis said.

After lunch with his wife, Mr. Coolidge returns to his office to sign his letters. Then he reads the afternoon papers and goes home to dinner, or supper, as he always was wont to call the evening meal, even in the White House. The evening he invariably spends at home reading or talking with friends who drop in. As in the White House, he is generally in bed by 10 o'clock.

In Army of Unemployed.

Not a very heavy day's work. The fact is that our most recent ex-President is one of the army of unemployed. He wants work, and if anybody has a job paying what his talents deserve and which an ex-President may with propriety accept, he would find Mr. Coolidge in a receptive state of mind.

It was supposed when Mr. Coolidge retired from the presidency that he would become the executive head of some great corporation. Indications are not wanting that he himself looked forward to some such employment. Many offers of such positions were made to him, some at salaries rivaling the presidential stipend, and he gave them consideration, only to feel impelled to reject them. In almost every instance he found upon investigation that the corporation he was asked to head had extensive dealings with the government. Whenever he suspected that an effort was being made to purchase his influence in relation to government contracts and other matters with men he had appointed to office, he decided that propriety forbade an ex-President to place himself in a position that might become equivocal.

Disposal of U. S. Steel Stock.

This was quite in accord with his strict views of propriety in the presidential office. When he became President he had about 100 shares of United States Steel corporation stock and some other stocks. He sold them all. He thought it improper for the President to be interested financially in corporations, the business of which might be affected by his acts. From his salary of $75,000 he saved in six years close to a quarter of a million dollars and came back a comparatively rich man to the town he left so poor that he could not afford a servant. But that quarter of a million was invested in government bonds at 3 and 4 per cent. He would not buy stocks or other corporation securities while President. It is understood he is now from time to time converting his fortune into corporation investments of a higher yield.

The only salary Mr. Coolidge now draws is $340 a year from the New York Life Insurance company, of which he is a director. It is not exactly a salary. It is the honorarium of a director—$70 per meeting for 12 directors' meetings a year. If he fails to attend he doesn't get the $70. Mr. Coolidge's attendance record is 100 per cent. This position is the only one he would accept of the scores offered him. He accepted this one because the company is a mutual, has no dealings with the government, and partook of the nature of a charitable enterprise as he viewed it.

Literary Work Paid Well.

Though Mr. Coolidge has finished his literary labors, for the time being at least, they have been extremely lucrative. His autobiography is in its third printing and is having a tremendous sale. He has modestly expressed surprise at its popularity despite the fact that it was published first in a magazine and later syndicated in a large number of newspapers before it appeared in book form.

The canniness for which Mr. Coolidge is famous was well illustrated in his undertaking to write for pay. In the closing days of his administration he wrote an article of his experiences in the presidency and sold it to the Cosmopolitan magazine for $25,000, according to report. Ray Long, editor of the Cosmopolitan, had the article in type when he received a summons to the White House. He went reluctantly and with fear and trembling. He was afraid Mr. Coolidge was going to recall the article.

Supply and Demand.

To his surprise on entering the President's office Mr. Coolidge held up another manuscript and said with a grin:

"I've got another one for you."

And it was for another $25,000 that the President offered it. He got it, too, though Mr. Long was considerably taken aback and is said to have made it clear that he couldn't afford to buy any more at that rate. To make the most of his $50,000 investment, he stopped the presses, divided the first article into two to be run successive months and divided the second article into two. This extended the series to four months. At the same time, Mr. Coolidge had three articles in the Ladies' Home Journal and was writing others that appeared in the American magazine later. Altogether he cleaned up a pretty penny at writing for pay.

SPECTACULAR METEOR SEEN NEARING EARTH, BUT NO TRACE FOUND

Cleveland, O., Jan. 3.—(AP)—A large meteor diving earthward in a brilliant stream of fire was seen this morning by hundreds of persons in northern Ohio and western Pennsylvania. So far as could be ascertained tonight, the meteor burned itself out while passing through the earth's layer of atmosphere, and did not hit the ground.

At Greenville, Pa., however, the appearance of the meteor was accompanied by a detonation and distant rumble, which possibly was caused by a part of the flaming mass reaching the earth.

Clevelanders saw the meteor between 5:30 and 5:45 a. m. It lighted the city brilliantly.

SUPREME COURT DENIES PLEA OF MAYOR IN GARY

The Supreme court of Indiana yesterday refused the petition of Henry G. Hay, mayor of Gary, for an injunction to prevent Roswell O. Johnson, the mayor elect, and Emmett White, the defeated candidate, from taking office on Monday. The court's action left the puzzle of the identity of Gary's next mayor still unsolved, with inauguration only two days away.

The final selection of the next mayor now hinges on the outcome of the suit brought by White to prevent Johnson from taking office. The suit is still pending in the Lake County Circuit court, White having asked a change of venue. The county in which the case will be heard has not been decided. White contends that Johnson, because he served a sentence in the Atlanta penitentiary for conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws, is not qualified to hold office.

Hay contended in his suit for the injunction that White, having been defeated by 6,000 votes, could not hold the office even if Johnson were not qualified and that Hay should continue in office until his successor is elected. Johnson insists that he is the only one entitled to the office, having been elected and given a certificate of election.

Valparaiso Mayor Fights Induction of Successor

Valparaiso, Ind., Jan. 3.—[Special.]—A protest that Attorney Harold J. Schenck, who was elected mayor at the November election, was not legally elected, was made today by Mayor Louis J. Leetz, at a special meeting of the city council. The mayor declares he will refuse to surrender the office next Monday, when Schenck is to take the job. Mayor Leetz contends the election inspectors were not appointed by the city council, and it is hinted that injunction proceedings will be filed, contesting Schenck's eligibility on other grounds. Schenck has announced he will contest any such action.

STIMSON TO SEE ITALIAN CHIEF ON EVE OF PARLEY

Will Talk Over Proposal to Abolish Submarine.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Jan. 3.—American Secretary of State Stimson and the Italian foreign minister, Dino Grandi, will have a preliminary meeting in London on Jan. 19 on the respective viewpoints of the two countries on the agenda of the five power naval disarmament conferences. This was announced here tonight.

American Ambassador Garrett called at the foreign office in Chigi palace today and presented the invitation from Mr. Stimson for this preliminary meeting. Throughout the period of preliminary negotiations, which have been going on during the last month, Mr. Garrett has kept in close contact with the Italian government. The ambassador also has been in constant contact with the American embassies in London and Paris. He returned recently from Paris, where he met Ambassadors Edge and Dawes.

Will Discuss Submarines.

It is believed here that the Grandi-Stimson conversations will revolve chiefly about the extent to which Italy is prepared to accept the proposal for abolition of the submarine and President Hoover's food ship immunity plan, to which unofficial approval seems to have been given here.

However, while the Italians have intimated that they would adhere to these two principles, they have found nothing specially objectionable in the recent French memorandum except that it makes no mention of the parity question between Italy and France.

For diplomatic bargaining purposes, Italy's position is seen as the strongest at the coming conference, largely because Premier Mussolini has adopted the formula of being ready to accept any tonnage, however low, provided it is not exceeded by any other continental power, which is elastic enough to cover almost any situation without commitments.

Japanese Outline Demands.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 3.—Japan insists on a naval strength 70 per cent of that of the strongest nation in all categories not covered by the Washington agreement. Japan is opposed to abolition of the submarine; favors a reduction in capital ships, and is willing to discuss elimination of certain types and prolongation of the age limits.

There are the principal points of the Japanese policy as expounded today by Premier Peijuro Wakatsuki, heading the Japanese delegation to the naval disarmament conference.

Japan's opposition to abolition of the submarine, together with the French attitude on this point and the probability that Great Britain will seek an entente with the French, is practical assurance that the question of outlawing the submarine will be allowed to drop quietly.

Wants 7-10 Cruiser Ratio.

So far as capital ships are concerned, Japan probably will be willing to accept any agreement that suits the other powers. Having already accepted a 5-5-3 ratio on capital ships and airplane carriers, Japan is concentrating its efforts to secure 70 per cent of the other categories, notably cruisers.

Japan is only interested in a five power agreement, the Japanese spokesman indicated. He said the question of a three or four power pact was not under consideration. He added that Japan was ready to reduce its naval strength if all other countries were willing to do the same. Japan, he declared, is not claiming parity with any other country.

Japan evidently sides with the American view that the decision of this conference should stand on its own feet, without awaiting the approval of the league of nations. The spokeman appeared hostile to the French suggestion that any agreement would be simply a basis for proposals to the council of the league.

It was announced today that Prime Minister MacDonald will preside at the five power conference. When he is unavoidably absent his place will be taken by Arthur Henderson, foreign secretary.

The first speech will be made by King George, who will retire immediately after speaking. He will be followed in order by Mr. MacDonald; American Secretary of State Stimson; Andre Tardieu, French premier; Dino Grandi of Italy; Beijiro Wakatsuki, leader of the Japanese delegation; Col. J. L. Ralston, Canadian minister of defense; James F. Fenton, Australian trades minister; T. M. Wilton, New Zealand minister of defense; T. F. Water of South Africa; Desmond Fitzgerald, Irish minister of defense, and Sir Atul Chandra Chattejee, high commissioner for India.

Few entertainments are planned for the conference. It is the desire of all to make it as businesslike as possible. The king will welcome the delegates in an audience before the conference, and on the evening of the first day a dinner will be given by the government to all delegates.

FIND STOLEN SILVER IN ASHES.

Silver valued at $200, which was stolen on Wednesday evening from the apartment of Mrs. Charles G. Rudderham, 924 Judson avenue, Evanston, was found yesterday in the ashes of a rubbish fire in the rear of her home. The police believed the burglars had thrown the silver into the rubbish pile when they discovered it was initialed.

U. S. DELEGATION READY TO LEAVE FOR NAVAL MEET

Hoover Will Issue Final Instructions Tuesday.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 3.—[Special.]—The American delegation to the London naval reduction conference virtually completed its preliminary work today and following a breakfast conference at the White House next Tuesday the delegates will leave for New York en route to London. At the Tuesday conference, President Hoover will give the delegation its final instructions regarding the initial position to be taken by the United States.

The instructions carried to London by the delegation will be much more flexible than those which governed the delegates at the 1927 three power conference. President Hoover hopes that all delegations will enter the parley with flexible programs so that agreement through discussion will be possible.

Expect British to Speak First.

There are no indications that the American group will make any sensational proposals for naval reduction such as was made by Charles Evans Hughes, head of the American representation at the Washington five power conference in 1921. As the conference is to be held in Great Britain, this country expects that the initial proposals for limitation will come from the MacDonald government.

In order to make the Washington conference successful, the United States sacrificed potential American battleship supremacy and sank hundreds of thousands of tons of dreadnaughts. While it is expected that Great Britain will suggest reduction in the number of battleships allowed by the Washington treaty as well as reduction of their size, it is not anticipated that the British government will offer to make any sacrifices such as were proposed by Mr. Hughes.

Navy's Arguments Effective.

In recent weeks there has been a marked modification of what were understood to be the original inclinations of important officials of the government with respect to the battleship phase of the armament problem. For a time the trend of opinion in some official quarters seemed to be that the battleship had outlived its usefulness.

After discussion, however, the navy's point of view as to the battleship's functions and usefulness in warfare has been accepted as sound. With that acceptance goes the assurance that in the London conference the American delegation will be found contending that dreadnaughts are the backbone of the fleet and cannot be scrapped.

Administration officials have not yet decided whether it will be possible to reduce the size of future built battleships. A decision on this point will be reached after the British proposals are made.

BRITISH CONFIDENCE IN GERMAN WARSHIP NOT SHARED BY U. S.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 3.—[Special.]—John Steele's London dispatch to THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE of yesterday stating that British naval experts have developed plans for a new 10,000 ton warship which will eclipse the celebrated Ersatz Preussen, the first of Germany's new "baby battleships," was read with great interest in Washington naval circles today.

While agreeing with the British technicians that the German 10,000 ton ship which is to mount eleven inch guns and utilize Diesel engines for power is a fine vessel, American navy experts do not agree with the British technician's view that it is good enough to revolutionize the construction of big gun ships. The American experts scoffed at the idea of scrapping the present battleships in favor of vessels modeled on the mongrel type of vessel turned out by Germany.

American naval experts have made a special study of the new German vessel but are not convinced that it is the type of vessel which should be built for American use. Summarized, the American view is that the Ersatz Preussen is an excellent type for a nation that is not permitted to build larger battleships but not the best type of fighting ship for nations not so limited.

PAISLEY BURIES 65 TINY VICTIMS OF MOVIE PANIC

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PAISLEY, Scotland, Jan. 3.—Sixty-five small coffins, bearing the bodies of children who were killed in the movie fire panic here which cost the lives of 70 children last Tuesday, filed slowly through the streets today while the parents followed weeping between lines of their neighbors. The mournful procession required five hours to pass through the streets to the long line of freshly dug graves.

In ancient Paisley abbey 3,000 persons, half of them children mourning for their playmates, participated in a mass and service in memory of the dead on the text, "Suffer little children to come unto me."

Among the grave diggers of the local cemetery who had to fulfill the sad task of preparing the little graves were two fathers who lost children. One of them, George Kielty, lost both a ten year old daughter and a son, aged five.

HAGUE PARLEY NAMES BOARDS TO SETTLE DEBTS

Nations Meet to End Last of War Problems.

BY HENRY WALES.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

THE HAGUE, Holland, Jan. 3.—The second meeting of the conference to liquidate war problems held its opening session in the lower house of parliament today with a brief public plenary session.

The president of the conference, Premier Jaspar of Belgium, addressed the delegates with a speech lamenting the demise of the late German foreign minister, Dr. Gustav Stresemann, and welcoming his successor, Dr. Julius Curtius, as well as Andre Tardieu, the new French premier.

Form Two Committees.

The meeting immediately became private and two commissions were formed—the first to deal with non-German reparations, presided over by Louis Loucheur, French minister of labor, the second to handle German reparations, under the chairmanship of M. Jaspar.

Premier Jaspar proposed the formation of a subcommittee of treasury experts from the six inviting powers—Germany, Great Britain, France, Italy, Belgium, and Japan—to codify the work done since August, when the first Hague conference ended, and present a complete report.

M. Titulesco of Rumania urged that experts of the smaller states participate in order to become familiar with the questions concerning them. A compromise was finally agreed upon that these experts examine the report before it is finally handed to the full commission.

Poland and Germany Reach Pact.

M. Morozowski of Poland announced that Germany and Poland had reached an agreement on Oct. 31 last at Warsaw, settling their problems directly.

Premier Tardieu called on Philip Snowden, British chancellor of the exchequer, this morning and held an hour's conversation. He said he was completely satisfied with the interview.

Edwin C. Wilson, first secretary of the Paris embassy, is acting as unofficial observer for the United States. Other countires represented include Australia, Austria, Bulgaria, Canada, Greece, Hungary, New Zealand, Portugal, Jugo-Slavia, and Czecho-Slovakia.

Tells of Operation That Cost Her Limbs.

Q.—What did he say? A.—He said "I have had 82 such cases and I have operated on all of them successfully. I've had many school teachers come in from all parts of the country to spend their vacations that way." He told me he would perform the operation on my legs first and later, while I was still in the hospital, remove the scar on my arm.

Tells of Examination.

Q.—What sort of examination did he give you? A.—He asked me to remove my shoes and stand and turn around, and he made an outline with his hand and said, "Your legs are very bad; they are bowed two ways." I asked him if there was any danger in the operation, and he said: "None whatever. We've operated on animals and dead people and worked this thing out. It is a stated matter—more simple than the work on your arm."

Q.—Did he quote a price to you? A.—He told me that $500 was the very lowest fee he could accept for the bow legs, and that the scar would cost not less than $300. He said: "You know you are talking to the greatest plastic surgeon in the world. I am getting on in years, and I may retire in another ten years."

Q.—What did he say about the necessity for the operation? A.—He said that the legs were more important than the arms, and that "You know legs are second faces, and men look at them before they do at the face."

Queen Marie Mentioned.

Q.—Was there a delay in his performing the operation? A.—Yes, he said he was going to Europe to do some work for Queen Marie of Roumania for $100,000.

Q.—What was said about Dr. Ryerson? A.—He was telling me of cases he had had, and said that Dr. Ryerson had operated at St. Luke's hospital to straighten the legs of a Cleveland girl, and had been forced to call Dr. Schireson in to do it over again.

Q.—Did he suggest that he have an assistant do it? A.—He said he could have his assistant do it cheaper, but I told him that I wanted to wait for him to do it, that I wanted none but the best.

Introduced to "Assistant."

Mr. Ash then asked about another visit to Dr. Schireson's office, and Miss Holland testified the physician had introduced her to "Dr. Christensen, my assistant." Arthur C. Christensen, an optometrist, has testified in Schireson's behalf, and stated that he was not a physician, and was not employed by Dr. Schireson.

Mr. Ash continued: "Did Dr. Schireson examine your legs through a fluoroscope?"

"No," Miss Holland replied, "he only looked at my legs from a distance of several feet."

Christensen had testified that at this time Dr. Schireson did examine Miss Holland with a fluoroscope, it having been stated by eminent medical experts summoned by Mr. Ash that it was impossible to diagnose a case of bowlegs without the use of fluoroscope or X-ray. The same expert witnesses declared X-rays taken after the operation had proved the bones in Miss Holland's legs were entirely straight, and that the operation could have accomplished nothing.

"Wanted Pictures Taken."

"He told me he'd like to have pictures taken of my legs and my arm," the young woman said. "He showed me how he wanted me to pose, and then sent me with his assistant to have a photographer take the pictures. He also told me that I ought to have a special anesthetist, so that he could pay full attention, below, to my legs. I agreed."

The witness then told of being admitted to the Chicago Osteopathic hospital, of being prepared for the operation and finally placed under the anesthetic.

Q.—When was the first time the name of Dr. Zaph was mentioned to you? A.—A man came down to cut the casts after the operation. I asked my nurse who he was, and she replied he was Dr. Zaph, one of my surgeons.

Taken to Other Hospital.

Miss Holland declared she was in terrible agony immediately after the operation and for several days afterward. Nothing seemed to relieve her, and finally her family summoned their private physician. He called in Dr. Paul B. Magnuson, who insisted that Miss Holland be removed to the Wesley hospital. This was done after she had signed releases at the hospital.

Q.—What happened at the Wesley hospital? A.—Mr. Magnuson advised an amputation at once, and told me I could not live unless it was performed. I said: "I'd rather die than have my limbs amputated." He told me he would get in touch with my family, that he wanted to operate that night, and that the next day might be too late. My father and mother came to see me and pleaded with me. They said they would rather have me alive without limbs than dead with them. Finally I said all right, if it was my duty to my family I would do it.

Miss Holland lowered her head, and some thought she would break down, but she did not. It was brought out that she was present because she had been served with an order issued by the Circuit court, obtained by Mr. Ash, directing her to appear.

Defense Attorney Cramer, on cross-examination, then showed her photographs as she appeared before the operation, the ones taken at Dr. Schireson's suggestion. She gazed silently at herself as she had been and then, at Mr. Cramer's request, acknowledged that the pictures were genuine. They showed her legs to be bowed.

Then an agreement was introduced by which Miss Holland settled for $40,000 a suit she had filed against Dr. Schireson, asking damages of $250,000. She had been represented, she said, by the law firm of Kirkland, Fleming, Green & Martin, and Attorneys Charles F. Rathbun and William Symmes of that firm were at her side as she testified. Frequently Mr. Rathbun interrupted the cross-examination of Miss Holland to protect her from what he termed were improper questions.

Reads from Agreement.

Mr. Cramer read a paragraph from the agreement, in which it was stated that Miss Holland had known of the retention of Dr. Zaph in the case, and that her claim against Schireson was only because he had been the agency in her having Zaph perform the operation.

"Is that the truth?" Mr. Cramer asked.

"My attorneys advised me not to sign that agreement because it was not the truth," Miss Holland replied, raising her voice as she spoke. "But I was a helpless cripple, unable to support myself, and I told my attorneys that I would sign anything to get money."

"Yes."

"And you knew it was not the truth?"

"I did."

Later in discussing the agreement, and arguing over its admissibility into the record, Attorney Cramer waved it aloft, and loudly asserted: "This girl lied. She admits she lied to get money from Dr. Schireson."

Attorney Rathbun replied heatedly that it was the "most justifiable lie ever told in the world."

Finally Miss Holland was excused, and she was wheeled, still smiling, from the room and to the limousine which Mr. Ash had provided for her.

Schireson Reviews Career.

Dr. Schireson at the night session told of his graduation at the University of Maryland at Baltimore in 1906, after he had taken five years of medical work, part of it in the Atlantic Homeopathic university medical school. In subsequent years, he testified, he took examinations, or was admitted by certificate to practice in other states, including Massachusetts, Maine, Vermont, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania.

In 1907, the witness said, he took a post as a ship surgeon in order to get to Europe, and while there took courses in the clinics of Germany and Austria. In 1909, he said, he took a course and obtained a degree of Master of Arts at Potomac university, Washington, D. C.

At this point the committee adjourned until 9 o'clock this morning. It is hoped the taking of evidence in the case will be completed today.

ROBBERS STRIP HIM OF GARB.

HUNGARIANS, THEIR PROPERTY SEIZED; PLAN TO FLEE RUSSIA

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Jan. 3.—It is reported that a wholesale emigration of Hungarians from soviet Russia, similar to the recent exodus of German colonists, will take place soon.

It is charged that the communists have confiscated the property of Hungarians who bought land in Russia before the revolution, leaving the Magyar settlers penniless.

The soviets have already turned down the request of the International Red Cross to permit Hungarian workers to enter Russia in order to aid Hungarian colonists in leaving the country, so it is expected that the Hungarian exodus can be accomplished only with episodes of misery similar to those marking the recent flight of the Germans.

BAD SYMPTOMS SEEN IN MEDICAL PROFESSION FEES

"Glaring Abuses" Listed by New York Academy.

New York, Jan. 3.—[Special.]—Declaring that all is not well with the medical profession, the annual report of the New York Academy of Medicine, made public today, denounced certain overcharging of patients with small means and advocated "an intensive study of hospital practice which would include the qualification and method of appointment" of the medical personnel of hospitals.

The report said: "It is recognized that in the present commercial age there is a desire on the part of many physicians to achieve financial as well as professional success and it is regretted that in many instances physicians are willing to place greater financial reward on a higher plane than their professional standards. It is known that there are many physicians who are frequently guilty of gross unprofessional conduct."

Abuses Are Listed.

The report enumerated the following "glaring abuses":

1. The overcharging of patients who cannot afford the fees demanded.
2. The publicity obtained by many physicians which indicates that they are better qualified to treat certain conditions than are their colleagues.
3. The division of fees between specialists and the general practitioners.

Medical Testimony Unsatisfactory.

The report also said that the present method of medical testimony in the courts is "highly unsatisfactory from the point of view of the courts as well as from the point of view of the dignity of the medical profession." The report urged a study of this matter and contended that there was need of "a satisfactory definition of murder in the first and second degree and manslaughter."

Dr. John A. Hartwell, president of the academy, has appointed a committee to study and make recommendations "in regard to the legal definition of insanity, the disposition of those convicted of criminal offenses, and on the question of expert testimony when there is a psychiatric problem involved."

MINER FOUND DEAD IN HOME.

MAKE U. S. INDIANS SELF-SUPPORTING, IS PLAN OF HOOVER

Washington, D. C., Jan. 3.—[Special.]—Plans to make the American Indian self-supporting, so he can be blended into the nation as a whole, is one of the major objectives of President Hoover's Indian policy, it was announced at the White House today. The President, it was said, hopes to reach this goal by providing better training for the Indian young men and women so they will be able to take better care of themselves and their property.

One of the immediate aims of the President is the improvement of living conditions among the nation's Indian population of 338,000. At present, according to an announcement made by Mr. Hoover today, Indian children are underfed. Education and health facilities also are to be built up. In response to queries regarding his plans for reorganization of the Indian bureau, Mr. Hoover said that a number of changes in the laws bearing on Indian affairs will be submitted to congress by the bureau.

President Hoover announced that an increased appropriation of $3,000,000 has been asked by the Indian bureau for next year.

NEARLY FIVE BILLION FOR 1930 IMPROVEMENTS

Hoover's Business Drive Said to Show Results.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 3.—The Hoover drive for an increase in construction and improvement work during 1930 to bolster business conditions and cut down unemployment is showing most encouraging results, it was announced at the White House today. With many parts of the country not yet heard from, President Hoover announced that figures thus far received show that four billion 700 million dollars will be expended by the federal government, the states, the railways, and public utilities for betterment during the present year.

These figures include surveys from only about half the states and exclude industrial and factory improvements. Indications, President Hoover said, are that more construction and improvement work will be done in 1930 than was done during 1928.

Steel Orders Arriving.

Reports reaching the White House from the steel companies are that the effect of the drive for an increase in the expenditures for public improvements is already being registered in the receipt of larger orders than was anticipated.

Following today's cabinet meeting, at which the business situation was discussed, the President announced that the surveys, seeking to determine the amount of public works that could be undertaken by the states and federal government during 1930, should be completed by Jan. 15.

Gives Department Reports.

"The department of commerce now has complete returns from the governors of sixteen states covering public works to be undertaken in 1930 by the state, municipal and county authorities," Mr. Hoover said. "They have partial returns from thirteen more states. The total so far reported, and including the federal government, is about one billion 550 million dollars, and in nearly all cases larger than for 1929. The surveys are coming in daily, and should be completed by mid-January.

"The preliminary estimate of the railways for construction and betterments for 1930 was one billion 50 millions, and for the public utilities, two billions 100 millions, including the telephones. The total of these items so far is four billions 700 millions. This does not include the balance of the state, municipal and county work, nor the building construction, nor the industrial and factory improvements, which latter are now under survey by the special business committee."

ONE SON SLAIN, OTHER IN JAIL; MOTHER IS HERE TO GIVE AID

With one son slain while committing a holdup and another held for robbery, a middle aged mother came from Prairie du Chien, Wis., to Chicago yesterday, alone and practically penniless.

MRS. ROSE HESSE

She is Mrs. Rose Hesse and she had come to claim the body of her son, Floyd, 20 years old, who last Monday was shot to death by Policeman Lawrence Vodvarka as he fled after holding up and robbing of $10 the Samuel Zaslawsky store, 660 South State street. The second son, William, 22 years old, who was with Floyd at the time, surrendered and will be arraigned Monday for robbery.

Last night the principal problem of the mother was to obtain sufficient money to take her son's body back to his home for burial. All afternoon she sat, anxious and weeping, in the Central undertaking parlors. Capt. John Prendergast of the State street police had turned over to her $19, the money found in her son's pocket, and in addition had collected about $9 from his friends, but this was not enough for the railroad fare and other expenses.

Telegrams had been dispatched to a daughter, sister of the boys, Mrs. Eva Glick of Duluth, Minn., and in addition the mother tried all day to locate the boys' father, from whom she has been estranged for a number of years.

"If I could find him he might help," she said. "My daughter, if she can, will help also. I don't want my son to be laid in a potter's field, but what can I do? I'm penniless and helpless."

The boys were on their way from Pittsburgh, Pa., to spend Christmas with their mother when Floyd decided to snatch a little easy money. Floyd, before he died, exonerated William of blame in the robbery. Both boys had jobs in Pittsburgh, the mother insisted, and they were "good boys" as long as they would stay with her. If the mother can obtain the necessary money she will take Floyd's body back to Prairie du Chien today.

"I'm glad it happened as it did, rather than that Floyd had killed that policeman, and then be hanged for murder," said the mother. She hopes to procure probation for William and take him also home to Wisconsin, she said.

$136,363 LEFT IN REPUBLICAN PARTY COFFERS

Democrats $449,686 in Red, Congress Hears.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 3.—(AP)—Congress learned that the Republican national committee has a balance of $136,363, and the Democratic national committee has outstanding obligations of $449,686, in reports made today to William Tyler Page, clerk of the house of representatives.

In the documents filed in accordance with law the anti-Saloon league also reported in relation to political expenditures and said there was nothing in its treasury for that purpose. Edward B. Dunford, league treasurer, explained tonight that its committee which functioned during the last presidential campaign has been disbanded and that hence no funds such as were required to be reported are on hand.

Democrats' Debt Reduced.

The statement of James W. Gerard, treasurer of the Democratic committee, showed the Democrats had reduced their obligations from $1,600,000 since Dec. 31, 1928, after the Hoover-Smith presidential campaign, to $449,686 on Dec. 31, 1929. The cash on hand as the year ended totaled $18,404.

During the last year receipts of the Democratic committee amounted to $1,462,203 and the expenditures to $1,446,798. The year previous the Democrats received $5,444,958, including loans amounting to $1,600,000, and expended $5,342,348.

Loans and Furniture Bill Unpaid.

Of the present outstanding obligation $375,000 is owed to the Bankers Trust Company of New York and $70,000 to John J. Raskob, chairman of the national committee, for loans. The remainder is owed for furnishings of the Washington office and for interest.

The report of J. R. Nutt, treasurer of the Republican national committee, showed no outstanding obligations. The receipts for the year amounted to $49,411 and the expenditures totaled $198,685. During the campaign year 1928 contributions to the Republican committee amounted to $6,541,748 and expenditures to $6,256,111.

JUDGES PASS BUCK IN CRIME BOARD DEBATE

After a three hour session the Circuit and Superior judges yesterday referred to the judges of the Criminal court the controversy with the Chicago crime commission. A growing disposition on both sides seems to favor closing the books on the pending imbroglio on the ground that not much of a constructive nature is likely to develop so long as the discussion retains controversial aspects. The matter of a later conference with a detailed program is still in the air. The judges say the "contact" committee named by Frank J. Loesch, chairman of the crime commission, has not yet communicated officially with the Criminal court.

ACCUSE FARMER OF MURDERING 2 OF THREE WIVES

Rushville, Ind., Jan. 3.—[Special.]—George Kolb, 56 year old farmer living near here, today was charged with murder of his second and third wives in indictments returned by the county grand jury.

Kolb was removed today to the county jail from a hospital here where he had been since he tried to commit suicide by taking poison a week ago.

First degree murder is charged in the deaths of Mattie Kolb, who died in 1928 and whose body was examined a few days ago following death of the third wife, Edna Kolb, under mysterious circumstances. State chemists found the second wife's stomach contained "excessive amounts of poison." Kolb is also alleged to have murdered the third wife. The first wife's body may also be exhumed. She died after an illness similar to those of the other two women, it is asserted.

Kolb, calm today, refused to make a statement.

AN UNSOUND BUDGET.

The city council, by the substantial majority of 36 to 12, has enacted the budget for 1930. If no additional appropriations are made during the year; the corporate fund will be charged with $5,000,000 less this year than last. The two largest reductions are to be found in the police and fire departments. In 1930 the police department is to receive $1,221,000 less than in 1929, and the fire department is to have $767,000 less. In consequence, some 700 policemen and 200 firemen will be dropped from the service, according to departmental estimates.

Some of the aldermen are patting themselves on the back for their brilliant accomplishment. It is well that they are doing it because it is doubtful if any one else in Chicago will see the need for praising the aldermen for the job they did. The framing of the budget was slipshod and heedless, and the vote on amendments proposed indicated once more an almost complete lack of a sense of responsibility to the people of Chicago.

While nothing more was to be expected of the administration, some hope was reposed in the self-interest of the aldermen who must answer to their constituents for the budget. The men who voted for it say in self-justification that the reductions in appropriations for the police and fire departments were less drastic than in most other departments, but that argument will impress only those who wish to be impressed. The truth of the matter, the notorious truth, is that the police and fire departments are far from overmanned, while hundreds of thousands of dollars are being spent in salaries and wages in other departments for the purpose of maintaining a political machine.

The vote recorded on the budget is a vote which will not be forgotten on election day. Particularly it will not be forgotten if the reduction in police and fire protection results in an increase in crime and in insurance rates. The budget as passed was feeble from any point of view. It was not sound as an exercise in municipal finance and it was not even good politics. Many of the men who voted for it will live to regret their mistake.

SENATOR BORAH WILL NOTE WITH INTEREST.

Senator Borah, as the leading dry constitutionalist, must find the news from his home state of Idaho of more than ordinary interest these days. County and town governments in the northern section of the state decided to nullify the eighteenth amendment and run the Volstead act up the street. The mayor and councilmen of one town, Mullan, licensed the speakeasies, made them old fashioned saloons and used the revenue for public purposes. The county authorities acquiesced, and town and county officials have been convicted in the federal court.

The legal defense of the convicted persons was a bit of a novelty and will be the most interesting part of the story to Senator Borah. It was that the people of northern Idaho wanted saloons and the officials did not graft but acted honestly, not filling their own pockets but turning the license money into the public funds for town purposes.

Thus they were not corruptionists but only upright nullifiers. Counsel for them may or may not have added that in this they were within the rights exercised by southern states, with respect to the fourteenth and fifteenth amendments, in sending dry members of congress to Washington. Mr. Borah might make this point in the senate in defense of his state, even if it has been made ineffectively or not made at all in court in extenuation of their conduct. The senator from Idaho, although yielding to none in his respect for the constitution and his devotion to it, has always obliged the southern senators with a sympathetic understanding of nullification of franchise rights.

It's his own business if he does not care to defend his fellow citizens of Idaho, but at least he will note that the first instance made public of an official nullification of the eighteenth amendment is recorded from his state.

REFORM OF PAROLE.

Chairman W. C. Jones' administration of the pardon and parole system will gain additional credit with the public by reason of the latest pronouncement of the board, made public through Mr. Ward E. Thompson of Rockford, a member of that body. The assurance that gunmen and other criminals convicted of crimes of violence are to expect no leniency from the board is most reassuring. The facility with which dangerous men have been able to work the parole system and go at large for new depredations has been a public scandal. It represented an abuse of the principle of parole, which is not intended to endanger the public but merely to provide for the release of prisoners who have given evidence of a disposition to become law abiding if given a chance. Political pull or carelessness has resulted in the premature parole of men totally unfit to be at large, who have proved it by repeating crimes. There has been a crying need for a restoration of the parole to its proper purposes and we are confident Mr. Jones and his associates of the board will have the approval and support of the public in administering the law very strictly for the public safety.

The present parole board, like all its predecessors, will be subjected to the usual political pressure to favor prisoners, but it can count on public support, as well, we are confident, as on the present governor's backing, to resist it, and coöperating with state's attorneys, police and an organization like the Chicago crime commission the board can keep dangerous criminals where they belong, while using its mitigating powers only in cases which clearly justify an experiment in leniency.

MEXICO AND THE UNITED STATES.

President Elect Rubio of Mexico is a welcome visitor to Chicago. He is not only the chosen head of our neighbor republic but a representative of the political and economic tendencies which promise most for his people. The interrelations of the United States and Mexico are so many and so substantial that the solution of the latter's difficult problems are of importance to us in a degree only less than they are to her. This fact should not be and is not, with thinking Americans, obscured by the unfortunate incidents which have marked our relations with Mexico during its revolutionary ordeal. We share with Señor Rubio the hope as well as the belief that the United States and Mexico are entering upon a period of friendly coöperation to which both nations can contribute.

Mexico, a country of rich natural resources, can benefit not only by American capital and enterprise but by drawing upon American political, social, and economic experience for her own guidance. Both are republics, trying the difficult experiment of free institutions. Both are countries with vast natural resources, requiring wise development. Both have difficult though in some fundamental aspects very different social problems. The United States has traveled farther and its history is full of lessons which Mexican patriotism and Mexican statesmanship will find significant and useful.

On the other hand, the development of Mexico offers opportunities for Americans which are not only compatible with Mexico's welfare but highly conducive to it. The situation is not free from serious difficulties. Both countries have things to forget and forgive, prejudices to overcome and selfish interests to restrain. The conduct of our relations has been marked by many misunderstandings and blunders, but it has been improving of late on both sides, and with the arrival of a settled peace south of the Rio Grande it should be possible to continue the improvement and gradually to rebuild our relations upon foundations of amity and mutual profit. The American character and policy are not what the Mexican chauvinist and, even very generally, the Mexican educated class have thought or asserted them to be. There is no spirit of conquest and no will to oppress in the so-called colossus of the north. This will appear in due time when the troubled air of our recent relations has cleared, and when it does appear the way will be open for Mexico to take advantage of the benefits available for its progress and prosperity in the progress and prosperity of the United States.

To our own people generally we would heartily second Señor Rubio's suggestion for American travel in Mexico. During the revolutionary disturbances this has been impossible, but as peace becomes settled and the enlightened policy of internal development which he announces is realized travel in Mexico will offer an experience which the travel loving millions of the United States cannot afford to miss. Mexico is one of the most beautiful lands nature has produced, with a magnificent climate, its life romantic and picturesque, its educated classes hospitable and agreeable. With restored and extended railways, good roads and modern hotels, touring in Mexico will offer charms few other countries can match. This is not in the immediate foreground but will come in due time and bring with it not only money to Mexico but understanding and pleasure to our own people. Such contacts are not without their disadvantages, through differences in manners and temperament, but we think these can be offset by a cultivated good will. Mexicans, on the other hand, can profit by visiting the United States, where they should be made especially welcome as neighbors and fellow Americans.

PNEUMATIC TIRES FOR TRUCKS.

The persistent use of hard rubber tires on motor trucks in spite of the fact that pneumatic tires are available for all types of cartage vehicles is an imposition on the state. There is no dispute among highway engineers as to the destructiveness of the solid tire. The crushing impact injures the surface and roadbed much more severely than the movement of the resilient tire.

The profit to the individual through decreased operating costs by the use of hard tires is no justification for the practice. This saving is realized at the expense of the taxpayers who finance the highway construction. It is an injustice which the public should not tolerate and which the state would be perfectly warranted in correcting by law.

THE MINNESOTA GAG LAW.

[New York Herald-Tribune.]

The Minnesota press gag law, upheld for the second time by the Supreme court of that state, permits a judge to suppress a newspaper without jury trial by permanent injunction on the charge that it "regularly publishes malicious, scandalous, and defamatory matter." The statute is susceptible of the most arbitrary use. It is a standing threat of instant death to any newspaper displeasing to officials in power who find in its utterances any color of the "nuisance" which the statute defines.

The constitution of Minnesota declares: "The liberty of the press shall forever remain inviolate, and all persons may freely speak, write and publish their sentiments on all subjects, being responsible for the abuse of such right." What is the meaning of this responsibility? Col. Robert R. McCormick and the American Newspaper Publishers' association have maintained that it means responsibility before a jury as the only body which has a right to determine it. Otherwise the constitutional guaranty can be practically wiped out by the opinion of an individual judge through the operation of the gag law which the Minnesota Supreme court holds constitutional.

The court also finds that the killing of a newspaper without jury trial does not violate the due process of law clause in the fourteenth amendment of the constitution of the United States. Appeal to the United States Supreme court lies in that issue. If such a measure as the Minnesota muzzling law has neither state nor federal check, the freedom of the press in this country is wide open to successful assault.

AGE AND CONTAGION.

IN this season of prevalence of the contagious diseases of childhood it is well to know the differences which relate to age. This is true of chickenpox, diphtheria, measles, scarlet fever and whooping cough. If, by extra care, a child can be carried beyond six years of age without having had these disorders, he will stand a fair chance of missing them throughout life. Furthermore, the older the child when he develops a case of contagious disease, the better his chance of recovery. With whooping cough, the period of maximum severity is infancy, with some of the others it is the fifth year, but with all the others, the older the child, the milder his disease.

There are two marked exceptions to the rule that contagion is most prevalent among children in the sixth year. Pneumonia is most prevalent among children in the first year of life, and influenza among those in the second year. Infantile paralysis is another exception, but that disease is too infrequent in its outbreaks and too irregular otherwise to be classed with the others.

There is very little chickenpox or scarlet fever among children under two. Unfortunately, the same cannot be said of whooping cough. Mothers do not understand the very great importance of protecting young children against whooping cough.

The distribution of contagion among babies under one, by months of life, is also worth knowing.

There is very little measles among babies less than two months old. Its maximum prevalence is in the tenth month. Scarlet fever and whooping cough are also infrequent among very young babies. The months of age in which the various diseases are most prevalent are: chickenpox and whooping cough, six months; scarlet fever, eleven months; measles, ten months; diphtheria, the same; pneumonia, seven months; and influenza, eight months.

There is far more contagion in the second half of the first year than in the first. In fact, young babies are not very susceptible to any infection except common colds. The manifestations of congenital syphilis are intermittent in their periods of prevalence. Many babies are born with symptoms of this disorder.

Others are without symptoms at birth, but tend to develop them in the latter part of the first year. Others escape this period of danger and do not show symptoms until adolescence. Smallpox has not been a disease of childhood for many years, but it is now showing some tendencies in that direction. Recent experience indicates that early childhood is the safest life period for smallpox vaccination. Diphtheria immunization, done in early childhood, gives the minimum amount of reaction.

CASTOR OIL IN COOKIES.

Mrs. S. writes us a method of giving castor oil to children. She makes cookies, using castor oil instead of butter or lard. She puts three tablespoonfuls of castor oil into enough dough to make an ordinary batch of cookies. She seasons strongly with nutmeg. Her boy was constipated and in bad condition. Eating castor oil cookies straightened him out.

EVENTUALLY THEY ARE ALKALI.

H. J. writes: Are oranges and grapefruit acid? They give some people violent indigestion when eaten on an empty stomach.

REPLY.

Both oranges and grapefruit contain fruit acids in considerable proportions. They are acid while in the mouth and stomach. In the small intestine the acid is neutralized. At the end, the juices of these fruits form alkali.

SLIM GIRLS AND T. B.

B. C. writes: A girl 21 years of age, a friend of mine, has just died from consumption. She was in good health until she commenced dieting in order that she might be slender. This dieting caused her to get consumption and cost her her life. Lynching is too good for whoever started this slim girl fad.

BEWARE OF LEAD WASHES.

REPLY.

LOOK IT UP YOURSELF.

Tucson, Ariz., Dec. 16.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—In a recent issue you fail to give a definite answer to the question of presidential succession in the event of the death of both President elect and Vice President elect. There was a definite plan established by congress a quarter of a century ago. Look it up yourself—or telephone some professor of political science. E. M. W.

The act of congress to which you refer simply follows the wording of the constitution so that it leaves open the question whether "removal, death, resignation, or inability" includes failure of an incumbent to qualify. We would suggest that you yourself take the matter up with a professor of political science if you are in touch with one in whom you have sufficient confidence.

INCOME TAX QUERIES BEGIN.

SELLER COULD ACT NOW.

Chicago, Dec. 30.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—The contract on the home I bought reads that if party falls behind on the monthly payment, he will be requested to pay balance on contract or the company will foreclose. Can they foreclose after one month or could I stay in the home 15 months without further payment? F. P.

If the buyer has merely a contract, then the seller could forfeit it for default without allowing the 15 month redemption period which is allowed in cases of foreclosure of a mortgage.

Salt sea, salt tears, and a wind-swept gull
Beating against the gale,
Fugitive years, and a derelict hull
With never a stitch of sail.

The sea takes back to her own again
All of the weary ones
Who left her track, the dry-eyed men
Dead-tired of inland suns.

The peace that comes from her healing hand
Drops down on the soul like balm,
The insect hums from the distant land
Fade off in a twilight calm.

THE APPROACHING MARRIAGE of the crown prince of Italy must be an awful pain in the neck for Mr. Mussolini—it's crowding him entirely off the front page. If they don't hurry up and get married the Duce is liable to declare war on Europe, annex Africa, or join Rotary; he's got to get back in the limelight somehow. And watch him. He will.

OH, WHAT A DELECTABLE SPOT!

We've got to quit reading about the Channel islands; they sound entirely too enticing. It isn't because Victor Hugo calls them "those lovely gardens of the sea." It isn't because they have no Jones 5 and 10 law, and it isn't because they never have blizzards and zero weather. Listen, in the Channel islands they have NO TAXES! Think of living in a country where you don't have to pay taxes. And not many tourists; it's off the beaten path. The Channel islands belong to England, but that's about as far as they go. The British parliament makes no laws for the Channel islands. As far as laws are concerned, they roll their own. They speak Norman-French, have Norman-French customs, and are not especially interested in things that have happened since William of Normandy moved over to England. That's the place where we want to live. One wouldn't hear anything about the tariff, radio, farm relief, stock markets, prohibition, or the Book-of-the-Month club from his neighbors in the Channel islands. They're not interested. And you could walk around with a Jersey cow on a leash, or an Alderney, or a Guernsey; it depended on which particular island you lived on. And the cabbage grow twelve feet high and you could sit around in the shade of the old cabbage tree. And everybody goes fishing every day. And there's no hit and run demon drivers, for if an auto hit anybody it couldn't run very far without jumping off the island into the English channel. And no taxes! No taxes! It must be like heaven.

THE MASSMEETING at Faneuil hall in Boston compared the killing of the three rum runners by coast guardsmen to the Boston massacre in which the first blood of the revolution was shed. Oh, dear! dear! dear! How truly dreadful. Still the wets will have to go quite a ways to equal what Lovejoy, Wendell Phillips, Charles Sumner, John Brown, William Lloyd Garrison, Henry Ward Beecher and other famous abolitionists said in protesting the arrest of runaway slaves by U. S. marshals and their return to their owners. Harken to William Lloyd Garrison, who said the constitution of the United States was "a covenant with death and an agreement with hell." But the anti-prohibition agitation does commence to sound like the anti-slavery crusade. Again tut! tut! And how dreadful!

ISLANDED IN THOUGHT.

Jamie Linn (James Weber), brother columnist, thinks that Lynnette in her "Songs to Lynn" in the Line must be speaking right to him, even though she doesn't spell his name right. Listen, James, have a heart. Enough people who are named Lynn, or know somebody named Lynn, think those poems are spoken right to them or their cousins or their brothers or their beaus to keep our telephone jangling all day long the morning after each and every one of them is published. "Who is this Lynnette?" they say, curiously or angrily, or amusedly and always insistently. "I known a Lynn and it's such an uncommon name, there can't be but one!" There can't, huh? Well, in our considered opinion there are more people in the world named Lynn than there are counties, towns, hotels, Pullman cars, and biographers named Shelby (and as we married one of them we ought to know). But as we were saying, James, don't you go complicating matters by setting all the L-i-n-n-s on us, too.

If, however, you can prove that the context of the latest "Song to Lynn" which you quoted refers directly to you, that's different:

Silence
Spreads around me like a lake,
Across which slips a solitary sail,
The name of you . . . of you. . . ."

Maybe you write your colyum islanded in thought with silence spreading around you like a lake. Is that it? Our experience as a colyum conductor is that every time we get islanded in thought with silence doing its stuff, in pops Hank and says what the hell, there ain't more'n two sticks of stuff on the galley and a coupla lousy poems. Ain't there going to be no colyum tomorrow? Well, say so, then, and I'll go back to settin' small ads. There's more money in settin' small ads than there is in settin' the colyum anyhow. Then we have to get off our island of thought and silence flees to the backwoods while we direct enough kicks at the seats of the mighty to fill a column. Still it's a lovely thought, James, if you can make it work. For all we know maybe it was aimed right at you or some column conductor. It might even mean us if it wasn't for Hank butting in. But Lynnette wouldn't know about Hank. She's a poet.

BANDITS IN CHICAGO are getting more and more into the habit of making their victims take off their clothes and fork 'em over. ### Never Mind, Mr. Atkins, She's Merely Young and Thoughtless!

R. H. L.: What! Call your Sealyham pup Mr. Atkins! Yes, I will, lykell! Ye Gods! MORE SNOW, more cold! But this is all to make us yearn for the gentle springtime, the wild flowers in the woods, and waters of the little lake breaking on the sandy shore. You won't appreciate these things without snow, cold, and ice. We don't mind saying that we're pretty well fed up on these things right now, but, pooh! winter hasn't got a good start yet. Oh, all right; come on, you blizzards! You'll just make us love the springtime more.

Strong, 19th Wis.; Capt. John A. Capo, 8th Ind.; Lieut. J. S. Berry, 19th Wis.; Lieut. Philander Smith, 8th Ind.; Lieut. J. Cutler, 11th Mich., and Assistant Surgeon John Wilkins, 14th Ill. cavalry.

NEW YORK.—The cotton captured at Savannah by Gen. Sherman is to be brought here and sold. The rights of the owners, if they have any, will be settled hereafter.

NEW YORK.—The bulkhead of the Dutch Gap canal was blown out in part, but the mass of disturbed earth fell back into the water, thus defeating the purpose of the explosion. Dredging will therefore become necessary.

NEW YORK.—News from Sheridan's headquarters confirms the report that Early has withdrawn many portions of his force far up the Shenandoah valley and fallen back with his infantry to Waynesboro.

NEW YORK.—The steamer Catawba brings New Orleans dates of Dec. 23. On the 19th Gen. Granger was at Franklin Creek, Miss., only 30 miles from Mobile.

NASHVILLE.—Hood has escaped. He crossed the river on Dec. 23 at Bainbridge. Gen. Stedman reached Decatur on the 24th and started reconnoitering when the fact of Hood's escape was discovered.

CHICAGO.—The legislature at Springfield is in session. Adjt. Gen. Fuller, who has been succeeded by Adjt. Gen. Haynie, has been chosen speaker of the house. The governor's message was delivered yesterday and would have reached us last night but for the failure of the St. Louis train.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

JANUARY 4, 1900.

CHICAGO.—Mayor Harrison and the Northwestern "L" attorneys agreed that the road shall have until May 31 to extend its line to Montrose avenue and until Jan. 1, 1905, to reach the city limits. The company agreed to forfeit to the city $100,000 now on deposit to guarantee the completion of the road by Dec. 31, 1899.

NAAUWPOORT — British artillery continued shelling the Boers' strong position at Colesberg. The British still hold the hill commanding the Colesberg bridge and road. Gen. French has turned the right flank of the enemy and has been reinforced. He expects Colesberg will soon be occupied by his troops.

WASHINGTON.—Senator Foraker of Ohio introduced in the senate an elaborate bill providing a general territorial system of government for Porto Rico.

CHICAGO.—The wedding of Miss Helen Shepard, daughter of Judge and Mrs. Henry M. Shepard, 4445 Grand boulevard, and Dexter Fairbank took place at the Shepard home. The Rev. E. M. Stires of Grace Episcopal church performed the ceremony.

10 YEARS AGO TODAY

JANUARY 4, 1920.

PARIS.—Ambassador Wallace officially notified the supreme council that President Wilson had agreed to convoke the first meeting of the council of the league of nations. It was later announced that Premier Clemenceau would issue the notice for the first meeting of the league.

CHICAGO.—Miss Jeanne Anna De Kay, 20 years old, an American girl who has spent the last eight years in Switzerland and in schools in England, mysteriously disappeared from her room in Hull house on Dec. 30, leaving behind no clew to her whereabouts. She recently arrived from Switzerland and was left by her brother at Hull house in care of Miss Jane Addams until she could find the kind of philanthropic work she desired to engage in. All her jewelry, money and belongings, except the clothes she wore, were left in the room.

CHICAGO.—Mrs. Henrietta Hoyt Forgan and Frederic E. Smith of Salt Lake City were married on New Year's day at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. Mitchell Hoyt, 2350 Lincoln Park West. Mr. Hoyt is a brother of the bride, who formerly was the wife of Robert R. Forgan.

RAZING THE MARKET STREET STUB.

Chicago, Jan. 3.—The effort to remove the elevated structure from Market street seems to have struck several snags. I suppose every Chicagoan is anxious to see this unsightly mass removed from our beautiful Wacker drive.

May we start with the idea that it is a very valuable property to the Lake street elevated, and is necessary to them in case of a tieup in the loop? They have a franchise which gives them the right to keep it there for some time to come.

Surely the management of that line is anxious to see our dream of the city beautiful come true and would help, providing it does not do serious injury to their property.

Could we offer a station at Lake street and Wacker drive, properly designed, in keeping with the future of this great improvement? Such a station could have four tracks, two for through traffic and two stub terminals for emergency use. This would give them all they now have at Madison street except the storage space, and for this purpose why not use the air rights over the North Western tracks just west of the river?

This would be quite expensive and the city should be willing to stand a large part of the cost, as the elevated would not benefit to any great extent by the change. This solution should satisfy the bondholders or any judge before whom the bondholders might go with a complaint. C. H. CHAPIN.

HAPPY NEW YEAR.

Glenview, Ill., Dec. 31.—For heaven's sake turn over a new leaf the first of January and give us something besides rum, booze and bootleggers.

Your dirty old sheet is filled with this stuff daily and we are getting sick of it.

The Volstead law is the best thing congress ever put over and will be on the books long after you are gone.

M. S. DILLER.

THE DAY OF GRACE.

Chicago, Dec. 27.—Your editorial, "The Day of Grace," was one of the things that helped to make Christmas day for me—as I hope it did for all your readers—more Christmasy.

It is an editorial of fine discrimination, historical accuracy, and encouragement for the future of our civilization as increasingly the influence of Jesus extends itself into the mind and so into the everyday life of the people in our country and the world. If I am not mistaken the "Day of Grace" editorial is the most powerful sermon preached in furtherance of the cause of Christian civilization in the Chicago area, and I can think of no sermon that could surpass it preached by any minister.

Wishing you every encouragement and success in the advocacy of the cause of Christianity in this Chicago area,

CIVIL SERVICE IN THE POSTOFFICE.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 27.—In your column headed "If I Were President of the United States" the following appeared on Dec. 21:

"Editor: I would have the civil service commission repeal its rule which requires a man, regardless of education, character, and good health, to be a certain exact height for mail clerk or carrier, or I would have the rule so rigidly enforced that there could be no exceptions through political pull, as frequently exercised in the Chicago area.

"JOHN FOWLER."

The commission would like to have Mr. Fowler or any one else name a single instance in which the height requirement for postoffice clerk or carrier has been waived because of political pressure, in Chicago or anywhere else.

Under the regulations, height and weight requirements are omitted in the examination of persons entitled to preference because of military service. But they are omitted in the case of all persons entitled to such preference; no exception is made in the case of an individual. JOHN DOYLE,

Secretary United States Civil Service Commission.

THE END OF THE DECADE.

Chicago, Dec. 31.—Why do so many speak of the year 1930 as the beginning of a new decade? Even your leading cartoonist appears to make this mistake. The year 1930 is the last of the third decade, and the fourth decade will not begin until Jan. 1, 1931.

MARGARET THOMPSON.

PERILS AT PALOS PARK.

Chicago, Dec. 30.—In this morning's TRIBUNE appears a short story of a toboggan accident at Palos Park last evening. I've never witnessed a more gruesome accident than the one mentioned, when four young men were seriously injured rather than just one. But the story didn't tell of two other mishaps that occurred at the slides that same evening, nor of the dangerous condition of the slides. When dozens of people are hurt each week where thousands go for winter recreation isn't it time for action? And yet the sliding goes on. E. E. G.

JOKER IN TREATY STRIPS RUTHENIA OF ITS OWN RULE

Czech Minority Constant Source of Friction.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

UZHOROD, Czecho-Slovakia, Jan. 3.—The apparently unsolvable minority problem which supplies nine-tenths of the constant friction in central Europe and the Balkans finds a typical example in the little country of Carpathian Ruthenia, snuggled among the Carpathian mountains at the eastern tip of the Czecho-Slovakian republic, in the territory which, until the end of the war, formed the northwestern corner of Hungary.

In religion, culture, language, customs, and character the half million inhabitants of this picturesque country have nothing in common with the Czechs, who rule the territory from Prague. The Ruthenians pride themselves that they have maintained a racial unity for the last 1,000 years. They are Russians, but like the Russians of Galicia, the Bukovina, and southern Russia, they have lived separately so long that they have developed their own ethnological traits.

They are Greek Catholics, while the Czechs are Roman Catholics; they use the Russian alphabet and speak a tongue closely akin to Russian. Theirs is a primitive mountain agricultural country, while Bohemia is predominantly industrial. They are close relations to the Russians in character, whereas the Czechs bear many traces of Germanic influences.

Like most of the racial groups in Central Europe who are governed by another people, the Ruthenians are verbose and specific in their complaints, but hesitant and confused in their proposed remedies. They base their claims, however, on article 10 of the treaty concluded in September, 1919, between the allies and Czecho-Slovakia at Saint Germain en Laye, which states:

"Czecho-Slovakia undertakes to constitute the Ruthene territory south of the Carpathians within frontiers delimited by the principal allied and associated powers as an autonomous unit within the Czecho-Slovak state, and to accord to it the fullest degree of self government compatible with the unity of the Czecho-Slovak state."

Joker Causes Trouble.

The joker which has caused all the trouble between the Czechs and the Ruthenians is contained in the latter part of the clause, for Prague, in its desperate effort to consolidate its unruly little republic, quickly decided that in Ruthenia, as in Slovakia, only the most microscopic degree of self government was "compatible with the unity of the Czecho-Slovak state."

But there was still another joker in article 11 of the same treaty. This article provided for a governor of the Ruthenian territory who "shall be appointed by the president of the Czecho-Slovakian republic and shall be responsible to the Ruthene diet." Since the governor and all the important officials are appointed in Prague, since the Ruthene diet has never existed except on paper, and since any law enacted by the theoretical assembly is subject to the president's veto, the Ruthenians cannot be called cranks when they wail that they have no voice in their own government.

FOX STATEMENT HALTS TALK OF A RECEIVERSHIP

New York, Jan. 3.—(AP)—The protective committee of class A stockholders of the Fox Film corporation today issued an additional statement, expressing satisfaction with William Fox's disclosure as to assets and earnings, and making no further reference to contemplated receivership action.

Mr. Fox's statement, indicating assets above liabilities of $73,000,000, and earnings for 1929 of $19,000,000, was described as "reassuring," but it was added that the committee is seeking to obtain more detailed figures.

"The willingness of Mr. Fox for the first time since the company's difficulties to make public these figures," the committee stated, "indicates that the committee's activities are having the desired effect."

CAPTIVE GUNMEN FOUND LINKED TO THREE MURDERS

Gangsters Are Identified by Officers.

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 3.—(AP)—Identification of the four gangsters arrested in a building within a half block of the executive mansion here last night as gunmen who have been involved in at least three murders was completed by government investigators and local police today.

Jack Bell, alias Jack Roberts was identified as the man who had been indicted for the robbery of a mail truck in Terre Haute, Ind., two years ago. Although his companion, Jack Morrison turned state's evidence, Bell escaped conviction. Morrison was later murdered.

Allen O'Hara of Clinton, Ind., was identified by St. Louis officials as the man who furnished guns in the "Wall street Bell Telephone killing" at St. Louis about two years ago.

Partner of One Hanged.

The St. Louis officials also identified Thomas Fagan of Wabash, Ind., as the partner of Tom Lowry, who was hanged recently for the murder of a police officer. Fagan was with Lowry when the latter killed the policeman, but saved his neck by turning witness for the prosecution.

Homer Wright, alias W. T. Moore, of St. Louis was revealed as a well known stickup man of St. Louis. He is said to have served six years in prison for robbery with a gun.

Information from Louisville, Ky., indicated that the gang had been active in that vicinity several years ago and had been engaged in running liquor from Chicago to Louisville.

Police and government officials are tight lipped concerning the charges to be placed against the quartet. The gangsters are being held in the city jail as federal prisoners.

Two Captured with Loot.

Dixon, Ill., Jan. 3.—[Special.]—Deputy Sheriff Frank Richardson captured two alleged Frankford, Ind., bandits in the lobby of the Dixon postoffice this morning. They were Percy Allie, 21, and Buel Amos, 17. The pair were filling out checks on local banks. Both were armed. Handcuffed, they led the deputy to a touring car parked nearby which was filled with boots, shoes, socks, jackets, shirts, canned goods, and cutlery.

MEXICAN 'JACK THE RIPPER' SLAYS 2; SEEK AN ESCAPED MANIAC

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 3.—A "Jack the Ripper" is terrorizing the suburban district of Mexico City. The Mexican "Ripper" attacks men instead of women. Two men were found dead here this morning, both bearing the marks of the "Ripper" who carries a long and exceedingly sharp knife with which he cuts the throats of his victims. The men were found with their heads almost completely severed. Both were strangers to one another and lived in different sections of the city. Neither had been robbed.

Several times in the last month persons have been found slain in a similar manner in the suburbs of the capital. The laboring classes, among whom the "Ripper" always picks his victims, are afraid to go on the streets after dark.

It is suspected that the "Ripper" is a maniac who escaped from an asylum at Mexcoac, 8 miles outside the city, who while there had a mania for cutting the throats of the inmates. The "Ripper" attacks only people dressed in the manner generally like the inmates of the asylum, mostly working people who wear the clothing with which they entered the institution.

Tomlinson Novel Hailed as Great Work.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"All Our Yesterdays," by H. M. Tomlinson (Harper's).

One of the most eagerly awaited novels of many years is H. M. Tomlinson's "All Our Yesterdays," for he promised some time ago to write a novel of the war. Every one who knew the power and the beauty and, at times, the grandeur of his style, knew that when he wrote about the war the words would be important and memorable.

How important and how memorable it is almost impossible to communicate; for each judgment of them will be colored by each person's own feeling for words, for the subject or for the attitude which the author has toward it. None can deny, no matter what his own attitude toward any phase of Mr. Tomlinson's genius or subject, that no finer nor more powerful picture of the war has been written. It seems to me that Mr. Tomlinson's genius therein is made up both of style and his attitude toward his subject in equal degrees.

First there is his style. Tomlinson writes what the ordinary reader calls "difficult" prose. His style is "involved" to some. To others it is merely rich with overtones. The most uncritical reader cannot deny he has a feeling for words as delicate as any poet's. The reader may lose himself a little in the thought of a Tomlinson sentence, but one certainly loses himself, completely and happily in its rhythm, its almost singing quality. Tomlinson writes lovely prose.

About his attitude toward his subject there can be no more doubt than about the beauty of his prose. It is detached. It is seasoned. It is intelligent. The war to him was something which happened not only to the world, but to each human soul upon which it impinged, and differently to whole groups of people. To the men at the front it was one thing. To the men at G. H. Q. it was another. To newspaper correspondents it was another. To men at home it was still another, although every one of them was in some way actively participating in the war.

Mr. Tomlinson explains better than I have ever had it explained in a book that strange, remote, intense sense of closeness that men have who fought. Immediately they recognize one another. Immediately there is a tie between them. The same tie never exists between combatants and noncombatants. Those who never talked about the war when they came home [and most of them didn't, at all] burst into speech immediately they recognize someone who can speak that tense, vivid language.

It is a phenomenon which everyone has noticed. Mr. Tomlinson never speaks directly of that fact [except once when he makes a man in the intelligence department understand why a friend preferred to stay a private in infantry to becoming a member of the intelligence service]. But the author does build up the intensity of human reaction in the various classes, separate in their emotions.

For pictures of wartime France there has been nothing to equal whole chapters in "All Our Yesterdays." The sense of unreality that must have surged through intelligent and sensitive men as they heard a bird chirping on a spring day when annihilation was muttering in the distance, the primeval urge of man to continue his daily tasks, to keep his world in its rhythm while even the skies were mad—the whole tonal quality of the war Mr. Tomlinson gets into his intense pictures.

One is so terrifically moved by the power and the beauty of the last half of the book that one forgets the first two parts of it really have little to do with the last—except that they are a picture of the hysteria of the Boer war and of the intrigue in a wilderness being fought over by German and French seekers after gold. They do, of course, mold the mood of the last half of the book. The first part is a brilliant piece of reportorial work about London and the second almost creepy with the same kind of adventure that filled "Gallions Reach." They give the backgrounds of the national consciousness, the important characters in the book. But the characters really matter very little. The author—the writer of the book, for it is in the first person—realized that in the great push [and the whole war was in a sense that] individual human life mattered not at all. It is the whole surge and rhythm of war that he gives.

If I had been advising Mr. Tomlinson about his book I should have urged him either to omit those two first quarters—certainly the second quarter—or to pare the first quarter down to a minimum. For those two portions are likely to put the reader off, to slow down his passion for the book. That it reaches fever heat further along is only proof of the fact that there is too much preliminary. That is the theme of the book, that human souls build their hatreds into Juggernauts that trample them and that all our yesterdays breed our tomorrows and he may have done the first half intentionally slowly. But the fact remains that the last half of the book is superb, and the first half by comparison only very good.

BRITISH AUTHOR

H. M. TOMLINSON.
[From a drawing by Powys Evans.]

His latest novel, "All Our Yesterdays," deals with war and post-war England. It's title is suggestive of those lines from Shakespeare's Macbeth: "And all our yesterdays have lighted fools the way to dusty death."

Asks Londoners to Rediscover River Thames

British Writer Takes Up New Cause.

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON. — [Special Correspondence.]—It does not often happen that a writer launches a great social campaign, but that is what A. P. Herbert, the creator of "Topsy" and the author of the best light verse of our day (on this side of the Atlantic), has just done.

A. P. HERBERT.

Mr. Herbert is a politician in his spare time, besides being a skittles champion, and he has several times appeared as the champion of real conservative principles. Now, however, he has become a social reformer, because he has realized that the time is ripe for the revival of the Thames steamboats. Only they are not to be anything like the old Thames steamboats, which were clumsy paddle boats (some of them may still be seen paddling upon the Seine by those who travel by water to Passy and beyond).

The new ones are to be fine affairs, with some speed. Mr. Herbert has shown himself an astute campaigner, and he has enlisted the opposition of Lord Banbury, who opposes the scheme with all the zeal with which he has opposed everything else in recent years. Mr. Herbert is much encouraged by this fact, and so am I.

The River Thames is almost unknown to Londoners. It is known to watermen such as H. M. Tomlinson and Mr. Herbert, and Mr. Cobden-Sanderson, the publisher; and I am sure that these two others will help Mr. Herbert's plan along as much as they can.

American publishers now are in London—or recently have departed. Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Knopf were here a fortnight ago, and Mr. Wells of Harpers and Mr. Doran of Doubleday-Doran are now actively in our midst. They are just in time to catch English authors before they take flight for warmer climes.

R. C. Sherriff, the author of "Journey's End," has been receiving some unique honors in London. He has admitted that the play was originally planned as a novel, that he began to write it in that form, using for the purpose the brief time between 9:30 and 11 o'clock at night, and that he found that he would never finish the book at the rate he was going. He therefore abandoned the novel and began afresh upon the same theme as a play, which he completed in four months.

Miss Sheila Kaye-Smith is the latest novelist to become a regular literary critic. She is to review all books for the Sunday Express here. The literary section of the Daily Express already is written by St. John Ervine, while Richard Aldington is announced as the new causerist to the London Sunday Referee. As Arnold Bennett contributes a regular literary article to the Evening Standard, we should soon begin to know all about the new books from an expert angle.

New York Authors' New Year's Jollity Recounted Herewith

BY ALTA MAY COLEMAN.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—A day "to think over past sins and resolve to improve them" . . . that's how somebody at Emanie Sachs' ["The Terrible Siren"] party defined New Year's.

To mention but a tenth of the guest list: Edna Ferber, Mr. and Mrs. F. P. A., Russell Crouse and his wife, Alison Smith; Lois Long and her husband, Peter Arno; Rebecca Lowrie, Fannie Hurst, Harrison Smith, Katherine Cornell, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bellamy, Henry Seidel Canby, Irita Van Doren, Isabel Paterson, who says she got the last chapter of her new novel to Horace Liveright only eight hours before the knell of 1929.

It's called "The Road of the Gods," and is an historical romance laid in the last years of the pagan dispensation—if you know what that means. We didn't until both Will Cuppy and Herbert Gorman explained that the story deals with one of the Druidical tribes that vanished before advancing civilization. . . . Now boil that down to "a romance among the Druids." It sounds unusual and interesting.

Herbert Gorman, by the way, is devoting working as well as leisure hours to the ladies, being engaged on a series of short fictional biographies of les grandes amoureuses ranging from Ninon de L'Enclos to Gaby des Lys. He leaves for Scotland early in April to gather material for his new biography of Mary Queen of Scots, going first to Edinburgh to work from Scottish state papers; thence to London for research in the British museum; then to Paris—for rest and the rediscovery of a certain little restaurant on the left bank.

A week ago H. L. Mencken sailed for Europe to be gone two months. The London naval conference and Munich and some of the beer Huneker used to write about being his main objectives. He earned his vacation by completing his new book, "A Treatise on the Gods," which deals with religions as a factor in civilization. It is new from the ground up, as 'twere, not being a compilation of previously published articles.

A Real Novel About Chicago—Published Today

MUSIC IN THE STREET

Author of "The White Girl"

The story of a girl who comes to Chicago with forty dollars, two new dresses, an extra pair of shoes and a beautiful faith in the power of love.

Not since Dreiser's "Sister Carrie" has there been such a fearless and honest portrayal of the character of a young, eager, passionate girl thrown on her own resources, struggling to find some standards of conduct in a day of ever shifting, uncertain morals.

Rich with the high-hearted ecstasy of youth, gayly shameless in its revelations of secret fears and hopes of the gallant modern girl, tender and intense in its passionate, surprising story, "Music in the Street" is a distinguished and fascinating book.

SYNOPSIS.

John Andrew Kellogg, heir to millions, asks Barbara Thornton to marry him. She agrees but not very graciously. When she hears that he has just lost his job she insults him and calls him a playboy. He calls on his attorney, David Craig, who tells him that he will never inherit the money his father left if he doesn't prove himself capable of managing his life in a sensible way. He tells him that since he has lost one job after another he will have to double five thousand dollars in thirty days or live on an income from a trust fund for the rest of his life. John Andrew telephones this to Barbara and she offers to give him five thousand to turn over to Craig. He refuses and tells her he is going out to Hollywood. She is furious with him and breaks the engagement. He decides to go to San Francisco and starts for California. On the train he meets Anne Ames who is on her way to Hollywood with a letter of introduction to a movie producer. They become interested in each other. Before saying good-by in Utah John Andrew tells Anne that he will see her in Los Angeles in a few days.

Arrived in San Francisco John Andrew meets an old school friend, Peter Merriam, on the street. Pete is selling Mercury cars and tries to sell one to John Andrew. They go for a trial spin and with John Andrew at the wheel have a slight smash-up. In order to keep Pete from losing his job John Andrew buys the custom built roadster for $4,980. He also gives all but a hundred dollars of his expense money to an old man with an invention without asking what the machine is. He drives to Los Angeles in the Mercury and sees Anne at the Consolidated studio where she is being tried out. He makes an engagement to take her to dinner. Before starting out he looks at the old man's plans, and learns they are for a noiseless camera. He calls on Fitzgerald, the chief engineers of Consolidated and sells him the patent for twenty-five thousand dollars, the money to be turned over to him when Blake, the inventor, signs the contract.

A DILEMMA.

The hotel manager asked John Andrews the amount of the check he wished to cash.

"Just twenty," John Andrew told him. "Needed a few pennies for this and that—"

"And when you leave, you'll want to pay us by check?"

"Um," said John Andrew. Certainly no sense in going into detail; John Andrews was beginning to find his ears warming, although he did not blame the manager in the least; hotels were probably struck with bad papers ever so often, and needed to be cautious. And so John Andrew, trying to be helpful, said, "It isn't a very large check, but my New York bank will gladly verify that I'm hardly in the habit of trying to pull anything funny . . . why don't you wire them and get a description of me, if that's all you're worrying about?" and so laid his own trap.

"Shall we wire them something like this: 'John A. Kellogg wishes to cash checks up to . . . say several hundred . . . is this satisfactory, and is Kellogg in Los Angeles?' I'll word that better—clearer—but you haven't any objection to our sending such a wire, sir, and your paying for it?"

And John Andrew snapped the trap himself.

"Wait just a minute," he said.

If the wire was received and cared for by some one in the bank who knew who John Andrew was, an immediate consent would be wired; they would realize that ample funds would be placed there—either by John Andrew himself or through the estate—before any check was presented for payment. But suppose it was handled by some clerk who only knew that John A. Kellogg's account showed exactly $20 . . . no more, no less.

'He didn't seem to know you very well, did he?"

"Let it go," John Andrew said soberly. "I'll arrange to cash the check somewhere else."

"Very good, sir. Just as you please." Even more quietly, "the hotel is entirely filled up, Mr. Kellogg, and we took a reservation for your room before you were here; if it is convenient, may be have the room tonight?"

"What you mean to say," John Andrew said, his lunch suddenly balling like lead in his stomach, "is that you want to see the color of my money."

"Under the circumstances—"

While it might be considered stretching his unwritten, unspoken agreement with Craig to follow exactly the technicalities of making $5,000 increase to $10,000, yet [if he could do it] he ought to feel free in getting hold of some one he knew in Southern California to get him out of this mess; some one who'd tell the Poinsettia that John A. Kellogg wasn't trying to do them out of their money, and would pay his bill at the end of the week . . . who . . . there must be some one he knew . . . there had been Stuffy Chamberlain, who . . . no; Stuff lived in South California . . . somebody . . .

Will Hale! Will, the noisy native son; by gosh, Will had borrowed a fifty from him in their senior year; Will always had as much cash as John Andrew, and had just forgotten to pay it back . . .

"Where there's a Will, there's a way," John Andrew said. "May I have your telephone book, please?"

"Hello, Will," John Andrew said. "This is Andy Kellogg . . . I am . . . no real estate, William, but you can buy me a drink; they don't know me here . . . and that isn't a joke, either . . . I'm at the Poinsetta, and without going into the horrible details, will you tell the manager here that I'll pay my bill when the week's out . . . what? . . . you darn' well heard me say who I was, my sweet William . . . no, I didn't say I was Anderson, nor any other Swede, I said very distinctly Andy Kellogg . . . what'd you say? . . . don't horse me today, Will. I'm low enough now; I could crawl under a worm and he'd never feel it. All you've got to do, young fellow, if you want to buy me some arohibition poison later, is to tell the manager that I'm good for whatever I run up here . . . what? Say that again; I missed it . . . who expects you to pay the bill if I don't? Who said anything about that? All you've got to do is to tell the manager . . . you were stuck that way once before, were you? Well . . ."

There was a long pause, during which John Andrew placed the receiver on the desk and lighted a cigaret.

When he picked it up again and placed it to his ear, he said clearly, "I wanted you to do something for me, Hale. Forget it. However, as it turns out, you can do something else for me. Please pack the finest bag you have—as I remember, you took one of mine one vacation, and never brought it back again, but let that go—pack a suitcase with shirts and ties and everything you need, and then send for a cab. After you get inside, drive to the ocean; find the deepest spot you can, and then jump in."

"He didn't know you very well, did he?" the manager asked. After all, he found himself rather liking Kellogg; he steeled himself with the knowledge that many vagabonds were likeable.

"And you can go with him," John Andrew snapped. He grinned immediately, wryly, and said. "Sorry. Didn't mean to let my disgust run over on you. That fellow used to . . . O, well, there's no sense worryin' about it now. And there's no reason why I should leave this hotel. I'm comfortable here, even if I look crooked. Your bill, to date, will be paid before night? That satisfactory?"

Quite satisfactory; in the meantime, Mr. Kellogg would not increase the indebtedness? Later, naturally, when his credit was more firmly established . . .

"I ought to be pretty disgusted with you," John Andrews said.

The Poinsettia's chief found himself saying, "I trust you'll find your stay with us entirely pleasant, Mr. Kellogg," and wondered why he said it.

John Andrew grinned at him.

"My Japanese boy has a saying he's very fond of," said John Andrew. "It's about a lot of monkeys; they established a dictatorship in the jungle, and decided that all of the animals should hang by their tails from the trees. It went pretty hard with the elephants."

"You mean—"

Pay his bill by evening? How? Twenty-five thousand to be his and his partner's in another day or so. Millions his own at the same time . . . and now being dunned for a hotel bill. John Andrew wondered if they'd kick him out bodily if he didn't pay and with that happy prospect in mind went up to his room. The whole matter was idiotic.

The hotel bill, he guessed, could not be over forty of fifty dollars. Very carefully he went over his possessions, and inventoried them:

Four suits of clothes,
Nine shirts,
Twelve handkerchiefs,
Three pair of shoes,
Three suits of pajamas,
One silk lounging robe [very gaudy],
Two large bags,
Silver brushes.

Why, almost any of the articles were worth more than the hotel bill could possibly be; the thing to do would be to take one of the bags—the fitted one, which John Andrew thought was too ornate anyhow—and load it with some of his belongings; then go down the street to the fellow who had loaned him $20 on the watch, and zip! just like that! get sufficient to satisfy the hotel.

It came to John Andrew then that the management might not be in accord with him leaving [even if, as he knew, only temporarily] with a bag in his hand, but he was not interested in their feelings; if anything were said, he'd tell 'em to go up to the room, and they'd find plenty of things remaining—certainly more than enough to meet the bill, if they feared he was departing.

THE CAST.

Christina ..... Janet Gaynor
Jan ..... Charles Morton
Niklas ..... Rudolph Schildkraut
Dirk Torpe ..... Harry Cording
The Woman ..... Lucy Dorraine

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

In "Christina," as in "Four Devils," little Janet Gaynor finds herself pitted against a designing and sophisticated woman of the world who covets Janet's man and will stop at nothing to win him. Again the disputed male is Charles Morton. Again a circus man has a prominent part in the action. Again true love triumphs.

This time the story's locale is Holland and Janet is a sweet Dutch maiden, daughter of an old toymaker. Many local huskies long to wed her, including one Dirk, champion fisherman. But Christina has other ideas.

On a shelf in her home is a small statue—made by her father, I presume—of a handsome fellow, stunningly accoutered, riding a white house. He is Christina's idol and ideal, and she has made up her mind to remain single until somebody like unto this glorious creature shall come cantering into her life.

Imagine her ecstasy when, attracted by fanfare in the streets, she looks out of her window and beholds the vision of her dreams! There he is, stalwart and handsome, wearing a showy uniform, a tall, plumed hat, and—RIDING A WHITE HORSE!

(The circus has come to town, you see.)

Christina sallies forth to get her man. She and the nice boy that he turns out to be fall immediately in love and Jan plans to leave the show and remain in Marken.

But the lady who owns the circus feels differently on the subject. She, too, is crazy for Jan, and goes, literally, gunning for him.

Poor Christina finds herself in dark and devious circumstances, rendered more appalling by her father's loss of eyesight. But happiness is hers toward the end—where the talking sequence pops out at you surprisingly from the hitherto quiet screen.

The picture is dreamlike and fantastic. It is quaintly set and costumed and excellently acted. Quite well directed, too, though Mr. Howard has been more intuitive in other films.

Charles Morton proves the best possible substitute for Charles Farrell, who, most of us wish, would always play opposite little Janet. Mr. Morton resembles Mr. Farrell and has much the same manner and appeal.

Freshman Class Gets Better Scholarship Record at the U. of C.

Undergraduate scholarship at the University of Chicago is on the upward trend. This was shown yesterday in the scholarship report of Walter A. Payne, university recorder and examiner. It was revealed that only one-half of one per cent of the freshman class "flunked" at the end of the first quarter which closed on Dec. 20. Only 40, or about one per cent, of the entire undergraduate body of 4,000 students were dismissed because of low grades. Last year 60 students flunked out during the first quarter.

The improvement in the general scholarship of the freshmen was attributed in part to the fact that about 125 freshmen out of the 750 enrolled are attending the university on scholarships. Of the four who were dropped from the university, two were men and two women.

The winter term opened yesterday with an enrollment of between 6,500 and 7,000 for all departments.

Fight to Overcome Heart Disease Renews Strength on Monday

Chicago will turn its attention Monday to 65,000 citizens who suffer from heart disease. On that day the Chicago Heart association will open its annual drive for funds to save the cardiac sufferer and return him to his normal place in society.

Many cases of heart disease are entirely preventable, according to Mrs. Gertrude Howe Britton, secretary of the association, while some are curable. In most cases, she said, cardiacs can lead happy, almost normal lives if they are taught how to live and work within the limitations of their disease.

"We are attempting to do for heart disease what has been done for tuberculosis by concentrated effort," Mrs. Britton explained. "Tuberculosis has fallen from first to sixth place in the list of causes of death, and conservative physicians promise that within fifty years it will cease to be a serious factor in mortality.

"The same type of education in the care and prevention of heart disease should reduce its toll from one death out of every five, as it is in Chicago today, to those cases where the heart is worn out by old age. Of the age group from 40 to 50 years—people in the prime of life—the Chicago area has as high a death rate per 100,000 population as the whole group from one to 80 years old."

The drive will be in the form of the sale of heart stamps which will be distributed Monday. Education of the city in the prevention of heart disease, beginning with childhood, as well as aiding those already afflicted is an object of the association.

The Inquiring Reporter

Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question.

The Tribune will pay $5 for each question accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send your name and address with your question to "Inquiring Reporter," Chicago Tribune. For today's question David Deutsch, 65 Lewis street, New York, N. Y., was awarded $5.

The Question.

Why are you still a bachelor?

The Answers.

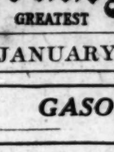
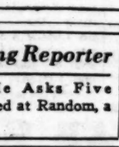
P. M. Salley, Norfolk, Va., railroad clerk—Because I always have had enough trouble to support myself. Most single men have at one time or another become engaged, whether they could afford it or not, but I have even escaped that tragedy. However, I will admit I have seen many a girl that I wished I could marry.



Edward Lowery, 29 South La Salle street, advertising—One reason is because I haven't made my fortune. Nowadays the women expect more in the way of money than the ordinary man has. When you make your fortune the princess will marry you, and all that sort of thing. Once married, she divorces you and you pay her alimony for the rest of your life.

Frank Straka, 5431 22d street, engineering student—In the first place, the financial end of it. I consider the girls of today are a little too serious minded to marry a college student. Another thing I consider a man doesn't reach a sensible age until he is about 35.

George Harris, 451 Wrightwood avenue, stock and bond salesman—I'll tell you: the first reason is I haven't found the woman that I think could make me happy and who would be contented with me. Another reason, it is much more comfortable in life to travel alone without the extra burden of a wife, uncertain creatures that they are.



Whady Slaw Kleps, 1115 Damen avenue, salesman—There are thousand of reasons. In fact, that question is unanswerable. You know, when a man gets to a certain age, say 28 or 30, he becomes phlegmatic about marriage. He doesn't make the required effort to get married.

Freudian, Here for Lectures, Calls People Playthings of Nature

When it comes to the topic of the psychology of clothes, or matrimony, or the conduct of the female of the species, Dr. Fritz Wittels of Vienna speaks, as he did yesterday, both as authority and as author. The psychoanalyst, whose volume, "The Critique of Love," is just off the press, is the guest of Dr. Hans Deutsch of 20 East Delaware place while he is in Chicago for a series of lectures.

Under the auspices of the Chicago Association for Child Study and Parent Education and the Illinois Society for Mental Hygiene, Dr. Wittels will speak on "Psychoanalysis and Other Contemporary Schools" at the Chicago Woman's club on Jan. 6. On Jan. 8 he will discuss "Freud's Idea of Sex and the Superego," and on Jan. 10 his lecture will be on "Comparison of the Primitive, the Child and the Dream Mind."

"The longer skirts are presaging a revival of maternity," he declared. "More decorous dress will inspire greater respect. One may step up to a young sophisticate, slap her on the back and call her by her Christian name, but one doesn't do that with a young matron, or even a flapper with skirts to her ankles."

Five Children Sing as Parents Celebrate 60 Years of Marriage

As five of their six children, all grown, with families of their own, sang old Swedish songs last night in honor of the sixtieth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hogfeldt, 5338 Christiana avenue, that couple looked back over their married life and were happy.

About them in the North Side Mission church, Artesian and Albany avenues, where they have been members for 38 years, were their neighbors and friends, children and grandchildren. The celebration was given by the church and there were talks by the Rev. Harold Erickson, pastor; the Rev. Otto Hogfeldt, a brother of Fred and editor of the Mission Friend, Swedish church publication; the Rev. F. M. Johnson, and Prof. N. W. Lund of North Park college.

The five children who sang were John, Carl, Gust, Otto, and Mrs. Esther Swanson. Mrs. Virginia Latham, the oldest grandchild, sang a song, too, and two other grandchildren, Doris Swanson and June Hogfeldt, were flower girls. Mr. Hogfeldt has been in the tailoring business for years. Both he and Mrs. Hogfeldt are 85 years old.

SYMPHONY CONCERT REAL MEMORIAL FOR THOMAS AND OAKLEY

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Every year, as close to Jan. 4 as the days of the week will permit, the Friday afternoon and Saturday evening programs of the Chicago Symphony orchestra are played in commemoration of the death of its founder and first conductor, Theodore Thomas. Yesterday's concert, however, became a memorial both to him and to another man who was an important figure in the orchestra's more recent development. He was Horace S. Oakley, for the last ten years vice president of the Orchestral association, who died at sea Dec. 15.

It is twenty-five years ago today that Theodore Thomas laid down his earthly baton. He would have been proud if he could have come back for a bit yesterday to hear how Mr. Stock and the orchestra were continuing his own traditions through the memory of Bach, Beethoven, and Richard Strauss, three composers whom in his lifetime he considered the greatest. He would have been especially proud of the Bach.

For in the midst of tremendous seasonal activities Mr. Stock found time last fall to take the Passacaglia and Fugue in C minor, the one written by Bach for harpsichord with pedals, and transcribe it into terms of the modern orchestra. Having done so, Mr. Stock dedicated it to the memory of Mr. Oakley.

It is without doubt as fine a Bach transcription as the modern world has heard. Mr. Stock's amazing skill and resourcefulness in orchestration is here applied to interpretation of the Bach spirit, and the results are marvelous. In the light of other and bad Bach transcriptions made by men who really should have known better, it is perhaps easier to understand how marvelous Mr. Stock's results have become.

Never for an instant has he lost the dignity of the structure, though never for a moment has he permitted dignity to become dullness. The orchestral colorings are bright and warm throughout, and likewise he has never permitted brightness to become superficial or trivial. It is a fine reconstruction of a fine work, and as for the performance, it was something to give one new and greatly respectful ideas about Bach.

Beethoven followed, the "Marcia Funebre" from the "Eroica" symphony as a special memorial to Mr. Oakley, continuing on the regular course with the symphony that came seventh on the list. Here, too, was a performance that can justly stand as a model of all future performances.

After the intermission Mr. Stock returned with that mightiest of the Strauss works, "Ein Heldenleben," first played in America by Mr. Thomas, and for that reason, as well as for its own artistic dimensions, a composition that belonged on such a program. With such high art was a solemn occasion fittingly observed.

Braganza Princess Enters Reinhardt's School of Acting

[Copyright: 1930: By the New York Times.]

VIENNA, Jan. 3.—It has been learned from Max Reinhardt's school of acting that a new pupil of royal blood is about to start a course in stage training there. Princess Elizabeth Nada of Braganza (the old royal house of Portugal), who recently came here from New York for the purpose of being tested by Herr Reinhardt, has been accepted. Herr Reinhardt believes he has found in her an extremely promising actress.

The young princess was born in London in 1910, the daughter of Anita Stewart, American film star, and Prince Miguel of Braganza, following the marriage in 1909. To marry Miss Stewart the prince was obliged to abandon claim to the throne of Portugal and to the title held by his father, the duke of Bizeau. The daughter of this romantic marriage is closely related to former Empress Zita of Austria. The princess will receive her training in Zita's former theater, the private Hapsburg theater, situated on the grounds of the Schoenbrunn palace.

Belgian Royalty Goes to Rome for Wedding

Special Train Cheered Leaving Brussels.

BY ANN SOMERS HOUSE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BRUSSELS, Jan. 3.—Princess Marie Jose tonight waved "au revoir" out of the window of the royal train at the Brussels north station as two locomotives pulled it away en route to Rome, where, on Jan. 8, she will become the bride of Prince Humbert, heir to the Italian throne.

Marie Jose was visibly moved as she stood in the pale green and gold parlor of the luxurious train. Her face, framed by blond curls under a beige and brown tight fitting hat, was pale.

King Albert and Queen Elizabeth stood back of the princess, and at her side were her brothers, Crown Prince Leopold and Prince Charles, and her sister-in-law, Astrid.

Flowers that had come with the Italian train from Rome filled the air with a strong scent, and a riot of flags of both dynasties decorated the station. About 20,000 people crowded the front of the station, and 2,000 were inside, all roaring, "Vive la princess."

With their silk hats in hand, the government ministers bowed deeply to the royalty at their departure. Ten long cars and two engines made up the train. The ceilings of the cars are incrusted with the coats of arms of Italy, Savoy, Belgium, and Montenegro. The walls are covered with brocaded red or pastel shades. As the train left four chefs were making up a late supper of oysters and champagne in the white and silver kitchen.

ROME FESTIVITIES OPEN

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Jan. 3.—A prelude to the seven days of royal festivities was begun in the city of the Cæsars today as the Belgian wedding train left Brussels.

The vanguard of wedding guests began arriving last night and today. Every train today poured into the city big contingents of soldiers who will form honor guards; cortèges of peasant women in picturesque costumes who will participate in the great regional folklore procession, and nondescript visitors from the whole Italian realm.

From Sunday night on, when the Belgian royal family arrives, the city will be turned into a sort of fairyland of lights.

To this gorgeous setting came the first guests last night in the persons of Prince Daniel, Queen Helena's brother, and Prince Saverio Bourbon of Parma. Today a delegation of eight notables from the court of King Zog of Albania and the former King Manuel of Portugal arrived. Prince Paul and Princess Olga, representing King Alexander of Jugo-Slavia, nephew of Queen Helena, are expected tomorrow. The principal arrivals, however, will take place on Sunday, when, in addition to the Belgian sovereigns, will come King Boris of Bulgaria, the grand duchess of Luxemburg, the duke of York, and Marshal Henri Petain of France.

The royal guests are being received at the station with special honors. They pass through long corridors of soldiers who are lined up for a half mile outside the station.

Meanwhile the younger Romans are wearing small love knots in the Belgian national colors and little else is thought of except the events which next week holds forth. There is a constant stream of visitors to the various headquarters where subscriptions are taken for the gift which the city will make to the royal couple. Funds raised in this manner will be devoted to erecting clinics and sanatoriums, conforming to the wishes of the prince.

SOMETHING OUGHT TO BE DONE ABOUT THIS

Season's Second Assembly Ball Brilliant Affair

The decorations of the Congress hotel gold ballroom for the Second Assembly last night and the gowns worn by the women attending were more delicate in character and color than those noted at the earlier dances this winter. They seemed to presage the fast approaching close of the current season and its formal festivities.

The women in the receiving line, Mrs. Clive Runnells, Mrs. William H. Mitchell, Mrs. Donald M. Ryerson, and Mrs. John A. Stevenson, all were attired in the palest of lovely frocks, and the background for the dancers was a vernal mass of feathery smilax. Tall trees of smilax with long fronds covered the walls and balcony of the ballroom. There also were large plaques of silvered evergreen branches studded with silver poinsettias. Behind the "line" stood large silver urns filled with speckled cubrum lilies, and behind them giant ferns.

Mrs. Runnells' gown was of white crêpe, relieved with an interesting necklace of carved crystal. Mrs. Mitchell was in shimmering white mirror velvet with a high waist girdle of brilliants. Mrs. Ryerson wore a powdered peach shade with lustrous pink pearls, and Mrs. Stevenson was in an oyster white confection of fluffy tulle and flashing brilliants. The official bouquet carried by the women was white, frilled with violets, lavender orchids, and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick was, as usual, one of the earliest arrivals. She wore draped white Lyons velvet and a long diamond necklace. Others who arrived before midnight included Mrs. A. A. Carpenter in a graceful gown of cream colored crêpe, long all the way around, and with a bolero effect edged in opalescent beads of cream shade; Mrs. Albert R. Brunker in a trailing mist of white chiffon figured in large roses; Mrs. William G. Hibbard in white tulle and silver beads; her sister, Mrs. William B. Hale, in apricot moire; Mrs. John C. Pitcher in white moire with a shoulder bouquet of gardenias.

Mrs. Chauncey Blair wore black chiffon; Mrs. Nathan S. Davis III. in electric blue crêpe; Mrs. E. L. Ryerson Jr.'s costume was of Chinese red with a jade sash; Mrs. Benjamin Carpenter was in purple crêpe; Mrs. Walter R. Kirk in white chiffon beaded in silver slashes; Mrs. Arthur Small in wine colored velvet; Mrs. Fletcher M. Durbin in gold flowered lamé; Mrs. Thomas W. Hinde in rose lace; Mrs. James C. Ames in rose crêpe.

Many of those who had attended dinner parties before the ball were among the later arrivals. These included the guests Mr. and Mrs. John L. Cochran had at a house warming party at their new residence; the dinner party Mr. and Mrs. Howard Linn gave, and also the Dexter Armours' and the Bruce Borlands' parties.

Boy Scout Saves Sister from Choking to Death

Sioux City, Ia., Jan. 3.—[Special.]—George Geary, 13 years old, newspaper carrier and Boy Scout, proved himself a hero today in the playroom of the Geary home when his quick acting and quick thinking saved his 5 year old sister from choking to death. She fell and a small ball she had in her mouth lodged in her throat. He sought to dislodge the ball with his fingers and failed. Then he picked her up, gave her a slap on the back and dislodged the ball as she lost consciousness.

PATTERNS BY CLOTILDE

[Registered U. S. Patent Office.]

GIRL'S DRESS.

This frock with the suggestion of a bolero is a youthful, yet sophisticated fashion that will be sure to please and is just the thing for classroom wear. It will be pretty made of a plaid or check, combined with plain material. The dress is belted at a slightly raised waistline, and an inset pocket at the left side of the bolero gives a jaunty air. The skirt has grouped plaits at the front. Tan jersey combined with brown, blue crêpe or jersey combined with beige, and beige and brown small checked featherweight woolen combined with brown are smart suggestions.

The pattern, 2918, comes in sizes 6, 8, 10, 12 and 14 years. Size 8 requires 1⅛ yards of 39 inch plaid material, and 1⅛ yards of 35 inch plain will be sufficient.

Arts Club Exhibits Interest Critic, Who Describes the Show

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

It is a teasing, tantalizing, provocative and fascinating series of exhibitions which opened yesterday at the Arts club. There is sculpture by Chana Orloff; there are water colors by Arthur Davies; and there is a large group of modern drawings and sculpture loaned by various Chicagoans. The exhibit holds together. The strain of the bizarre, which is modernism's chief claim to instant respect, takes definite charge of the unity of the three groups.

Certain features stand out. For instance, Carl Milles' dramatic sculpture. "The Sunglitter," lent by Mrs. Charles H. Schweppe, is a vivid moment: a girl in swift flight, the flush of the race vying with fear in her eyes, mounted delicately poised on the back of a runaway fish. His "Europa and the Bull" is a more gentle moment, and so surpassingly beautiful is the group that one holds one's breath before it.

The "Holy Man on Donkey" by Scheibe is a clever, satirical and humorous piece of sculpture. The "Surrealiste Wire Sculpture," loaned by Mrs. Robert R. McCormick, Mrs. Potter Palmer and Frederic Clay Bartlett, is fascinating. The "Faun" by Joseph Bernard is graceful, and the German sculptor, Willy Meller, is represented by several whimsical figures in the mode of Modigliani as to heads and throats.

There are a great number of drawings and water colors. Among them certain ones make a keener demand upon one's sympathies than do others. For instance, Raoul Dufy arouses the wildest and most childish enthusiasm with his bitter bright color and swiftly suggested figures; Pedro Pruna soothes our excitement and incites a gentler appreciation with his exquisite figure studies; Survage contributes to the beauty element in the exhibit; Gauguin is found in a distinctly softened and pastoral and decorative mood; Charles Demuth lends a clear and chill definiteness to things that are sometimes overlooked; Derain gives us one of the loveliest of moments with his "Femme Couchee"; Foujita is contented with several reasonable and moderate conceptions: "Girl with Cat" is delightfully quaint and old fashioned.

This report touches but slightly on the infinite variety of the show. It says nothing of the excellent points of Chana Orloff's sculpture, which is really startling and amusing and solidly interesting, the three things woven together and dished up to you in part with each separate piece. It says nothing of the delicate charm of the Davies water colors, which are as fragile and lovely as spring showers. It does say the exhibitions are there and very attractive, rather puzzling, not an absolute affirmation of the premise that modernism is more virile, more vital, more alive and necessary than nonmodernism.

The exhibitions will continue to Jan. 17.

Married Man Who Flirts with Girl Is Cheap, Says Doris

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"The facts in the case are: The girl knows the man is married; the man's wife is out of town; the girl has gone out with him on a number of occasions and says she sees no harm in doing so, and lastly, I am the man with whom she has kept what is called steady company and was the fellow who wanted to buy her an engagement ring before d—— suspicion got to working on him. Thank you."

Going out with married men when you can go out with single ones is my idea of zero in worthwhile young woman activities. They're so easy to go out with, married men are. Of course, I mean the kind that ask single girls to go out with them. They are just rarin' to have some skirted object around. It doesn't matter who—just so long as the Village Cutup can get a thrill out of something he knows he shouldn't be doing. Bad boy stuff. And, like the small lad boys, they do go scuttling home to hide behind mother's skirts when they are threatened!

It's such rotten poor male material a girl draws on these surreptitious expeditions. With so much good stuff lying about! No, I'm long since done with getting oppressively moral about the single girl-married man interludes. They do not call for reaching down into the archives in which our best moral sermons are kept. They're just too plain cheap! I claim any girl, and she can be homely as a mud fence, can get that kind of a date with a married man of this married man type (and mark, I make a distinction between married men and married men) any time she wants it. All she need possess is an ear—and, if you will excuse the unintended vulgarity—and a skirt.

Cheapness is one of the most unforgivable sins, whether you are measuring man or girl. But because the latter has the control in her hands in nine cases out of ten, she shows up worse in a cheap performance.

Surely she says it is harmless! And I don't for a moment suppose that sin caps every episode. The stage is set, of course. The leading characters may be only playing at a game. But there is an audience out there, nevertheless, one with the decent boy friend in it, perhaps. Just try to sell them the idea that it is harmless play. They won't accept the idea because they don't want to accept it. They want to put the worst face on it—and they do.

The human observers are also looking for a thrill—and a juicy bit of gossip helps, and nobody can furnish it so palatably as the single girl out with a married man.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

Accepted Dating Age.

"Dear Miss Blake: What is the correct age for a girl to go out with boys. BLONDY."

Sixteen is the age at which most girls are permitted to have beaus and go out with them.

Wendells Turn to East for Summer Home

BY THALIA ——.

The Barrett Wendells' residential bonds with Chicago are growing even more tenuous, as they are about to acquire an estate at Hamilton, Mass., for summer occupancy. Mr. Wendell has signed an agreement with Rodolphe L. Agassiz for the purchase of his estate on Old Bay road on the Massachusetts north shore, near the famous Myopia Hunt club. Final arrangements on the transfer are expected to be completed this month. The residence was built in 1897 on land adjoining the George von L. Meyer estate, and has since been remodeled and enlarged to imposing proportions.

Descriptive details of the place, as relayed from the east, give some indications of its size and character. It includes 60 acres of land, with a formal garden that leads to a small, beautiful lake. In addition to the house and land there are a 5 car heated garage, a 12 stall stable with harness room and coachman's quarters, a farm barn, pump house, and ice house.

The Wendell family is having such a strenuous winter that the leisurely aspects of a life in the country will no doubt appeal to them particularly this next summer. Having brought out their daughter, Miss Barbara Wendell, with balls and parties in both Boston and Chicago, they will be quite willing to settle down to comparative rusticity, although they probably plan to entertain extensively. Mrs. Wendell and Miss Barbara are planning to return to Boston shortly after Feb. 1, and meanwhile are staying at the Lake Shore Drive hotel. Mr. Wendell is a son of the late Barrett Wendell, for many years a professor of English literature at Harvard.

The three exhibitions of drawings, sculpture and brass which opened yesterday at the Arts club attracted a larger crowd than any of the club's similar affairs this season. About 300 persons strolled through the rooms between 4 and 6 o'clock and ended a tour of inspection with tea and sandwiches served in the large gallery.

A rust colored satin cloth covered the long table on which stood a stunning centerpiece of bronze and silver leaves and brown and orange flowers in an oval silver dish flanked by tall bronze candelabra. Mrs. Parmelee McFadden, wearing a black dress and hat, headed the group of hostesses. Among those who attended were Mrs. John Alden Carpenter in a red and black checked velvet dress, Mrs. John Borden in all black, Mrs. Forsythe Sherfesee, Mrs. Wilhelm L. Baum in black velvet, and Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick in a brown dress, brown seal coat and matching velvet hat.

This is certainly a week-end of marriages. This afternoon Miss Beatrice Clow and Lloyd A. Laflin, son of Mrs. Louis E. Laflin, are to be married at the William E. Clow Jr. residence in Lake Forest.

Tomorrow Mrs. Olive Holden Mead and Edward H. Bennett are to wed. Monday afternoon is Betty Borden's and Robert S. Pirie's wedding.

Miss Clow is to have only two attendants, her sister, Francise Clow, and Miss Betty Borden, at the ceremony, which is to be read at 5 o'clock. Ellsworth Laflin is to be best man for his brother, and the ushers will include Fairbank Carpenter, Durand Smith, Lawrence Williams, Louis Sudler, Lathrop Moss Jr., Keith Carpenter, William Burry Jr., Richard Bentley, I. Alexander Porter of Baltimore, Md.; Donald Stevenson of Princeton, N. J.; Richard McClanahan of New York City, and Francis DeLacey Hyde, also of New York. Mr. Laflin and his bride will return from their wedding trip in April and will reside in Mr. Laflin's Lake Forest house.

Mrs. Mead's and Mr. Bennett's wedding is to be solemnized at the Church of the Holy Spirit in Lake Forest with only a few intimate friends present. Mr. and Mrs. Noble Brandon Judah are to give a reception for them at their Lake Forest residence.

"The Princess and the Goblins," the Junior league children's theater's second production of this season, is to have its premiere this morning at the Harris theater. Mrs. John R. Winterbotham Jr., who has always been one of the most successful of the league actresses, is having one of the leading rôles, and the rest of the large cast includes several veterans of several seasons, and quite a few young women who are making their initial appearance.

The program for the Bohemians' dinner for Frederick Stock, to take place at the Palmer house on Sunday evening, Jan. 12, is impressive. The musical features will be given by Guy Maier and Lee Pattison, Mme. Claire Dux, the A Cappella choir of Northwestern university, and the Gordon string quartet. Besides there will be a surprise. Samuel Insull, Charles H. Hamill, and Karleton Hackett are to speak, and Herbert Witherspoon is to be the toastmaster. The Bohemians have been organized for less than a year and their membership is 200.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Ryerson Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Donald M. Ryerson, and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph T. Ryerson are to give a dance for their niece, Miss Mary Frost, daughter of the Donald Frosts of Boston, at the Casino this evening. Miss Frost has been in Boston, whence she returns tomorrow.

Sir Wilfred T. Grenfell, whose remarkable work in Labrador has earned him all sorts of distinctions as well as a string of decorations, is to give an illustrated lecture on "The Challenge of the Labrador" with motion pictures at Orchestra hall on Friday, Jan. 17. He and Lady Grenfell are to arrive on the 15th, and will be house guests of Mr. and Mrs. Francis R. Dickinson. A distinguished committee, with Mrs. Fremont A. Chandler as secretary and Earle H. Reynolds as treasurer, is making the arrangements for and sponsoring the lecture.

Mrs. Nathan William MacChesney writes that the Chicago Association of the University of Michigan alumnae now anticipates fulfilling its pledge to the Michigan union through its sale of tickets for a block of seats for the gala performance of opera next Friday evening. Miss Louise McKenzie, president of the association, announces a final tea for the committee in charge, to be held at the headquarters in the Auditorium tower next Tuesday afternoon at 5 o'clock.

The marriage of Miss Audrey Fountain, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerard Fountain of Scarsdale, N. Y., to Edward Porter, son of Mr. and Mrs. James F. Porter of Hubbard Woods, took place yesterday at the residence of the bride's parents. Mr. and Mrs. Porter and Mr. and Mrs. Michael Straus (Nancy Porter) were among the group of relatives who attended the wedding. Mr. Porter and his bride are to reside in Chicago after Feb. 1.

Reproved the Guest.

I was entertaining at bridge one afternoon in honor of a visitor from out of town. She sat at the same table as my cousin while eating.

After my guests had finished, I removed the dishes and luncheon cloths when I noticed coffee spilled where my cousin had been sitting. Jokingly I remarked, "You would spill on my luncheon cloth."

Imagine my embarrassment when the guest of honor spoke up apologetically, "I'm sorry but I spilled the coffee, I accidentally pushed your cousin's arm." E. C.

Nagging Is About the Dullest Tool Any One Could Use

By Mrs. Gladys Huntington Bevans

A "Play Booklet," by Mrs. Bevans, for mothers of pre-school children, will be sent free on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Disobedience is one of the greatest difficulties parents complain of having with their children. Would you, offhand, think of nagging as being one of its chief causes? Yet in the report arranged as a result of the investigation mentioned in yesterday's article this ranked second, as I remember.

In the letters that come to me there is repeatedly a sentence to this effect, "I remind her and remind her and remind her, but she pays no attention to me," or "I tell him and tell him a hundred times a day, it seems to me—but I make no impression on him."

One reason why nagging gets you nowhere is a perfectly obvious one. The thing we hear repeated again and again soon ceases to make an impression on us. If possible, we ignore it, or else it annoys us so that we resent it. Or we try to get away from it.

Of course, nagging is an ugly word and we're apt to associate it with an unpleasant facial expression and a complaining voice. But as a matter of fact, one can nag in a sweet, controlled voice—and, as I'm afraid I like to quote, "in the name of perfect love."

When you think of it, do you ever associate nagging with pleasantness or with results, either? A nagging wife or husband is an unlovely sight, and certainly a nagged husband or wife is not a happy one. To be sure, the nagging spouse may get the other one to give in, but only for the sake of peace. Not exactly a successful sort of outcome.

In fact, nagging with children just isn't successful—which is one good, practical reason for not doing it, if there were no other. But there are lots of others.

One of them is that nagging is a negative sort of treatment. It almost invariably gives a child the impression that he is at fault—and no child is inspired to improve by knowing that some one is thinking of him as being reprehensible. We want, instead, to give him the feeling that we think he's pretty nice, we know he's going to be obedient—that is, we want him to make a desirable image of himself.

All this doesn't mean that we, being human mothers, may not get out of patience with our children and show it. It doesn't mean that we can't remind a child of something he must do or leave undone. But it does mean that we must not keep at a child, verbally poke at him, push him, pull him until he is dull to our voice and becomes what we call, from our grown-up side of the fence, disobedient.

Russian Cossack Coat Is Very Smart

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—Paris is making a new daytime coat fashion. It is taken from those picturesque garments the Cossacks used to wear when they were horsemen of the Russian plains. They have long since dismounted, and now haunt the Paris night clubs singing or dancing for supper and loose change, but they still wear their riding coats with fitted waists, belted waistlines and flaring skirts. Just like lots of the newest and smartest dresses for women they are, so the French couturiers thought "Why not?" and proceeded to make coats for ladies along these identical lines.

Paquin, the king of the coatmakers, made one and it has the success of a fire sale. Vionnet is making them, too, and her most particular clients are now wearing them around Paris. Lanvin had the same idea at the same time, and her Cossack coats are something no woman in her right mind could look upon with indifference.

Here is a sketch of one, with sundry touches added to the original Cossack coat, to the vast improvement thereof. This coat, and most of the others along the same lines, are made of a bouclé woolen; that is, a wool covered with tiny loops like old time chinchilla cloth. It has a fitted bodice that makes a point of a slender and youthful figure, ending in a belt of the material at a normal waistline.

The sleeves have departed somewhat from the Cossack inspiration, being trimmed with flaring circular ruffles of black astrakhan, but as Paris insists on wearing some of her chic on her coat sleeves this winter, the addition is a vast improvement. The collar of the coat is also made of astrakhan in a rounded shawl effect. The skirt of this coat [and of all these Russian cowboy coats] is modestly circular. The sides are pressed into big box plaits with a square of astrakhan at the top, covering, as you can guess, two deep and capacious pockets.

A fitted cap of black astrakhan is worn with this coat. It is draped with folds of black crêpe around the head. Paris wears a fur hat to match the coat on all possible occassions.

Tired Eyes Betray a Youthful Face, Says This Writer

There is no denying the charge that women are not nearly so eye conscious as they are skin and chin conscious. They put Herculean energy into preserving youth for the last named indicators—but the average woman does not take the care of her eyes that she should. She does not practice eye hygiene, as she practices other youth lending measures of hygiene.

It is common to see women otherwise beautifully preserved but with tired, dull, and faded eyes. Of course, one cannot expect at 40, say, to have the brilliant, clear, young eye of 16—but neither need one at 40 have a faded eye of 60.

Look what women have done with their complexions by thinking about them, tending them carefully, anointing the skin and protecting it. They have protected them with lubricating oils and they've supplied them with tonics.

Eyes are better off for tonic waters, too. A simple morning bath removes the secretions that have accumulated during sleep. It freshens and stimulates them. On retiring, another bath will remove dust and grime, powder flecks and eye shadow stuffs.

Perhaps you ask, "Who doesn't give her eyes a bath daily?" There are scores of women—those who substitute cold cream face cleansings for soap and water, and ones whose eyes are rarely treated to water. Nor is it enough for eye beauty just to run a wash rag over the closed lid. The eyes should get straight cold water dashed on them repeatedly. It will never hurt them.

An excellent eye wash that can be adopted without any fear whatsoever; instead one that promises a clearer sparkle, it made of one teaspoonful of refined salt to a pint of boiled water. With an eyecup first rinse with the solution and then dash cold water on generously.

And about what shaded lamps do to reading eyes a story could be written by itself. Suffice it to say here that an eye specialist has already said that those lamps that are often lovely to look at are wonderful for his business.

BEAUTY ANSWERS

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

V. G.: FAT-FREE CREAMS ARE not so effective for softening the skin as the fatty applications. They clean very satisfactorily and make an excellent powder base to protect the skin against the cold and wind. My booklet on the skin may be had for a stamped addressed envelope.

E. L.: IF YOU ARE SUFFERING from a slight bunion buy shoes with a straight last and have them properly fitted. A felt pad between the great toe and the next toe helps maintain a straight line. My leaflet on the feet may be had for a stamped, addressed envelope.

FARM AND GARDEN

BY PAUL POTTER

"Running out" of cranberry bogs has been attributed to disease of the type spread by certain insects, declares E. L. Chambers, state entomologist of Wisconsin. The disease known as "false blossom" is fatal to the plant once it becomes infected and is carried to new bogs and spread short distances by leafhoppers which feed on the plant.

Since a cranberry bog, once established, remains profitable over a long period of time, it is highly important that this disease be kept under control, says the entomologist.

To assure the safety of the cranberry crop in the state, regulations have been passed which prevent cranberry plants for propagation from being transported into the state without a certificate showing that the premises from which they came have been carefully inspected and certified as being free from the false blossom disease.

Cranberries have become an important crop. Last year's crop in Wisconsin was worth more than one million dollars. About 2,500 acres in the state are devoted to cranberry culture. Most of this area would otherwise be waste land.

Although the price of cranberries seems high to those who purchase them, entomologists point out that there is but a small margin of profit because cranberry growing necessitates a large amount of labor fertilizing, weeding, and controlling the flood water on the areas devoted to the industry.

Pope Not Present at Rites for His Brother, Count Ratti

ROME, Jan. 3.—(AP)—Funeral services for Count Fermo Ratti, brother of Pope Pius XI., were held today at St. Mary's without the pontiff himself being present. Count Ratti died last Tuesday. Most of the cardinals at Vatican City, members of the papal court, and the diplomatic corps accredited at the Vatican attended. The body was later shipped to Milan.

TRIBUNE COOK BOOK

Pastry Fillings.

BY JANE EDDINGTON.

One of the most popular because most acceptable pastry fillings of today is that made of pineapple, which practically comes in the can ready to use. A foot long piece of Danish pastry not more than five or six inches wide with a pineapple filling, may cost you fifty cents to buy. If you are making a loaf or two of bread you can easily use some of your dough, rolling it just after it has risen the second time, and fill a rolled out piece with pineapple slightly thickened, and you can thus make a long piece of Danish pastry that perhaps would not cost you, unless you count your time, more than ten cents.

A pineapple filling is acceptable quite plain, or you may combine it with other fruits. One of the winter pies that seems pleasant, and a variation from all pineapple, or from plain apple, may have a filling of the apple and pineapple combined. This is good pie as the winter wanes, and apples do not make quite the lively flavored pies they did when fresh from the tree.

To make this combination of apple and pineapple, wash and core but do not peel, one pound of Northern Spy apples. Cook these gently in one-half cup water in a closed pan, simmering until they are tender, after which rub them through a sieve. By using the closed pan the hot steam generated helps to cook the apple in a shorter time, and also helps to retain the flavor. This statement is made because so many people in making an applesauce use the open saucepan.

Because we have used the skin in making this apple puree, we will have a foundation that is a pretty pink. Add to this sieved apple one-half cup sugar, one-half teaspoon cinnamon, about two grates of nutmeg—nutmeg should never be noticeable in an apple pie, or a part apple pie either—and one-half slice or its equivalent of canned pineapple chopped rather fine. This may be baked under a lattice top to make an exceedingly dainty pie. Some people would add raisins to this filling, but we vote against them.

Patterns for Small Girl.

"I have a number of dress and coat patterns for a little girl 2 or 3. If you know of anybody who would like to have them, I will gladly pass them on.

MRS. C. E."

Here is an excellent opportunity for the home dressmaker to practice a little economy. There are sure to be a number of attractive patterns for a little girl's frocks and coats in this collection and if you can make use of them, I'd suggest that you write me for some immediately; please do not telephone.

Offers Kodak and Cottons.

"We are moving out of Chicago and while packing I have found several things for which we have no further use. Perhaps you can find some one for them—a Brownie kodak in perfect condition and a large assortment of crochet and embroidery cottons.

MRS. H. F."

Here is a generous offer which is sure to delight our readers—a camera for the amateur photographer and enough material to supply several needleworkers. Write and tell me which of these gifts you'd like to have; please do not telephone.

When the fashionable Mrs. . . . pours tea

AFTERNOON teas at the house of Mrs. . . . . are attended by the "Who's Who" only . . . a very exclusive few.

For years Mrs. . . . . has selected INDIA TEA, for she is a world traveler and got her first taste of India Tea in India.

No other tea has the deep, satisfying flavor of India Tea . . . the Tea of all teas. No other tea even approaches its rich, ambrosial fragrance.

Bright Sayings of the Children

The Tribune will pay $5 for each child's saying printed. The story told must never have been printed in any magazine or paper. It is not possible to acknowledge or return unavailable contributions. Write on one side of the paper. Address Bright Sayings to Aunty Bee, The Tribune, Chicago.

My next door neighbor has a new baby, and her 4 year old son, who has been much spoiled and petted, is not happy about sharing honors with the newcomer. He, Billy, got a new bed while the baby got his old one. Worse still, he had to give up a special woolly blanket with ducks on it and yesterday a nice noisy tin horn mysteriously disappeared.

This morning Billy arrived at my house bright and early with his little wagon loaded with toys and asked if he might leave them at my house. I said, "Of course, Billy, but why?"

Billy looked about uneasily a moment then said: "Well, a man can't keep anything at our house since we've got that new kid."

CROWDED FERRY RAMS AND SINKS TUG; ALL SAVED

New York, Jan. 3.—[Special.]—Lost in a dense fog, the municipal ferryboat William Randolph Hearst, with nearly 200 passengers crowded aboard, today rammed and sank the tug boat Mutual, anchored off the Erie basin breakwater, Brooklyn.

Creeping blindly along, more than a mile off her course, through waters where no ferry has plied in years, the Hearst smashed into the little tug squarely amidships and crushed it under her prow as if the tug had been a floating egg crate. The Mutual plunged to the bottom, carrying her skipper and crew of six with her before the clanging bells aboard the ferry could bring the engines to a stop.

Some one had the presence of mind to flash on the ferry's searchlight and as its beam cut through the mist seven heads bobbed into view on the water—the heads of the Mutual's crew.

The Heart's engines were reversed. She swung clumsily about. There was another crash as her stern banged against the long, narrow breakwater. Between a dozen and a score of men who had rushed out on the breakwater to aid in rescuing the Mutual's crew, were bowled into the water by the impact.

The panicky crowd aboard the ferry quieted quickly. The Hearst's crew yelled assurances that here was no danger and passengers who had rushed for life preservers dropped them and turned their attention to helping the men in the water.

One Tug Captain Saves Another.

Ropes were thrown from the ferry's decks, and four of the Mutual's crew, struggling with the tide, caught them and were pulled aboard. Two of the others were saved by the men on the breakwater. The seventh, Capt. Howard B. Bass, was being swept out of reach by the current when Capt. Alfred F. Bennett of the tug Dalzalibo, which also was anchored alongside the breakwater, plunged from the deck of his craft, swam to Bass and caught him just as he was going under.

Men from half a dozen other tug boats and barges tied up to the breakwater quickly pulled out the men who had been knocked into the water by the second crash. A police checkup, completed less than an hour after the accident, accounted for every man involved.

A short time after the accident to the Hearst, another ferry, the Rodman Wanamaker of the St. George-South Ferry route, ran aground in the bay on a reef just east of Governor's island. She was not in any danger and was drawn off an hour later by the tugs.

BY ELMER DOUGLASS.

Radio needs a natural born wit and funny story teller, one who knows droll words, one who can see only the bright side of things. This is both lacking and wanting in radio. In fact, radio has better humor in its music than in its speech. The man who could shake commonplaces into merry jests that would shake the listeners out of their seats would not only be welcome, but would in time be able to put a golden nest egg in the bank as his reward.

Failing to find the humor that I hoped to find, I found considerably better music than I had expected.

Chief in this was a new orchestral program entitled "The Concert," from W-G-N, 8 to 8:30. Herbert Johnson, pianist, played the first movement of the Grieg Concerto in A minor. This piece elicited the approval of a music lover who was with me at the time, so I know it was enjoyed by the radio audience. Next, a "Musette" (Pfeiffer), and this went over even better with my nominal musical listener. There were many smiles in this music; in fact, it was the only smile producer that I heard last evening.

"Norwegian Rhapsody" (Svendsen) was of concert seriousness and grandeur, something which I was proud of as having gone out to hungry lovers of great music, near and far. However, my nominal musical listener disappeared before the completion of the number—which leaves me guessing as to its general acceptance.

A concert combining the resources of an orchestra, a male chorus, and Howard Preston as baritone soloist, from KYW, 8:30 to 9, was another above the ordinary in offerings last evening. An example of fine effectiveness in program building occurred when Mr. Preston sang the "Pilgrim's Song" by Tschaikowsky—by the way, a great solo number with a magnificent orchestral scoring—this being followed immediately by the orchestra and chorus singing the Pilgrim's chorus from "Tannhäuser."

An analysis of the life and works of Chopin, from W-G-N, 9 to 9:30, was an admirable piece of work. There is the temptation to quote some of Mr. Barnes' words, but I have not the space. It will pay to keep these Friday evenings of Mr. Barnes with the composers in mind.

FORMER HOSPITAL SUPERVISOR HELD AS FAKE DOCTOR

A. J. Safrine, 38 years old, 7954 Indiana avenue, was held at the detective bureau last night on a charge of practicing medicine without a license, after he had confessed to Inspector C. A. Storer of the state department of registration and education that he had been practicing for three years, and had performed about 60 tonsil operations.

Safrine attributed his arrest to the jealousy of physicians, declaring that he had built up a large practice and had a substantial income from his work. He said he served as supervisor of the genito-urinary department of the Michael Reese hospital for ten years, but retired from that position to practice for himself, feeling that the experience he had gained at the hospital qualified him. He was supplementing his training by studying at the Chicago Medical college whenever he could spare the time from his practice, he said.

The demonstration came as a climax to the arraignment of Solomon Cruso, 38, former president of the corporation, and Samuel Schuckman, 30, former employé. They are charged with suspicion of grand larceny. The case was adjourned until Jan. 17 and Cruso and Schuckman were returned to jail.

FRENCH ROYALIST, BACK FROM EXILE, LASHES REPUBLIC

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Jan. 3.—Only back on French soil a few hours after his long exile in Belgium, Leon Daudet, royalist leader and son of the novelist, Alphonse Daudet, today unloosed a bitter attack on the third republic in his daily paper, "L'Action Française."

"My intention to destroy the present order which is degrading and killing France is unshakable," he said in his first printed utterance in Paris since his pardon by the French government after his sensational escape from prison where he was serving a sentence for libel. "I have not the government of the republic to thank for putting an end to the scandalous iniquity of my exile of 29 months. I will continue to try to bring the murderers of my son, Phillipe, and my prosecutors to justice. As for former Premier Poincare, he and I will meet again.

"My only regret in returning to Paris is having to leave my king in Brussels instead of being able to lead the army of the faithful to put him on the throne," M. Daudet declared, referring to the Duc de Guise, claimant to the throne of France. The police are taking precautions against outbreaks of the "camelots du rois," as M. Daudet's violent young supporters are called.

Jugo-Slavs Shoot Woman in Bulgar Bridal Raid

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, Jan. 3.—The death of a woman, as well as several casualties, resulted on New Year's day when a Bulgarian youth attempted to spirit a bride across the Bulgarian frontier, according to reports here today from the border town of Sicicov. The youth, with seven friends and relatives, slipped across the frontier in search of his bride. They were challenged by Jugo-Slav guards. Then they attempted to return to Bulgaria. The guards opened fire, killing the youth's mother instantly and wounding several others.

Deer, Hungry, Flee from North Forests

Darlington, Wis., Jan. 3.—[Special.]—Shortage of feed in the northern woods this winter is given as the chief reason for the presence of deer in southwest Wisconsin this winter. The deer appear tame, probably due to hunger, sportsmen pointed out.

WANT TO LOOK YOUNG?

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eye with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound as a substitute for calomel to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

ROSENBLOOM BEATS LOMSKI IN TEN ROUNDS

Decision of Judges Unanimous.

Dempsey Loses, Too

Leonard Sacks, business manager for Dempsey, had asked the sanction of the National Boxing association of the proposition of Dempsey giving the Lomski-Braddock winner a championship belt. The request was made with the proviso that Lomski was to beat Rosenbloom in last night's fight.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 3. — Max Rosenbloom, the finest boxer in the prize fight industry at this time, frolicked about Leo Lomski of Aberdeen, Wash., for ten rounds in the main event of this evening's boxing party at the Garden and left the ring laughing and almost untouched with the unanimous decision of the officials.

It was the fourth meeting of the pair and the rubber battle. Previously Rosenbloom had won once, Lomski had won, and another battle had ended in a draw. Lomski was chuckling in a subdued way himself, for this jovial, slippety slap boxer had taken all the sting out of the defeat by playing good natured pranks with Max throughout the lesson. Even when Lomski went plunging between the upper and lower ropes in the ninth round and came whirling about with a lunge and swing to chin himself on the top strand, Rosenbloom stood off, with his hands at his sides, much amused and much too chivalrous to fetch him the one clip on the jaw, which in Lomski's strained circumstances, might have put him down, perhaps out.

Lomski was so badly outboxed and his own exasperated rushes early in the fight were eluded or smothered with such nonchalant ease that he soon realized how futile it was to hope to win. So he just bowled along, taking his lesson and the not very painful routine of open handed right hand clouts and left jabs.

Rosenbloom Has Humor.

The bout was supposed to have some bearing on the light heavyweight championship vacated by Thomas Loughran a few months ago. Mickey Walker, George Courtney, Jimmy Slattery and Lew Scozza are the other acknowledged leaders in the elimination process to elect a champion for this secondary heavyweight class. Rosenbloom excels them all as a boxer and unlike Jack Britton, Jimmy Wilde, Packey McFarland and Tom Gibbons, who were great boxers, he adorns his work with a touch of polite humor, which relieves the monotony and wins the customers.

In the semi-final fight Courtney, the Oklahoma cowboy, delivered two or three fairly effective fouls on Bingo Bonivoc of Binghamton who went down, claiming to have been disabled, but was compelled to get up and struggle along. Courtney finally winning the decision after ten rounds of whole hearted pitching and catching.

Arture Scheckles, Belgian welterweight, won from Canada Lee, New York Negro, on a foul in the fifth round of the opening ten round bout. The Belgian went down under a low belt after 22 seconds of the round, on the verge of a knockout at the time. Lee weighed 146 pounds, Scheckles 147½.

Carnera Needed Six Tickets.

Among the little chitty-chatty rumors heard about the ringside and along the waiting walls of the Garden lobby was one to the effect that there might be no prize fight in the city of Miami, Fla., this winter, owing to the Garden corporation's reluctance to waste a good match on a winter league resort and the failure of negotiations for a lesser attraction.

For the third time in 36 hours, the cauliflower conferees who have been

Chicago Meets Powerful Butler Five.

BY HARLAND ROHM.

Northwestern and Wisconsin, both headed for the first division, open the Western conference basketball season at Patten gym at 8 o'clock tonight. The Badgers have the better practice game record, but the Wildcats have met stronger opposition, so the teams appear evenly matched. Chicago plays the powerful Butler quintet at Indianapolis.

The Purple may enter the game without one of their steady sophomore guards, Bob McCarnes. The lanky blonde, who has aided the Purple with his long shots and his defensive play, is suffering from influenza. He was taken to a hospital for treatment and while he was expected to be discharged today, it is doubtful if he will break into the lineup.

Mundy to Fill Guard Post.

Merrill Mundy, the red headed reserve guard of last year's team, doubtless will start in place of McCarnes, while the rest of the Wildcat lineup will be the same as in their practice games. Rut Walter will be at center, Russell Bergherm and Bert Riel at forwards, and Bob Lockhart at the other guard. Bergherm and Walter may shift positions.

Northwestern's chances to open the season with a victory depends on goal shooting accuracy. In their last game the Wildcats were sadly off in shooting and passing, Bergherm in particular shooting badly, while Walter was handling the ball poorly. Yet, in the first game Bergherm won the contest with his accuracy, and Walter usually is steady.

Four Badgers from Chicago.

Wisconsin has four veterans of last year's co-championship team in its lineup, including two who were mentioned on all-conference teams, Bud Foster and Ed Chmielewski. Foster, a forward last year, is playing center, while "Shimmy" is a floor guard. They'll team with Maurice Farber and Carl Matthusen, reserve forwards of last year, and John Paul, a guard, the only one without experience in conference competition.

Paul is the only member of the starting lineup not from Chicago. Chmielewski played for Lane Tech, Matthusen for Parker High school, and Farber for McKinley. Foster, formerly a native of Iowa, now calls Chicago his home.

The Badgers have swept through their practice games without a defeat, beating Monmouth, Carleton, Illinois Wesleyan and Iowa State college. Northwestern has split even in two games, beating Cornell and Notre Dame and losing to Pittsburgh and Notre Dame.

Maroons Face Heroic Task.

Chicago journeys to Indianapolis to attempt the giant task of trouncing the mighty Butler five. Nels Norgren's team turned in a surprise win over Butler last year and marred the Hoosiers' claim for a national championship. This year the Midway team, small but faster than usual, may upset the dope again.

Neither Jonathan Bunge nor Harold Boesel have functioned particularly well at center and Norgren probably will shift Capt. Harry Changnon to center. Paul Stephenson, a sophomore who has been scoring well, will start at forward, opposite the reliable Sid Yates. Marshall Fish, veteran, and Harry Ashley, former all-state guard in Indiana, will undoubtedly get the guard assignment, though Norgren may try Joe Temple, the football full back, at Fish's guard.

THE LONG AND SHORT OF IT

In the Wake of the News

EARLIER CHICAGO.

DEAR WAKE: In and before the '80s, on State street, diagonally south of then Hubbard court, there held forth Sylvester Lawinski, quondam band leader, sometime violinist, with "Old Jakob" as piano accompanist, at hops, weddings, and similar functions of the time, keeper of a musical instrument store, and renowned for his skill in repairing violins come to grief. When they were old enough, two of the master's sons worked with him.

In those days the band wagon was largely an advertising medium. Many of their occupants halted at the violin shop, where Lawinski invariably doffed his apron, donned his hat and coat, and emerged to lead the band and followers across the street to my father's caravansary, where I (10 years old) assisted at the evening "rush," for musicians then were—and, perhaps, still are—thirsty souls. Receiving refreshments at his expense impelled the band to sound a responsive recessional and to ennobling continuance of its mission of blaringly calling attention to the placards sheathing the wagon.

"Old Jakob," aforementioned, otherwise employed during the day, was always at the shop evenings. Later, two figures, arm in arm, were seen westbound in Polk street, Jakob to Sherman street, where he lived, and Lawinski to await the rather uncertain Wentworth avenue car for transit to Alexander street. Lawinski was a kindly, liberal, jovial soul, and perhaps this reminiscence will recall him to many readers.

About 1880 the whole family went down to old Lake Front park each fall to attend the greatest exposition in the world at that time. Free tickets were given all school children, and the wonderful part was we were all given so many beautiful cards and colored papers telling about the exhibits; which we prized and kept in a safe place, gazing often at them and telling others about the GRAND EXPOSITION.

Theresa of Old St. Joe.

Me and Rosie.

And Rosie has a car!
(I hate to walk to the libr'ry,
'Cause the libr'ry is so far.)

So, all I do's put down my name
For the books I think I'll like,
(Then Rosie gets them in her car,
And I don't have to "hike.")

And just 'cause Rosie is so nice
And gets books as I need 'em,
I turn around, big-hearted me,
And I let Rosie read 'em!

Jazbo of Old Dubuque.

Basketball.

The conference basketball season opens tonight with Wisconsin playing at Patten gymnasium. At most Big Ten colleges basketball has outdistanced all other sports except football in student interest. It is full of action and, unlike many other games, even the losing team is sure of some points during the encounter. Spectators' seats are closer, and in some respects basketball is easier to follow than football. Called fouls are confusing, and frequent halts of play for these fouls are about its only weakness. It's so full of action, as played by amateurs, it's a great game for spectators.

ALEX REJECTS MAYTAG'S OFFER OF PILOT'S JOB

Omaha, Neb., Jan. 3.—(AP)—Grover Cleveland Alexander, veteran major league hurler, said today that he had rejected an offer of Bud Maytag of Newton, Ia., to manage a baseball club in 1930.

"Alex" said he figured that there are still enough "tricks" in his arm for another season or two in the big time. He plans to get in shape soon to report to the Philadelphia training camp next spring. He was here today enroute to Grand Island and St. Paul, Neb., the latter his home town.

Loyola Wins 28th Straight Game, 33-10

Loyola university basketball machine, which had clicked to 27 straight victories, manufactured another last night over North Dakota State, 33 to 10. The north siders held the Bison to two field baskets in each period.

Dick Butzen, sophomore forward, again led the Ramblers in scoring with four baskets and a free throw. Charley Murphy gathered three baskets and a free throw while Tommy Flynn scored three baskets and four free throws in the first period. Goodwin led the Bison with a pair of counters.

After a slow start in which the visitors took a 5 to 1 lead, the Ramblers found themselves and through Flynn's shots from the free throw line went into a lead which was never headed. Half time found Loyola leading 22 to 6.

Coach Len Sachs switched his lineup continually during the second period. In the closing minutes of play, Coach Sachs sent in his starting lineup and quick baskets by Butzen and Murphy brought the score to the final 33-10. Lineup:

CHICAGOANS TIE IN MIAMI OPEN GOLF "WARMUP"

Miami, Fla., Jan. 3.—[Special.]—Jock Hutchison, veteran Chicago professional golfer, who paired with George Howard of Canton, O., finished in a three cornered tie for first honors today in the best ball tournament on the Miami Country club course, which served as a prelude to the Miami open championship, starting tomorrow. Hutchison and Howard returned a score of 35—32—68, to match the 34—34—68 of Laurie Ayton, another Chicagoan, and Fred McDermott of Indianapolis, Ind., and the team of Art Weber of Dundee Lake, N. J., and Al Heron of Reading, Pa.

Fourth place went to Charles McAllister of the Queens Valley club at Forest Hills, L. I., and Eddie Lund of Fairfield, Conn., with 36—33—69. The individual glory was reaped by the "unknown" Lund, whose 70 was the lowest gross of the day.

Gene Sarazen, winner of the Miami open for three successive years, was paired with Bill Fairman, a local entry, and the former national open title holder and his partner tied for fifth place at 70, with a number of other teams.

Bush Plans to Rebuild with New Men.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Johnny Mostil, about ten years in the majors without getting much of a break from Lady Luck, now can try his hand as a minor leaguer. The White Sox, the club that has owned him or had a string on his services since the day he graduated from the local semi-pros in 1918, sent him away yesterday. The destination was Toledo and the release was outright.

At the same time Business Manager Grabiner announced that Danny Dugan, a strong young collegian southpaw, who was recalled last fall after summering with the Buffalo team, also had been ticketed for Toledo. Dugan however is still a major prospect of more than ordinary worth so his release was under option, meaning that he will be summoned back to the big show after the 1930 season. In return for these two fellows the Sox are to have first pick of the Toledo troops next August.

The passing of Mostil, who several times in his career gave indication of budding into a star, was done to meet the wishes of Donie Bush, the new Comiskey helmsman. Bush, after signing for his new duties, informed Comiskey he wanted to build up with new men and not count on fellows who had been around for a stretch of time without showing anything. Mostil was in this class. One or two others may be sent to join him in the not distant future.

A Statistician Slips.

In compiling the 1929 averages the National league statistician's pencil slipped on an item involving the Cubs. They were rated third as a road team with a record of 36 wins and 29 defeats. Their actual record on the road was 46 victories and 29 defeats, giving them the best average for the league in this respect. The official figures have been revised so as to give the Cubs all that was due them.

The past walked into the Cub offices yesterday. It appeared in the person of Charley Hollocher, who when rated the best shortstop in the National circuit, suddenly quit the Cubs because he believed he was in bad health. He tarried here on his way back to St. Louis from Rochester, Minn., where he spent several days under observation of the Mayo experts. They found nothing wrong with him. Hollocher has given up all ideas of ever playing again and probably couldn't if he tried. His waist line has increased considerably during his six years of idleness.

Series Money Unclaimed.

Cub players won't know until after Jan. 15 just what salaries are to be offered them for the coming season. All the contracts are ready but will not be mailed until the date mentioned. Then if any of the athletes are dissatisfied they won't be able to negotiate until Feb. 1. President William Veeck will be absent from his office until then. He is leaving today for four weeks of golfing on Catalina island.

Somewhere in forgotten pockets or desk drawers are more than a few missing tickets for the sixth game which wasn't played in the Cubs-Athletics world series. The Chicago club started refunding on these ducats shortly after the series closed but there still is approximately $1,000 unclaimed.

Word was received here yesterday of the death at Newburg, Ore., of Mrs. William Sullivan, wife of the former White Sox manager and battery mate of Ed Walsh in the latter's peak days.

Speaking of Sports

BY DON MAXWELL.

WHILE the news that Shires has been ensnared in a boxing frameup is interesting, it is to be hoped the Detroit reports occasion neither surprise nor excite the countryside.

Thursday's bulletins announcing that the Michigan boxing commission had "taken drastic action," and yesterday's portentous broadcast by the National Boxing commission on the Detroit fight that was no fight at all, compose but a humorous chapter in the Shires' comedy.

Action banning Arthur as a fighter in 32 states attaches to Shires an authenticity as a fistic performer that he never has claimed or his public affectionally called suckers by the great one himself, never credited. If this sort of thing keeps up it will require all of Shires' sense of the ludicrous to escape the delusion that he really is a fighter.

Shires has been pictured as unpleasant egotist, a bullheaded, quick tempered gent with numerous illmannered mannerisms. On the contrary, Shires is an interesting young feller, who noted early in life, that the professional athletes who get the most attention and money are the athletes with, what for want of a better word, is called color.

"When I got in the big leagues I decided I'd be the sort of a player folks noticed," Shires explains. "That's why I cram my jaws with a great wad of tobacco. Fans talk about it. And the tobacco company pays for it. That's why I walk up to folks I don't know in the hotel lobbies and introduce myself as 'the great Shires.' They laugh at the time, but they pay attention to me from then on. That's why I dress as I do. Nobody ever lost dough by having the world talking about him."

Shires took up fighting because he was unemployed, owed money to numerous friends about town, and a bout offered quick and sizeable financial return—and publicity. If anybody had illusions about Shires' fistic attainments, that somebody wasn't the great Shires.

It required only the second Chicago battle, the one in which the unconditioned Trafton bounced Arthur off the canvas with ease, to demonstrate that as a fighter Shires was a first baseman. Nor is it likely that any of the bugs who attended the Shires battles were lured to attend by the hope they were to witness boxing skill.

Shires' two appearances in Chicago were what they were billed—highly entertaining burlesques. The Illinois commission showed uncommonly good sense by taking Shires for what he is, a colorful clown, and his bouts for performances.

Now comes this news that the Michigan boxing commission is aroused by the report that Shires' foe in Detroit was asked to restrain his fury in the ring. The boxer thus requested to treat Shires kindly has had three professional bouts and by his manager's admission performed clownishly. The Boxer, Battling Criss, was to receive $150 for the Shires conflict and apparently both he and his manager were satisfied that, win or lose, $150 was smart pay for what Criss would show.

It is proper, of course, for a fighter whose performance is valued at only $150 to shun temptation, but it scarcely strains credulity to believe that it wouldn't be much of a strain on a $150 fighter were he to take the matter of winning or losing quite lightly.

In fact precedent would all be on his side were he to yield to temptation.

For years Young Stribling, whose moral standing the national commission never questioned, has toured the country boxing setups, knocking out country bumpkins, and in general giving the fans a show not half so interesting as the ones Shires stands ready to produce. Moreover, Stribling demanded and got good pay for his exhibitions, whereas Shires, despite his ambition to bank $250,000, has been a low priced worker.

What a laugh it will be to Chuck Wiggins to hear that Shires has been suspended in 32 states.

And with what disdain the members of the amalgamated order of fight managers and promoters will receive the news that an attempt was made to get a $150 puncher to ease up.

Imagine their chagrin when they read on and learn the fighter turned the offer down.

N. B. A. BARS GREAT ARTHUR IN 32 STATES

Michigan Rulers Back Down.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The Great Shires, when he appears before the Michigan state boxing commission in Detroit this afternoon, will be received as a composite of Alice in Wonderland, Little Lord Fauntleroy, Cinderella, Red Riding Hood, and Gulliver, it was indicated in Detroit yesterday.

The plan, as indicated by Chairman James M. Brown of the Michigan commission, will be to hint that he is much too innocent to keep up with the sculptors in the prize fight profession, and that he had better get back into baseball before somebody chisels away his good name.

This paternal attitude was made known at virtually the same hour that announcement was being made from Cincinnati that C. Arthur had been suspended as a boxer in 32 states, the set down coming from the National Boxing association, the general governing body of boxing composed of representatives of 32 state athletic commissions. The Cincinnati action followed Shires' suspension Thursday by the Michigan boxing commission on charges that attempts had been made to fix a fight scheduled for Detroit.

Disturbing Note Struck.

While last night's reports from Detroit were gratifying to those who know the naive ball player, there was a disturbing [and contradictory] tone to the dispatches from Cincinnati.

You are as smart and discerning as anybody, so we're going to show you a verbatim report from Detroit, and, right after it, a verbatim report from Cincinnati. Then you can write your own ticket in this momentous matter.

From Detroit:

"From authority no less dependable than James M. Brown, chairman of the boxing commission, it is learned that Shires is neither directly nor indirectly charged with fixing the ring engagement he was scheduled to have with Battling Criss here New Year's night.

"Brown is of the opinion that Shires has been compelled to pay penalty for the wrongdoing of others and he expresses the sincere wish that Art is cleared of charges that he had any knowledge of the attempt to fix his advertised opponent; he will forget all about fighting and aim to excel in baseball.

"'The boy has been badly advised,' said Brown, who holds no animosity for Shires but is determined to make an example of the party or parties implicated in the charges of attempting to fix Shires' opponent."

National Association Acts.

"Stanley Isaacs, president of the National Boxing association, announced Shires' suspension. Isaacs' ruling came after a long distance telephone call from James M. Brown, chairman of the Michigan state athletic commission. The latter told Isaacs that Shires was charged with fixing a bout with Battling Criss."

Chairman Brown said at the close of the Ebbetts-Oster bout in Detroit last night that the time of the Shires hearing was advanced at the instance of Shires, who said he was innocent and declared he would "stick around in Detroit until the whole matter is thrashed out, no matter how long it took."

Shires sat in the press row at the match and when the fans threatened to stop the semi-final by their calls for his appearance he received the sanction of Commissioner Brown to take a bow.

Shires will have ample time to get back in Chicago before the open season on baseball contracts, which begins Jan. 15. Mr. Blumenthal, his manager, and Mr. Katz, his bodyguard, and Mr. Ray, his promoter, are not scheduled to have a part in advising C. Arthur about his baseball contract. The young man probably will take up the matter privately with Charles A. Comiskey, a most patient man.

Giant Italian Fighter Faces Deportation

Copyright, 1930: By the News, New York.

New York, Jan. 3.—[Special.]—While Primo Carnera today was working out before a capacity crowd of Italians at Stillman's, later attending a fête in his honor by two Italian societies and, still later, bowing in the ring at Madison Square Garden, it was learned that the giant boxer had forsworn allegiance to Italy and had become a citizen of France.

Simultaneously, it was revealed that the French and Italian consulates were investigating a possible irregularity in passports that would result in immediate deportation proceedings.

Carnera snubbed Italy for France under secret and mysterious circumstances. It is necessary to secure immunity from military duty before receiving a passport. Carnera's passport was stamped by the French consul, waiving military duty. It is not known if Mussolini waived military duty. Carnera yet is a French citizen, according to the naturalization records of that country.

MOON MULLINS—NO DOUBT ABOUT IT

BLACKHAWKS BUY ADAMS TO FILL CASUALTY GAPS

Games Tonight

Boston at Montreal.
Los Canadiens at Toronto.
N. Y. Americans at Ottawa.

Instead of Garnett Campbell of Kansas City, the crippled Chicago Blackhawks will be bolstered by the addition of Stuart Adams of Minneapolis. The deal for Campbell, which would have sent Bobby Burns to the Kansas City Piamores, was called off by mutual agreement between Maj. Frederic McLaughlin and W. F. Grant, secretary of the Kansas City club, after the president of the Hawks had seen Adams play.

Adams Is a Speedster.

Adams, who so impressed Maj. McLaughlin with his ability that he immediately began negotiations for his contract, will cost the Hawks Tom Westwick, a recruit who was loaned to Tulsa before the season opened, and some cash. The price is reputed to be $15,000, including Westwick's value. Adams will report at once for the Hawks' game against the Detroit Cougars Sunday night.

Adams, who plays left wing, is not a large man. He is about 25 years old and is reported to be another speedster. Last year, under the old rules which held down scoring, he was credited with 11 goals and 8 assists.

Tom Cook's shoulder injury, which he received in the game against Les Canadiens, is improving, but it will be at least a week or ten days before he can return to the ice. Earl Miller's broken collar bone will keep him out of the game at least another two weeks.

Rough Game on Card Tonight.

Three upsets in three games Thursday night indicates the weaker teams are bolstering their strength, but in one of tonight's games there certainly will be dozens of "upsets," regardless of who wins. For the league's two teams of cavemen, the Boston Bruins and the Montreal Maroons, resume their warfare at Montreal.

MILLS RETURNS TO ILLINI CAGE SQUAD DRILLS

Champaign, Ill., Jan. 3.—[Special.]—Capt. Douglas Mills practiced with the Illinois basketball team for the first time today since illness forced him out three weeks ago. He will not be used against Ohio State in the initial conference game Monday night, but it is believed that he will be available against Michigan Jan. 13.

Joliet Heavies and Lights Beat Rockford, 17-11, 22-18

Rockford, Ill., Jan. 3.—[Special.]—Joliet defeated Rockford high school in a pair of Big Seven conference games here tonight, the heavyweights winning, 17 to 11, and the lightweights emerging with a 22 to 18 decision.

Horace Mann Five Nips Washington in Overtime, 9-7

Gary, Ind., Jan. 3.—[Special.]—Horace Mann High school of Gary defeated Washington of East Chicago in a five minute overtime game here tonight, 9 to 7. Horace Mann, leading at the half 6-3 and then by 7-3 in the first minute of the second period, had the score tied on it by a pair of quick baskets. Only three minutes of the second half had been played, but Washington went into a stall and stayed there the entire half with two exceptions. They made one break with eleven minutes gone, but it was smothered and they went back. They made another with three minutes to go and collected a personal foul, Cergman failing to convert on either one.

Washington again got the ball on the center jump starting the overtime period, took a shot and missed. Horace Mann got the ball and went into a stall of its own that lasted until only ten seconds of play remained when Paul Cavanaugh dribbled up to the center ring and shot. The ball hit the center of the hoop and the gun cracked.

Layton, Reiselt Win Opening Billiard Tilts

New York, Jan. 3.—[Special.]—Johnny Layton, defending his championship, triumphed in the opening match of the world's three cushion title tournament tonight, defeating Harry Schuler of Brooklyn, 30 to 20, in 48 innings. He staged a brilliant finish to produce victory. In the second match of the evening Otto Reiselt, a former holder of the crown, was pressed to scrape together a 50 to 44 victory over Charles F. Jordan, one-time Pacific coast amateur star, in 65 innings.

Layton played carefully against Schuler, and, after a few minutes' hesitation at the start, took complete command, growing better as the game progressed.

To Layton also went the honor of having the highest run of the tourney, a seven in his 29th inning. The best Schuler could do was four, a run he accumulated in his second trip to the table when he assumed the lead over the champion. Layton's high mark was approached twice by Reiselt, who made a run of six in the 14th inning, played a safety in the 15th and then clicked off another six in his sixteenth trip to the table. Jordan also made threatening gestures against the high run mark, twice getting five.

Joliet College Quintet Overwhelms Lyons, 51-12

Davis Replaces Hogue in Match with Pantaleo

Promoter James C. Mullen yesterday made his card for next Monday 100 per cent professional and experienced when he scratched Murrell Hogue, Cardinal football player, and substituted Blondy Davis, a heavyweight from Mississippi, who has been fighting in Chicago for several months. Davis is to oppose Paul Pantaleo.

The change was made on the suggestion of the Illinois athletic commission, the members of which said that Hogue had insufficient ring experience to vie with a man of Pantaleo's talents.

Doc Krone, Chicago's well known friend of wrestling, has been busy dashing from one gymnasium to another, studying the physical status and general progress of each of the artists appearing on his big wrestling card at the Coliseum next Monday night.

He reports that Gus Sonnenberg, the champion; Joe De Vito, Charles Midget Fisher, Zack Malkov, Joe Stecher, Wladek Zbyszko, and all the rest never have been in better shape or more willing to give the customers a full measure of entertainment.

Jackie Fields, welterweight champion, will meet Tony Vaccarelli of New York in the feature of the boxing show at the Chicago Stadium next Friday night, according to the announcement made yesterday by Matchmaker Nate Lewis. Fields' title will not be at stake in the affair, which will be for ten rounds.

There will be two other ten roundera on the card, one of which will present Benny Bass, the new junior lightweight champion, and an opponent to be named later, probably today. The other ten rounder will be between King Tut and Bruce Flowers.

Open Seasons in South Beckon to Northern Nimrods

BY BOB BECKER.

Hundreds of thousands of fishermen, hunters and golfers will start their southern migration this month in order to soak up the ultra violet rays and pursue their favorite outdoors sports. These northern sportsmen will find open seasons on nearly all varieties of game and also opportunity to take practically all kinds of fish.

In Florida it will be possible to hunt quail and turkeys up to Feb. 15. The duck season will close Jan. 31. In Collier county [southwestern Florida] turkey hunting is prohibited until 1934. A non-resident hunting license in Florida costs $25. The bass fisherman, always interested in Florida because of the abundance of big bass, is obliged to pay $10.50 for a non-resident fishing license while the counties levy a toll of $3.25.

In Georgia the quail season closes March 1. Turkey shooting also is permitted until that date. The non-resident license costs $25.

Mississippi has a relatively short quail season as compared to other southern states. Mississippi's season ends Feb. 1, although ope can hunt turkey up to and including March 31. A non-resident hunting license costs $15 and the charge for a fresh-water fishing license is $2.

Russell Rides 4 Winners on N.O. Program

Russell began his winning streak when he tossed a leg over Troll in the third race. He kicked the old plater home to a victory by eight lengths. In the fourth race, which was the feature, he climbed on Ell-Weir and after leading all the way won by six lengths from Playabit. Russell's presence in the saddle on West Wind in the fifth brought considerable support to that aged campaigner. Russell rushed him into the lead and won by eight lengths.

The final triumph was on the selling plater, Ham, in the sixth race. The crowd didn't believe Russell could make it four straight. But he did and as in his previous victories rode out in front for the entire mile and an eighth, winning finally from Punkie by three lengths. In the betting Ham paid 14 to 1. The favorite Nicodemus was never a contender.

CHICAGO BANKS FINISH YEAR IN GOOD CONDITION

Depositors Are Hit by Stock Crash.

BY O. A. MATHER.

The collapse of the stock market in October and November and the accompanying shrinkage in credit devoted to speculation enabled Chicago banks to finish 1929 in strong condition. But the effect of crashing securities prices on customers was severe and reversed the normal tendency for growth in deposits.

This may be deduced from reports made by Chicago banks yesterday in response to calls for statements of condition as of Dec. 31 issued by the controller of the currency and the Illinois state auditor.

The drastic liquidation of securities in the last quarter of 1929 resulted primarily in a decline of $94,689,000 in loans and discounts of the Chicago banks between Oct. 4, the date of the last previous call for reports, and the end of the year. As the result of this decrease, loans and discounts were only $5,346,000 above Dec. 31, 1928, whereas in 1928 this item expanded about $163,000,000.

Deposits Recede.

The final quarter of 1929 also brought a decline of $9,211,000 in total deposits, including a recession of $4,939,000 in savings deposits. And the end of 1929 saw total deposits $105,574,000 below a year before, with a shrinkage of $36,236,000 in savings deposits. In 1928 total deposits increased about $112,000,000 and savings deposits rose more than $17,000,000.

The shrinkage in credit devoted to speculation, as evidenced by the drop in loans, and the comparatively slight decline in deposits together resulted in a marked improvement in the financial condition of the banks. Their cash resources rose $120,638,000 between Oct. 4 and the end of the year, while this item also was $42,460,000 larger than at the end of 1928.

Part of the latter increase, however, should be attributed to capital subscribed for new banks and capital increases by other institutions. But last year's gain in this item was less than the increase in 1928, which exceeded $50,000,000.

In the last quarter of 1929 the Chicago national and state banks showed opposite tendencies, except that both groups reduced loans and cash resources. For the national banks this item showed a decline of $17,210,000, and for the state banks there was a decrease of $77,479,000. Similarly, the national banks increased their cash resources by $29,187,000 and the state banks made a gain of $91,451,000.

On the other hand, the national banks made a gain of $18,811,000 in total deposits, including an increase of $536,000 in savings deposits. But the state banks lost $28,022,000 in deposits, of which decline $5,465,000 was represented by savings deposits.

Comparisons by Groups.

Comparisons by separate groups with the figures of a year ago is of no value because of the several consolidations that have taken place, some resulting in national banks becoming state institutions and others bringing state banks into the national category.

Comparative stabilization of the stock market last month is reflected in the monthly report issued by the New York stock exchange yesterday on collateral loans of its members. Such loans totaled $3,989,510,273 on Dec. 31, which marked a decline of $37,067,496 from the total on Nov. 30. This moderate decline was in contrast with respective recessions of $1,092,226,099 and $2,440,559,111 in November and October.

BY SCRUTATOR.

Lack of harmony among unit unions in the building trades has been in the past, and is now, the cause of serious costs.

An effort to find a way to end the so-called jurisdictional disputes, which seem to benefit no one particularly, will be made at a conference to be held in Tampa, Fla., on Jan. 24 by representatives of the National Association of Building Trades Employers and the executive council of the building trades department of the American Federation of Labor.

The jurisdictional fights are not based primarily on any conflict between the employers and the employed. They grow out of the desire of the individual unions to obtain specific jobs for themselves and to bar members of other unions from these jobs. Because of failure to end these disputes quickly and equitably, there have been strikes lasting weeks, or even months, with consequent delay in finishing contracts.

Hardship on Owner of Building.

Another rather common result has been that owners of buildings are sometimes forced to accept things they do not want. According to E. M. Craig, executive secretary of the national employers' organization, it was planned to place metal window frames in the world's largest building, the Merchandise Mart. Both the iron workers and the sheet metal workers claimed the right to install them. As neither side would give in, and there was no appointed method of mediation, wooden frames were used and the carpenters got the work. Both the contending unions lost out and the free choice of the owners was interfered with.

Plumber vs. Steam Fitter.

It has never been authoritatively decided where the work of a plumber crosses that of a steam fitter, and quarrels frequently grow out of this. Because of the threat of strikes, flooring and doors of certain types are often abandoned for other types that are not so subject to jurisdictional strife.

Competition for work probably is keener among the union now than in normal times. There is no blinking the fact that only about 40 per cent of the building trades workers, who number something like 130,000 in the metropolitan district, have jobs in their own lines.

Is Agreement on Principle.

But labor leaders and contractors alike recognize that no more jobs are created by this kind of dissension. Both are ready to adopt a reasonable plan to end them. Suggestions have been made that a czar, such as baseball system now calls for, could be appointed, but there is no open support for this as yet. There is agreement on the principle; the method is to be worked out.

Building should be nearly as stable as other industries. The amount of replacement of old structures varies only in that the need grows greater each year. Much of the building since the war was absolutely necessary; it was done in the face of costs that were greater, as compared to prewar, than the general price level. Under present conditions, employers and labor both require elimination of every wasteful practice.

TRADING IN FOX FEATURE IN CURB MARKET SESSION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 3.—Heavy dealings in Fox Theaters and a sharp recovery by American Cigar were the features of the lightest trading session on the curb exchange in about two years. The turnover amounted to only 554,400 shares, the ticker was idle for minutes at a time, and traders loitered around the posts on the floor in hapless fashion.

The trend of prices was toward higher levels, but most stocks moved very little and trading was in such small volume that a great deal of importance could not be attached to advances or declines.

The revival in Fox Theaters, however, was briskly accomplished. The issue moved up 1⅝ points on word that the threatened receivership will probably never be and that assets and earnings statements for the corporation are "reassuring." American Cigar fairly leaped ahead today, closing at its high of 81 for a net gain of 13 points.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 3.—David Sarnoff, who came to the United States as an immigrant from southern Russia when a child, was today elected president of the Radio Corporation of America. At the age of 39 he takes over active direction of the great corporation in which he has been a power for many years.

DAVID SARNOFF.

The directors of the corporation, following the first meeting of the year this afternoon announced the election of Mr. Sarnoff, and at the same time announced the resignation of Owen D. Young as chairman of the board and the election of Gen. James G. Harbord to succeed him in that office. Mr. Young becomes chairman of an executive committee which was authorized at today's meeting.

As vice president and general manager of the corporation for several years past Mr. Sarnoff had been the active executive in developing and coordinating the worldwide activities of the concern.

While no comments were available on behalf of the Radio corporation or its high officials regarding these changes, it is understood that the measures are in keeping with the recent plans whereby the General Electric company and the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company will turn over their research and manufacturing activities in the Radio amusement field to new subsidiaries of the Radio corporation, receiving minority stock interests in exchange.

Reviews Say Recovery of Trade Only Matter of Time

New York, Jan. 3.—The reviews of trade, industry and business published by Dun & Co., and Bradstreet's journal continue to take an optimistic view of the situation, although they point out that recovery from the depression of recent months will be a matter of time.

Bradstreet's review says the stepping up of steel production during the last week was the most significant industrial beacon light of recovery.

Dun's Review declares the revival in business has been "more in prospect than in actual achievement," but comes forward with the satisfying statement that, "what has lately happened is of less importance now than what is likely to occur and 1930 begins with most of the fundamentals favorable to ultimate renewed expansion."

Notes Confident Feeling.

Dun's report says in part: "Revival of business from the setback of recent months has been more in prospect than in actual achievement, yet this was to be expected.

"Time will be required for recovery from the recession, and the first few days of a year seldom bring any change of deep significance. It is evident, however, that there is a more confident feeling in most quarters and sentiment regarding the more distant future is plainly marked by optimism.

"What has lately happened is of less importance now than what is likely to occur, and 1930 begins with most of the fundamentals favorable to ultimate renewed expansion. The specific developments this week, if lacking in particular feature, were not without encouragement in some instances, and among the hopeful signs was steadier price undertone in various leading commodities.

"There has been a natural spreading of interest in the movement of wholesale quotations since the speculative upheaval last autumn, and Dun's list has shown an almost unbroken excess of declines. The present tabulation, on the other hand reflects more stability in such essential products as iron and steel and textiles, while hide markets, under the influence of a strong statistical position, have improved.

Buyers Hold Advantage.

"The advantage has been with buyers in most cases where new commitments have been undertaken, but there have been conspicuous exceptions to this condition and the fact that many prices are at low levels is of itself a supporting factor. With burdensome supplies mainly absent, and with outputs being closely regulated to actual orders, a solid basis for subsequent commercial advance clearly exists, and the steel industry has already given some indication of such a trend.

"Where annual inventories have been completed and small stocks of goods disclosed, moderately larger purchasing has developed, with corresponding stimulus to manufacturing activities. Measurements of trade logically show the effects of the readjustments caused by the late unsettlement in financial circles, but a rise to about 60 per cent in the average of steel production in the principal areas as one of the promising auguries as January opens."

Assets Shrink; Investment Trust Omits Dividends

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 3.—A decline of 21.7 per cent in net assets from Sept. 30 to Nov. 30, 1929, owing to shrinkage in the market value of its portfolio, has caused American London and Empire corporation, an investment trust, to omit dividends on its preferred stock, a letter from Gilbert Elliott, president, to stockholders of the company says.

Engineering Construction Awards for 1929 Gain 10%

New York, Jan. 3.—(AP)—Engineering News-Record reports that engineering construction awards announced throughout the country in 1929 totaled $3,950,000,000, a 10 per cent gain over 1928. The December figures showed a decline of $166,208,000 from $237,097,000 a year ago. The increase for 1929 was confined to private work, chiefly buildings. Gains were reported for all sections except the middle west, which showed an 8 per cent decrease.

BY FRED HARVEY.

New York, Jan. 3.—Stocks just floundered about most of the time today, but managed to gain irregularly higher levels in time for the final record.

Increasing activity in the motors, a sharp rebound in Fox Film and a number of other issues which had been under pressure from the bear side, and a sudden relaxation in money conditions were the outstanding features of the day. The call rate dropped to 5 per cent from the renewal charge of 6 per cent and outside funds were in liberal supply as low as 4½ per cent.

Except for a mild rally in the late afternoon, trading was extremely dull all day, transactions falling off to 2,067,000 shares.

Public Shows Little Interest.

Dealings again were largely of a professional character, the public manifesting little interest in any quarter. The reduced activity was interpreted as convincing support for the pet theory of Wall street at the moment, which is that the market is quite thorough liquidated and the occasional bear raids are not accomplishing much in the way of bringing out fresh long stock.

Estimated receipts at Chicago today, 300 cattle, 10,000 hogs, and 1,000 sheep.

Hogs gained 10@20c more on yesterday's active trade, closing on a level with the high point of the week. The top at $9.90 equals the highest since Thursday of last week and compares with $9.70 last Tuesday.

The general average was moved up 15c at $9.60. Another deluge of shipping orders indicates the growing scarcity of supplies at eastern points. Outsiders had orders for 14,000 head, or 75 per cent of the fresh receipts, but some buyers ran short of hogs and were unable to fill.

Few Remain at Close.

Shipments, however, were estimated at 12,000 to 13,000 and only 3,000 pen holders and inferior kinds remained at the close.

Other classes of live stock also sold to slightly better advantage, but quality was not as good and top prices were held below Thursday's level. The bea cattle in yesterday's meager supply of 2,000 sold at $15.00 and averaged 851 lbs. Choice yearling steers eligible to $16.00 were absent.

Some fair quality 1,290 lb steers brought $13.50 and plain 1,300 lb averages were bought as low as $10.75. Prices show 25@50c advance, compared with a week ago. Butcher stock yesterday sold steady. Calves ruled strong to unevenly higher. Stockers and feeders were scarce and quiet.

Lambs Hold Firm.

Fat lambs sold strong yesterday, some sales showing slight gains considering the weight and quality. Prime handy weights reached $13.65, the day's peak, while bulk of 75@95 lb averages sold at $13.25@13.50 and heavier weights at $13.00 and below.

Yearlings closed stronger, prime 100@104 lb averages bringing $11.00, highest of the week. Aged sheep were scarce and showed little change. Feeding lambs were slow and barely steady.

Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated at 300 cattle, 10,000 hogs, and 1,000 sheep, against 43 cattle, 7,556 hogs, and 1,538 sheep the previous Saturday and 239 cattle, 17,632 hogs, and 1,012 sheep a year ago.

Probable receipts of hogs at Chicago for next Monday are estimated from 44,000 to 72,000. J. M. Waters marked 44,000; S. Lund and F. W. Young, 55,000; A. W. Trotter, 56,000; E. D. Six, 53,000; W. C. ## LEADING BANKERS NOT ALARMED BY GOLD SHIPMENTS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 3.—A total of $8,500,000 in gold was withdrawn from the federal reserve bank today for shipment to France on the Berengaria tomorrow.

The withdrawal, shown in the account of the reserve's new daily gold statements, was $1,250,000 more than the amount which had been reported Thursday night to have been engaged for transfer. The additional amount is understood to have been taken by the Chase National bank. Of the $7,250,000 reported Thursday night, $6,000,000 is being shipped by the Lazard Freres and $1,250,000 by Heidelbach, Ickelshiner & Co.

The Berengaria shipment brings the total gold shipments from the United States since Nov. 1 to $106,250,000.

It is generally expected in banking circles that the exportation of gold from the United States will be continued, but leading bankers are not alarmed. It is pointed out that during 1929, despite the heavy withdrawals during the last two months of the year, the United States gained about $115,000,000, after allowing $55,000,000 in earmarked gold.

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

The dragging tendency of all grain markets tends to create bearishness, liquidation and short selling. Failure of exports to enlarge equal to those of last year, when they were around 9,000,000 bu of wheat and flour per week, created an impression that the market is in a fair way to become oversold and in a position to be sharply rallied should favorable news and good buying appear.

The way that May corn holds around 95c is regarded as a pivotal basis for pit traders to buy on all recessions below that level, and to take profits around 96c or better. Cash situation offers no particular inducement to operators on either side of the market.

A point made by those who are inclined to the selling side of wheat on bulges is that the drop of from 4c to 5c in prices in the last few days has failed to increase foreign buying, but a belief exists that on any further recession in prices foreigners will take hold more freely.

SAYS SLUMP IN SILVER BRINGS MEXICAN CRISIS

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 3.—(AP)—The slump in prices of bar silver in New York and other world markets was said by Jenaro Garcia Bravo, president of the national mining chamber, today to have brought Mexico to a grave crisis, with several mines in silver producing regions already laying off men.

He predicted that 7,000 miners would be without work within three months if quotations do not improve.

Bartolome Vargas Lugo, governor of the state of Hidalgo, came to the capital to confer with President Emilio Portes Gil on means of meeting the crisis in that state, which he feared might seriously embarrass the finances of the state government, since its greatest income is derived from silver mining activities.

W. B. FOSHAY CO. HAS NEW BOARD OF DIRECTORS

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 3.—(AP)—Resignation of the entire board of directors of the W. B. Forshay company and election of a new board was announced today by Wilbur B. Foshay, head of the concern, which is now in receivership with two other Foshay holding companies.

Mr. Foshay was elected to the new board by the meeting of common stock holders. The meeting also adopted a resolution declaring "it is our desire that said board take such steps and do such things as in their judgment may seem best for the purpose of working this company out of the present receivership and returning its affairs to the management of its officers and directors."

Out of a total of 7,018 shares of common stock in the company outstanding, 4,657 shares were represented at the meeting, Mr. Foshay said.

GRIGSBY-GRUNOW PLANS BOOST IN CAPITAL STOCK

Issue Closes Lower in Dull Trading Here.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Trading progressed at snail's pace on the Chicago exchange yesterday with the much talked about January reinvestment funds plainly absent. Price movements provided little or no excitement with variations of ¼ point or less the rule of the session.

In the closing list Auburn stuck out conspicuously with a net gain of 6 points on fairly active trade. The strength shown by the stock followed on the heels of announcements that the company is anticipating a busy year of production. Cord corporation, which has large holdings in Auburn, was by far the most active issue on the board and finished at 13¼, up an even point for the day.

Adds to Force.

Bendix Aviation was another member in the small group of active shares and was a fraction higher at the close. The company through its South Bend unit is going ahead with its program of increased production. The force of 800 men now working will be increased by 1,500 to 1,800 on March 1 and a day and night shift will be inaugurated.

Grigsby-Grunow was less active than usual, but was still one of the leaders with a turnover of more than 10,000 shares. The company has notified both the Chicago and New York exchanges of a proposed increase in capital stock from 2,000,000 to 3,000,000 shares. President B. J. Grigsby declined to comment on the proposed increase, but said that he would make a statement later. It is understood, however, that the company desires to have stock available in order to make attractive acquisitions when the occasions arise. All of the present authorized shares are outstanding. They closed ¼ point lower on the exchange.

Form New Company.

National Republic Investment showed little action in face of the announcement of the formation of the National Republic Bancorporation, with which it will be closely associated. Another banking group, the Northwest Bancorporation, yesterday announced the organization of the Bancnorthwest company to underwrite and distribute investment securities. The new firm will be associated with the 96 banking and investment organizations in the North West group.

Swift International improved a fraction. Directors early in the week voted to increase the annual dividend rate from $2 to $2.50 a share.

Chicago Board of Trade Stocks

Armour "B" shares, the most active on the list, were firmer yesterday. National Pump and Sundstrand weakened, while Allied Mills, although neglected, closed higher.

News and Gossip of Stock Marts

Revive Steel Rumors.

Rumors of a splitup in United States Steel are being revived. The regular quarterly meeting of the board will be held on Jan. 28, but the bulls hope that some announcement will be made sooner.

Absorb Offerings.

General Motors has been extremely well taken in an area of 39% to 40%, with the result that shorts in this stock have about given up hope of making much of a profit. It is evident that interests close to the corporation are absorbing offerings under the $40 level. Some new outside buying has been attracted by the stock by announcements of the company relative to new models.

International Harvester.

In addition to its generally recognized strong market sponsorship, International Harvester is attractive on the basis that agricultural sections of the country were not involved in the stock market decline and have had a normally good crop year. Harvester in 1928 reported $5.59 a share after reserves of more than $4, while income for 1929 is estimated at approximately $7. The corporation has forged into third place as a producer of motor trucks and should get its usual good business in agricultural implements.

Demand for Woolworth.

When available under $70 a share, there seems to be especially good demand for Woolworth, which has fluctuated in narrow limits in the recent trading. Woolworth always has attracted a certain class of buying for investors who have fared well over a period of years. In addition, there is at present a moderate amount of speculative demand on the theory that the report of the corporation for the full year 1929 will reveal another new high record in both gross business and net profits.

STATE REALTORS LEASE QUARTERS IN LOOP TOWER

Rent Space in Steuben Building.

BY AL CHASE.

Among several leases just reported as negotiated in the new Steuben building, at the northeast corner of Randolph and Wells streets, is one closed by the Illinois Association of Real Estate Boards. This organization, composed of real estate boards throughout the entire state, formerly occupied quarters at 35 North Dearborn street.

The headquarters of the state association have been moved to the thirteenth floor of the new skyscraper, where they will occupy suite 1322-24. The organization's telephone is unchanged. Ralph V. Field is executive secretary, and Charles E. Jackson of Rockford is president. Joseph B. Hall of Chicago is treasurer.

The directorate contains five Chicagoans. They are Valentine H. Surghnor, George H. Taylor, Henry G. Zander, Edward S. Judd, and Paul C. Loeber. D. C. Malin of Evanston and W. H. Wright of Oak Park also are directors.

Reports Other Leases.

Paul C. Loeber & Co., agents of the Steuben building, report several other leases for that structure. The Steuben Book store, which has been open for some time, is one of the long term tenants. The Postal Telegraph Cable company has leased the store at 155 North Wells street. The Elam Papeterie company also has taken space in the new skyscraper.

The Catholic bishop of Chicago has purchased a tract of twenty-five acres adjoining St. Casimir's cemetery on the south from the heirs of Alice Onwenga for future use by the cemetery. St. Casimir's cemetery is located at the southwest corner of 111th street and Crawford avenue, and the land bought extends to 115th. The heirs have leased back the tract for use as a truck garden. E. J. Price was attorney.

Damen-Montrose Corner Deal.

Jerry R. Selman has transferred title to the business property at the southeast corner of Damen and Montrose avenues, lot 56x153 feet, to John R. Geary. There is an incumbrance of $56,000 on the property.

Sylvan M. Moses has purchased the property at 1349-55 North Branch street, lot 100x250 feet, from Spencer Kellogg & Sons, Inc. The ground is improved with a two story building, a one story building, a garage, etc. Mr. Moses will move his manufacturing business to the North Branch street location. Paul Steinbrecher & Co. were brokers.

Buys Business Block at 3110 North Cicero Avenue

John J. Marlas has purchased the business block containing one story stores at 3110-16 North Cicero avenue from F. J. Cuneo for an undisclosed consideration, subject to $40,000. Harry A. Nichols was the only broker.

LIQUIDATION ON CURB WIPES OUT EARLY ADVANCES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 2. — Liquidation which assumed large proportions at various times during the final hour of trading today wiped out early gains in many stocks, and the result was an irregular market at the close with oils showing the greatest resistance to selling pressure.

Reversal of trend caused losses and gains to be confined mostly to 5 points or less. The turnover was moderate, 778,900 shares changing hands.

No special reason could be found for the sharp selling near the close. Fox Theatre A and American Cigar were excellent marks for bear operators nearly all day, however, so when general selling set in it had an excellent foothold.

Stocks in the morning session showed every indication of continued strength. Advances of from 3 to 9 points were established throughout the list during the first two hours and it was not until shortly after noon that stocks began to slip.

N. Y. STOCKS JUST BOUNCE AROUND BUT END HIGHER

couraged by the failure of anything in the way of reinvestment demand to assert itself, kept up a sporadic fire against any positions believed likely to be found vulnerable. The would-be raiders trained their guns first on one position and then on another throughout the forenoon, but with little apparent success. While their hammering was effectual in forcing an issue back at intervals, it was evident that such pressure was not precipitating anything of consequence in the way of fresh liquidation at any time.

Motors Become More Active.

Interest in the automobile shares assumed the broadest proportions witnessed in many weeks and fairly substantial advances were the rule in the group. Hudson led the rally, running up a net gain of 3 points. Demand for this stock grew out of news from Detroit that the company's new model will be an eight. Hupp, Chrysler, Nash, and one or two others were in fairly good demand, all scoring advances of more than a point. General Motors bettered its position fractionally.

The buying movement here came as a sort of appetizer for the annual motor show which will open here tomorrow.

Fox Film Is Puzzle.

Fox Film got to be a regular cutup by its antics during the day. It was a case of touch and go with the issue throughout the session, with the stock becoming for the moment at least a football for nimble speculators. Wall street was nonplussed, to put it mildly, by the abrupt reversal of its stand by the class A stockholders' protective committee. That body after issuing a statement declaring, in effect, that a receivership was inevitable, turned completely around in a secondary statement issued and maintained that, in view of the data on assets and earnings set forth by Mr. Fox overnight, the refinancing program should not meet with any insurmountable difficulty, especially with the now expected operation of all interested parties. Fox A slipped into new low ground at the outset, but later rallied rather sharply in response to the latest statement of the stockholders' committee. The closing price reflected a net gain on the day of nearly 4 points.

Mr. Fox's statement, indicating assets above liabilities of $73,000,000, and earnings for 1929 of $19,000,000, was described as "reassuring," but it was added that the committee is seeking to obtain more detailed figures.

Railway equipment shares began to discount prospects of good business this year. General Railway Signal, General American Tank, Pullman and Westinghouse Airbrake all pushed ahead from 1 to nearly 5 points. Baldwin Locomotive also made an active display of strength.

COTTON PRICES LOWER

A government report gives 10,000,000 bales as the quantity of American grown, tenderable on contracts for future delivery. This is 78.2 per cent of the crop ginned prior to Dec. 1, 1929. World's spinners takings of American cotton for the week, as estimated by the New York cotton exchange is 375,000 bales, against 542,000 bales the previous week and 375,000 bales last year.

Prices yesterday declined and closed around the bottom, with losses of 10 to 17 points in Chicago and 14 to 17 points in outside markets. Liverpool was 1 point higher to 3 points lower, with sales of 4,000 bales.

WHEAT PRICES RECOVER FROM DAY'S LOW POINT

Closing Quotations Show Narrow Changes.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Expected improvement in interest in grain has not materialized so far this year, and scattered selling yesterday by the local element and commission houses carried wheat futures off around 2c from Thursday's finish.

May at the low point showed a drop of 5¼c under the high of the previous day. Surplus in the pit was absorbed by commission houses who sold the previous day and by holders of bids, and a short covering movement which came toward the last lifted values sharply with the close ½c lower to ⅝c higher.

The rally in wheat futures here was in the face of a report that Russia had sold a cargo of cash grain to Genoa, Italy, while the previous day there had been free selling on rumors that Russia was offering grain. Taken as a whole the day's developments were about as colorless as they ever become, and the general disposition was to keep close to shore pending a change in conditions.

Export Demand Slow.

Action of North American wheat markets on Thursday were said by private cables to have discouraged European buyers, and sales in all positions for the day were estimated at only 300,000 to 400,000 bu, including 135,000 bu worked from Portland, Ore. Messages from the latter reported European and oriental bids fairly close to a working basis. Threshing returns in Australia are disappointing, and the exportable surplus of that country is not likely to exceed 50,000,000 bu. Argentine exports for the week of 1,563,000 bu were about half of what was cleared the previous week and last year. Buenos Aires and Rosario closed ¼c lower, a decline of ¼c in the exchange rate being the main factor, both markets rallying about as much as Chicago from the figures prevailing at midday. Liverpool lost 1⅝@1⅞d in sympathy with North American markets on Thursday.

An increased foreign demand for wheat during the latter half of the crop year was suggested by a summary of the world's situation prepared by Nat. C. Murray, with Clement, Curtis & Co. He says importing countries have cut heavily into domestic supplies, and the practical exhaustion of old crop supplies in the southern hemisphere and the small crops of new grain are factors that must be considered.

Light Trade in Corn.

While corn futures had a range of ¾c for the day, trade was light and mainly local with the action of wheat having considerable influence. A leading local professional was a good buyer at times, which with buying against bids checked the decline, and the finish was ⅜@¾c lower. Country offerings were small, with the spot basis steady to 3c higher, poor grades showing the most advance. Buenos Aires futures finished ⅛c higher to ⅞c lower.

There was local selling of oats early on the weakness in wheat, but the market rallied with that grain later and the finish was unchanged to ¼c lower. The spot basis was steady to ½c higher.

A good part of the trade in rye was in spreading between March and May, but outside interest was limited and the market easily influenced. Closing trades were ⅜@½c higher.

BUTTER FUTURES RALLY

Butter futures advanced on the Chicago Mercantile exchange, reflecting the colder weather conditions and a feeling on the part of many of the traders that much of the butter delivered Thursday had reached strong hands and would probably not be seen again in the market. Lower production reports from the southwest and west aided the rise. Net gains at the finish were ¼c on 924 a car in January and February deliveries. Sales were 73 cars with receipts of 8,491 tubs. January eggs jumped $60 a case or ½c and January fresh firsts were up 545 a case or ⅝c. The more severe weather conditions were chiefly instrumental in the egg rise with reduced receipts also playing a part. Sales were 246 cars with receipts of 6,512 cases. Prices follow:

CASH·GRAIN NEWS

Foreigners were not inclined to buy North American cash wheat freely due to the disappointing action of the market on Thursday, but there was some hard winter and Manitobas disposed of. Total sales were estimated at 300,000 to 400,000 bu. No. 2 hard winter at the gulf sold at Chicago May price. Local handlers sold 3,000 bu wheat; 57,000 bu corn, and 71,000 bu oats to the domestic trade with 25,000 bu corn sold to go to store.
